 "Help! Help! Say y' big crook! Remember yer bein' paid by the League, not the home team!"

"Oh! You poor nut! I got a three-year old Kid out at my house that'll teach y' the rules if y' come out t' night!"

"Oh! You horsethief! What d'ye want him I do, bring the ball up and lay it against the boob's bat? What're y' standin' behind the bat for? Why don't y' sit in the shade in the grandstand? Y' can call 'em the way you do just as well from there!"

When these are the kind of arguments used, do you wonder that an umpire never changes a decision.
 "Y' big prune! I touched 'im when he was thirty feet from d' bag!"
 "Y' wasn't lookin' this way—!"
 "—?—! I had been settin' on d' bag for ten minutes wen he walks over an' touches me!"

First Fan:—"You oughtn't to insult the umpire!" Second Fan:—"Hay! Where d'ye get that stuff. Y' can't insult an umpire!"

A player on the bench will get ten times as excited as those in the game. Call the umpire everything in the "Awful Dictionary" and he knows he doesn't hear a word.

There really is something very pathetic about the figure of the "umps" standing out there alone without a friend on the lot or a word of praise for him; whom none ever thinks of except to hook or pan.

Kid:—"Here y'are! Rules and guide book!"
 Fan:—"Here! I'll take one! I wanna give it to the 'umps'." Other Fan:—"Yer washin' yer money bo! He won't understand 'em!"

Our idea of wasting life—
 The cussers chorus trying to make an "umps" change a decision.

When the "umps" starts to dust off home plate then you know the argument is ended and you might just as well go 'way back and sit down.

There was once a rich man who had an only son named Edwin Goodman. When Edwin was a straggling along he was suddenly seized, gagged and blindfolded and carried off to a hut where he was bound with ropes. In the corner lay a young girl in the same plight.

When Edwin's father came home he missed his son and at once started the police to searching for him. In a short time Mr. Goodman received a letter telling him that if he would deposit $500 by the old oak tree in the forest, his son would be restored to him in safety.

The next day he started out and by night came to the cross roads. He put the money under the tree and also something else. Hardly had he gone when the man came along.

one heavy colored thread or pattern. The decorations are cut from scraps of a contrasting color and first basted to the smock, then fastened with some sort of simple outline or "buttonhole" stitch in heavy thread or yarn. I have made three decorative designs—a butterfly, a cherry and a blue bird. They are all very easy to copy. The stem of the cherry is worked in heavy outline stitch, and the leaf is green while the cherry is of orange red. Green cherries would be a green smock, a tiny apple. The blue bird would be lovely in pale blue or orange or a dark blue. The blue birds are pretty in any shade of blue on a tan or cream.

OAKLAND BOYS' KIDNAPERS

BOYS' DEN!

We'll have to make this Pirates' Den of rubber pretty soon to accommodate all the new rats who are crowding in. Now that Bill Hart is presiding over the campfire we're certainly having some lively meetings. Many of the new stars are beginning to have a regular Harsh flavor to them—which is fine. We westerners have the biggest country and the most interesting life in all the world to talk about. We don't have to confine ourselves to "city adventures" like robberies and fights. The big deeds of the mountains, the deserts, the round camps, the hunting diggings, belong to us—TO YOU—so away we can whirl with our "lass ropes" set and bring down some yarns that will make the stuff of the U. S. A. sit up and take notice. Read up all the "wild west" stuff you can find, Pals, and let's make our corner HUM!

Here's a new Big Chief who doesn't give his address, but we are certainly lighting the welcome bonfires for him.

As they ran along they threw hand grenades at the Germans. After a moment's running they came to a German line. Into the trenches they jumped, shouting as they went. They were shouting as fast as they could. Finally the soldiers scrambled over the trenches, shouting as they went. They were shouting as fast as they could. BILL HART'S CAMPFIRE STORIES

Campfire Stories

To return to when I was a boy in the Dakota Territory, I would like to describe how the primitive Indian youths grew to manhood, and the kind of games they played.

While the boys in the civilized East were playing football, baseball, ice hockey and their other games, I knew only the more serious amusements of the Sioux Indians. In short, I was a Western boy.

For instance, we used to sail primitive ice-boats on the upper Missouri river. With my Indian boy friends I would construct a crude ice-boat in this fashion: Taking a suitable number of barrels, we would lash them together lengthwise with buckskin thongs. Thus, the staves were raised from the surface both in the front and rear, making a canoe effect. Then a soap box was placed in the middle of the craft. Next we placed a stout pole upright in the front end of the box. To a cross piece on the pole we lashed a blanket. We were then all ready to go.

When those smashing winter winds hit the crude sails of our little primitive ice-boat, we would travel so far and so fast that one direction that it would take us all day to walk back.

We also used barrel staves as a sort of primitive sleds. We would strap these staves on our feet with buckskin thongs. And how we took chances by skidding down hillsides at incredible speed. We used bigger staves for coasters, just as you boys coast with sleds.

With my Indian playmates, I would contest in this sort of rough game. Mounted bareback on our ponies, we would ride furiously to the edge of the cliff. Then we would jump into the water, and discharge an arrow from the bow into the ground.

In those days Indian boys used the bow and arrow as well as before the white man came, chiefly because of their lack of funds necessary to purchase the "long guns" of the pale-faces, and partly because of their native pride of tradition in being skilled in the use of the bow and arrow in the hunt.

Question Box

GEORGE LEUTZINGER

George has asked me if I made arrow heads when I was with the Indians and what were some Indian names.

Of course I tried my hand at all Indian "stunts, just as any boy would have done. But you must know that arrow making requires a great and unusual skill. While the stone more "foot" for the finishing chipping. Sudden cold would accomplish this chipping in fine shape just as an abrupt change in temperature will crack a dish. So the Indians often used icicles for the more delicate finishing. They would apply their icicle to the edge of the red hot stone and tiny flakes would come off around the edge. Of course the usual method was to cut flint with a flint—and there was a great knack in bringing the stone to a "razor edge."

Indian names varied with the various tribes. They were largely based on natural features and elements—much as the Japanese base their names. Here are a few—Wunseet, Peshow-nunk, Pooto, Iwuna, Tau Kesuk, Wauchesset. These are all names of people.

A common method was as follows: The flints were first roughly shaped into knife or arrow form. They were then heated in a fire until they were very hot. This made the stone more "foot" for the finishing chipping. Sudden cold would accomplish this chipping in fine shape just as an abrupt change in temperature will crack a dish. So the Indians often used icicles for the more delicate finishing. They would apply their icicle to the edge of the red hot stone and tiny flakes would come off around the edge. Of course the usual method was to cut flint with a flint—and there was a great knack in bringing the stone to a "razor edge."

Indian names varied with the various tribes. They were largely based on natural features and elements—much as the Japanese base their names. Here are a few—Wunseet, Peshow-nunk, Pooto, Iwuna, Tau Kesuk, Wauchesset. These are all names of people.

A common method was as follows: The flints were first roughly shaped into knife or arrow form. They were then heated in a fire until they were very hot. This made the stone more "foot" for the finishing chipping. Sudden cold would accomplish this chipping in fine shape just as an abrupt change in temperature will crack a dish. CONTEST CORNER

Come a-runnin' all you little Witches! Here's some ne' The Boys have been having a special airplane contest, and now your turn has come. It isn't an airplane, but something you will like whole rainbows better. Do you remember how some months ago a Mystery Friend crocheted a beautiful yoke and gave it for the Girls' Prize? After we had made our prettiest banners and begged over so hard she told us that her name was Miss Ina Emerson, of Mokelumne Hill, Calif., and that the gift was a sign of her deep, glad friendliness to you all. Well, she's done it again! Only this time the yoke is even lovelier. I think she sat out in the sunshine and made little butterflies for the yoke. They are, in dancing row for someone's SHOULDERS. She has sent it with her HIG LOVE to you all, and the request is that you give it a prize some time. So we're going to have a special contest and Miss Emerson herself is to be the judge. The yoke will be given as a prize for the BEST STORY. It may be any kind of a story, poem—BUT IT MUST BE ORIGINAL and not too long. SEND YOUR STORY OR POEM DIRECTLY TO MISS INA EMERSON, Mokelumne Hill, Calaveras Co., Calif.

Do not send them to Aunt Elsie or they will not be entered in the contest. Miss Emerson will decide which one she considers the prize winner—and a collection of the other best stories will also be printed but will not win prizes.

The contest will close June 18—that will be the last day on which a story may be sent. The winner will be chosen by Miss Emerson, and she will send the prize to you. And Oh! won't the winner be so proud and happy sweetheart!

Here are two "chum contests" The kiddies are offering their own prize and if you wish to take part you must write directly to them. MURIEL GREY, 1909 Pacific Ave., Alameda. Dear Girls—This offer is not for

BOOK REVIEWS AND LITERARY NOTES

"The Road to En-Dor"

Ouija Is Laughed Off the Boards in Account of Experiences of Two British Officers Who Used It to Affect Escape From Prison.

Those afflicted with ouijamania may refuse to recognize "The Road to En-Dor" as a fair indictment of their pet craze, yet it is doubtful if ever a more telling one has been written. With all of the interest of fiction it tells a story of the escape of two British officers from a Turkish prison and of their success in convincing their captors of an insanity that was feigned.

The officers took to the ouija as a means of passing the time in their prison. With it they amused their fellow prisoners and with the repeated seances the powers it might contain for practical use became apparent. Before they were through the two Britons had the Turkish officials hunting here and there for buried treasure and established a reputation for mediumship that extended without the walls of the prison. They are still receiving letters from Turks who ask that they return to find the treasure that was pointed out by the ouija.

The ouija ran the prison. It secured special privileges for the two officers and nearly affected their escape. A Turkish commandant and an interpreter were kidnapped through its influence and an officer

"THE TRUTH OF SPIRITUALISM"

Great writers, great thinkers, poets, artists, even theologians, are daily giving their faith and their support to the truth of spiritualism. The toward and the seer who make a man of his people; their day will come.

That is what "Rita," Mrs. Desmond Humphreys, believes of the philosophy she has made her own. It is one may imagine, more of a conviction of belief than of proof. "Rita," the novelist is a spiritualist because she wishes to be and because she believes in the truth of spiritualism. She is within her rights but when she seeks to write of that belief and of her reasons there is revealed a pitifully small amount of that which would make for converts.

"Rita" writes interestingly of the history of the movement of seances, manifestations, and materializations. She shows herself to be a thorough believer and an ardent worker for what, to her, is a cause and a religion.

"The Truth of Spiritualism," by Rita; Philadelphia, J. B. Lippincott, $1.50.

"THE LONE SCOUT"

Edward Champe Carter has discovered a new subject and new settings for a boy's book and as a result has written what will be gladly accepted by a host of juvenile readers. The hero of "The Lone Scout" goes into the camp of United States Public Health Service men as cook and there meets with all of the adventures necessary to make a story that will delight the young reader. It is a tale for Boy Scouts and one which shows how scout duty may fit boys for the nation's service in work of scientific value and importance. The president of the Boy Scouts of America has endorsed the Scouts of America and William C. Gorgas, surgeon general, U. S. A., retired, has written a foreword.

"The Lone Scout," by Edward Champe Carter; Boston, The Cornhill Company, $1.50.

Philip Gibbs, war correspondent, has been knighted for war work. Sir Philip has recently finished an after-the-war novel which will soon be published in America by George H. Doran Company, publishers of his famous war books. "The Struggle in Flanders" (reissued "From Bapaume to Passchendaele" in former editions) "The Battles of the Somme" and "The Way to Victory," in two volumes.

Mystery

The Williamsons Write Alluring Puzzler For the Ice Cream Days—Author of Fu Manchu Stories Has New Thriller.

Mystery is never so alluring as when colored with romance of the kind that flows from the Williamsons' pen. A puzzled reader is most contented when the love element enters into his calculations and happiness of a man and woman depend on the solution of the tale at hand. And "The Second Latchkey" will answer that reader's call for the romantic and the mysterious. C. N. and A. M. Williamson have come forward with a story that will be worthy of their list of successes.

It is the chronicle of an English girl and an adventuring millionaire, who, entering like a Galahad, wins her, and then assumes what a. How the mystery which makes him act this part is solved and enduring love comes to the two of them, makes something better than hammock reading.

It is a Williamson habit to tangle the reader in suspense and interest. From Chapter I to "Finis," "The Second Latchkey" turns that trick with this first paragraph:

"Even when Annesley Grayle turned out of the Strand toward the Savoy, she was uncertain whether she should have the courage to enter the hotel. With a deep sigh she thought of the dreadful thing that she had done, to look, looked blacker. It was monstrous, impossible, like opening the door of the lions' cage at the Zoo and stepping inside. There was time still to change her mind. She had only to turn now—jump into the familiar car—and everything would be as it had been. Life for the next five, ten, maybe twenty years, would be what the last five had been."

The reader who can put down this book, after twisting his mind in the lines that open the story, has something wrong with his reading faculty. And to go on with it is to go deeper and deeper into that delightful state where the dinner bell is unheard and sleep out of the question until here and heroine clinch in the last chapter.

The ice cream days will not be complete without "The Second Latchkey," by C. N. and A. M. Williamson; Garden City, Doubleday, Page & Co.

"MARY MARIE." BY ELEANOR PORTER

To the ranks of the joyous, the cheerful, the happy, and the glad heroines there must be added Mary Marie, the "sunbeam" girl. She is a golden-haired spirit of delight and her story is calculated to make rapturous the heart of the young girl reader. For the book is primarily one for young girls, for girls not so young, and for nice old ladies who wear caps.

There is a bit of love for the Polly-Anish in the hearts of most of us and the chronicles of her gay-eyed irresponsibles who walk through the pages distributing laughs and causing jumps to rise in the throat with equal indifference are always welcome. They represent what the popular matinee does to the theater, they are the "Daddy-Long-Legs" performances on a Wednesday afternoon.

Eleanor H. Porter, creator of "Just David," has drawn Mary Marie, a queer combination of the staid and the audacious, or, as she puts it, "crosscurrents and a contradiction. She is of course, live and adorable. A blend of demure goodness and electric charm, a sense of duty and a sense of mischief.

There is no doubt Mary Marie will become a favorite. She has the comic appeal that certain motion picture actresses with curls, dainty figures, sweet smiles and the name Mary Marie," by Eleanor H. Porter; Boston, Houghton, Mifflin Co., $1.50.

"Wanted, a Husband"

By Samuel H. Adams

"Wanted: A Husband," a novel by Samuel Hopkins Adams the scenario form of which was shown on the local cinema screen six months ago, has now its appearance in book form from the press of Houghton-Mifflin.

The story is of the making of the little heroine who is introduced to us as an indolent, uninteresting, little creature with a selfish and bigoted outlook on life. It's not a pleasant outlook to open an evening's reading, but the rapid progress this girl makes in her struggle to become attractive soon ends any fears which the reader may hold that he is in for a dose of gloom.

At about page 35 she meets her lover but does not recognize him as such till close to page 118. From then on we have good happy romance on a country home in the Adirondacks, and the story is a happy and frothy Hopkins Adams style.

The book is an attractive light novel, easy to read and well-told, and it does not present a wealth of new situations or characters. Lovers of the author will not be disappointed.

"Wanted: A Husband," by Samuel Hopkins Adams; Boston, Houghton-Mifflin, $1.75.

"The Roof-Garden"

Since I lost my ancient wealth These are they that have nourished my life.

In this grotesque, gray desert of the town:

The leaping up of flame: The widening of the sky at the corner of the street: The soft renewals of steam at the funnel's lip, Rising, coiling, dissolving; White flowers of the roofs That in unfolding vanish.

Mabel Barker Huddleston in "Poetry."

"Body and Soul," Allegorical Play

Elizabeth H. Marsh has written a somewhat effective play in which the Body and Soul are the main characters and one that would emphasize the old regret that there is little of love or reverence that survives the life. For the most part the author has handled her subject in a manner dramatic enough to hold the interest and effective enough to invite presentation. It is only when she seeks to clothe her sentiments in poetry that spirit is lost and unfortunately, what should be an impressive ending is lost in some very weak verse. There is the spectacle of Soul saying:

"Now more to you I may not tell. This body swooned, ye know full well. But I must preach, both far and near. What I this night have suffered here."

"Body and Soul," by Elizabeth H. Marsh; Boston, The Cornhill Company, $1.25.

"JANE," A FIERY LIKABLE HEROINE

A red-haired free-living scamp of a girl is "Jane." Filled with an irrepressible sense of humor, a power for banter and a courage as big as the outside she travels through adventure in the frolicsome manner to make most interesting reading. In the character Anna Alice Chapin has done much the same as did Henry St. John Cooper in a recent book, "Sunny Ducrow."

The book does not pretend to be a novel. It has a beginning, a middle, and an end. It has laughs, a few thrills and one or two tears. "Jane" leaves the home of her step-father after "bawling" him out in most exquisite manner. She joins with a traveling troupe of actors and journeys far into the field of danger with nothing but her good sense and native innocence to protect her.

Jane wins out. She wins over the cowardly efforts of a wop who was trusted too well and she wins with the man worth while. In her winning there is a story to delight the one who likes to follow the amazing escapades of the "Daddy-Long-Legs" heroines.

"Jane," by Anna Alice Chapin; New York, G. P. Putnam's Sons.

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Mary Roberts Rinehart is the only author who has a long length book in the Braille type. In the recent movement by authors who paid the expenses of having one of their stories put into Braille for the use of the blind, Mrs. Rinehart had the five stories which make up one of her latest published books, "Love Stories" (George H. Doran Company) set in Braille at her own expense. Mrs. Rinehart has just returned to Pittsburgh after several weeks spent in New York.

PHILIP GIBBS

Philip Gibbs, famous war correspondent and author of "Now It Can Be Told," is now Sir Philip Gibbs. News of the conferring of knighthood upon him for his distinguished service during the war has just reached America. Simultaneously the Harpers announce that "Now It Can Be Told," Sir Philip's new book in which he makes the revelations that he was forced to withhold before, has gone into its third edition.

THE YOUNG DIANA

He spoke with a business-like formality, and Diana, smiling, nodded. "I should acquiesce," she said, "if I could give you name?"

She rose from her chair and went to the window. It opened out to a small private garden, facing the Mediterranean, and she stood there as in a dream, looking at the deep splendor of the southern sky. One of the bright stars of the moon itself shone just opposite to her, like a splendid jewel set on dark velvet. She drew a deep breath.

"This is a lovely place," she said, softly. "I wish I could live here."

She made an exquisite picture, had she known it—and had any one of her numerous admirers been there to see her, he might have become as ecstatic as Shakespeare's Romeo. But for herself she had no thought, so far as her appearance was concerned—something weird and mystical had entered into her being, and it was this new self of hers that occupied all her thoughts and swayed all her emotions.

Just before they left Cannes to return to Geneva, Dimitris asked her to an interview with himself and his mother alone. They had serious matters to discuss, he said, and important details to decide upon. She found Madame Dimitris pale and nervous, with trembling hands and a fearful eyes while Dimitris himself had a hard inflexible bearing as of one who had a disagreeable duty to perform, but who, nevertheless, was determined to see it through.

"Now, Miss May," he said, "we have come to a point of action in which it is necessary to explain a few things to you, so that there shall be no misunderstanding or confusion. My mother is now, to a very great extent, in my confidence, as her assistance and cooperation will be necessary. It is nearing the end of April, and we propose to return to the Chateau Fragonard immediately. We shall open the house and admit our neighbors and acquaintances to visit us as usual, but for persons which must be quite apparent to you—you are not to be seen. It is to be supposed that you have returned to England. You follow me?"

Theodora

Florence Irwin, Author of "The Road to Mecca," Has Written of Girl Who Invades Sacred Precincts to Earn Money.

"Poor dear Theodora" is a good name for Florence Irwin's novel. Theodora, indeed: The wonder is that any one should have considered the chronicling of her mental adventures in a Sunday supplement society as worth the while.

Theodora, daughter of a family of name and money, and member of a circle of Puritan respectability and New England exclusiveness, is a sort of Cinderella. A cousin is the beauty of the household to whom all favors go. There is a homely cousin, who is made a drudge, and Theodora's mother, who is the weak victim of the dominating Aunt Augusta. A household that, like many another in England, is struggling to maintain appearances in spite of poverty, is one of dramatic possibility. There is something of the flavor of Mary E. Wilkins, of the old days, in the manner of the first few chapters.

But Theodora does not stay in the staid and prosy Waverley. Instead, she decides that it is her job to go forth into the world to earn money with which the other members of the self-centered circle might live. She takes a place as companion to one of the most exclusive and aristocratic persons imaginable. Theodora has her breakfast served in bed and learns much of the manners of "society" folk. It is a queer world into which she is sent and one in which she is not at all at ease. Theodora's adventures here will delight the young woman who is thrilled by the immense significance of a meeting between an American girl and a prince. There is no price of the blood in the book, but it is that kind of a story.

It is to be recorded that Theodora's head is not turned and that she makes the best of her opportunity to remove some of the hardened exterior from the society leader, to unite two young lovers and to win her own bit of romance. Everything is lovely and Cinderella has her coach and her footman and her prince.

"Poor Dear Theodora," by Florence Irwin; New York, G. P. Putnam's Sons.

"Come-On Charley," Thomas Addison

"Come-On Charley," by Thomas Addison, is a humorous story of how the wise ones tried to take from Charley the millions he didn't have. Charley on thinks he has inherited two millions and, with Mr. Teeters as private secretary, goes to New York to find that his financial reputation has been hit there. With ten thousand available cash and credit based on financial inherited millions, Charley owns Broadway and various streets adjacent thereto.

One after another the different hands of bright boys with gold bricks to sell rally around Charley and supply, much to their amusement, the opportunities that he has based the crack of the stick and a duck figure leaped over the wall.

The action starts in a boys' school where the villain is ousted through one who knew him—he was "Come-On Charley." Brains and a breezy assurance were his chief assets; but opportunity had never knocked so he could hear it. One day as Charley was pushing the balls around at the hotel billiard parlor, a New York lawyer dropped in at the Bennett House and approaching Mr. Teeters, the clerk, asked if Charley Arthur Carter was known to him and, if so, where he might be found. Mr. Teeters, somewhat troubled, so he asked if the stranger was trying to hang anything on Charley. The clerk was informed that the lawyer was trying to hang a fortune of two millions on Charley, therefore Charley was immediately dragged from his Kelly pool game and made to face the amazing facts. And at this juncture of the story is where the fun begins.

"Come-On Charley," by Thomas Addison; Indianapolis, Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"GOLD OUT OF CELEBES," DINGLE

Modern adventure of a piratical twist, fights for love and a maiden in distress, and the old romantic setting of the Dutch East Indies, all are to be found in Captain A. E. Dingle's swift-moving tale, "Gold Out of Celebes."

This is a yarn of a "man standing in Batavia and Tom Little, an enthusiastic salesman lusting for employment. They join forces in the employment of the owner of great interests on the island. There in the land of a thousand pirate stories they find a beautiful young missionary in peril and distress. Quite naturally, without ado and with all the determination and recklessness that is to be associated with the hero of melodrama, they go to the rescue.

Captain Dingle's surprising heroine acts not at all in the manner to be expected. Instead of falling on the necks of her rescuers or of offering them encouragement in the slow work of saving her from the villain, she, apparently, does not wish to be saved. The young men fight in a maze of forest's growth and in another of bewilderment. It is all very exciting and puzzling.

At the close of the story the complicated rings of love, mystery and genuine squalid link up in a plausible chain and there is real gold in Celebes.

"Gold Out of Celebes," by Captain A. E. Dingle; Boston, Little Brown & Co.; $1.75.

"Jane" leaves the home of her step-father after "bawling" him out in most exquisite manner. She joins with a traveling troupe of actors and journeys far into the field of danger with nothing but her good sense and native innocence to protect her.

Jane wins out. She wins over the cowardly efforts of a wop who was trusted too well and she wins with the man worth while. In her winning there is a story to delight the one who likes to follow the amazing escapades of the "Daddy-Long-Legs" heroines.

MARY ROBERTS RINEHART

Mary Roberts Rinehart is the only author who has a long length book in the Braille type. In the recent movement by authors who paid the expenses of having one of their stories put into Braille for the use of the blind, Mrs. Rinehart had the five stories which make up one of her latest published books, "Love Stories" (George H. Doran Company) set in Braille at her own expense. Mrs. Rinehart has just returned to Pittsburgh after several weeks spent in New York.

PHILIP GIBBS

Philip Gibbs, famous war correspondent and author of "Now It Can Be Told," is now Sir Philip Gibbs. News of the conferring of knighthood upon him for his distinguished service during the war has just reached America. Simultaneously the Harpers announce that "Now It Can Be Told," Sir Philip's new book in which he makes the revelations that he was forced to withhold before, has gone into its third edition.

dark, reluctant way—"But—why shall I, in any case, if you wish to go to England, you shall be properly escorted."

"And if you go, will you not come back to us?" asked Madame Dimitris. "I shall be glad to see you. I want to part with you altogether!"

"You shall not, dear Madame. I will come back. And she gently smiled. Here she showed the white Professor Chauvet may want to see me again."

Dimitris gave her a sharp glance. "That old man is fond of you?" he said.

"Of course he is!" And she laughed again. "Who would not be fond of me? Excellent Mr. Dimitris," she replied, merrily. "But that is as it should be. Men of science must be men without feeling. They could not do their work if they felt things."

"I disagree," said Dimitris. "I think—'it is'—just because men of science feel, the brevity and misery of human life so keenly that they study to alleviate some of its pains. And some men, like the White Professor Chauvet, may want to see me again."

"Nothing is useless, surely," put in Diana. "Not even a grain of dust."

"Where is the dust of Carthage?" he retorted. "Of Babylon? Of Nineveh? With what elements has it been commingled to make more men as wise as foolish, as sane, or as mad as the generations passed away? The splendor, the riches, the conquests, the glories of these cities were as great or greater than any that modern civilization can boast of—and yet—what remains? Dust. And is the dust necessary and valuable? Who can tell? Who knows?"

CHAPTER XVIII

The strange spirit of complete indifference and the attitude of finding nothing, apparently, worth the trouble of thinking about, good Diana in such good stead, that she found no unpleasantness or restriction in being more or less a prisoner in her own rooms on her "day off."

The lovely house was thrown open to the usual callers and neighbors, people came and went—the gardens, glorious now with a wealth of blossom, seemed the favorite resort of many visitors to Madame Dimitris and her son—and Diana, looking from her pretty salon through one of the windows which had so deep an embrasure that it seemed to have been cut out of the wall, often watched groups of men and smartly attired women strolling over the velvet lawns or down the curiously kept paths among the flowers, though always with a curious lack of interest. They seemed to have no connection with her own existence. True to his promise, Mr. Dimitris came every day to take her out when no other persons were in the house or grounds, and these walks were a vague source of pleasure to her, though she felt that she would have been happier more at ease had she been allowed to take them quite alone. Madame Dimitris was unwearied in her affectionate regard and attention, and always the greater part of each day with her, displaying tenderness and consideration for her which six months previously would have moved her to passionate gratitude, but which now only stirred in her mind a faint sense of duty.

There was unceasing disappointment among the few, who, during the past autumn, had met her at the Chateau, when they were told she had gone back to England. Harpness de Rouillon was, in particular, much annoyed, for she had made a compact with the Marchese Farnese to enter into close and friendly relations with Diana and to find out from her, if at all possible, the sort of work which went on in the huge domed laboratory wherein Dimitris appeared to pass so much of his time. Farnese himself said

Treaty

Arthur Pearson Scott of the University of Chicago Has Written a Valuable Book on Peace Settlement

The days in which the peace treaty was in the making were so filled with politics and personalities that there are many, doubtless, who feel the need of a same and unbiased review of the events that led to the signing, but of the influences at work and the work accomplished. Arthur Pearson Scott of the University of Chicago has supplied the need.

"An Introduction to the Peace Treaties," a work that not only includes the text of the treaties, but the reasons behind each step taken and the demands made by the various countries.

The book takes each country up to the present day. It shows what was hoped for and what was attained in the past. It also points out the possibilities in the future, the dangers remaining in the Balkans, for instance, and does so in a way to present a world picture as it has been affected by the meeting at Versailles.

Scott makes no plea for a league of nations or for immediate action on the treaty save the little part on the face of his book. He does not allow his personal feelings to color his argument. What he does do is to carry his reader through the time of the making of the treaty, to show the influence wielded by the United States and to review in their proper order the many necessary steps that were taken. The book is one to be read by all who are interested in the understanding of many issues at stake and an appreciation of many problems that must be faced.

"Come-On Charley," Thomas Addison

"Come-On Charley," by Thomas Addison, is a humorous story of how the wise ones tried to take from Charley the millions he didn't have. Charley on thinks he has inherited two millions and, with Mr. Teeters as private secretary, goes to New York to find that his financial reputation has been hit there. With ten thousand available cash and credit based on financial inherited millions, Charley owns Broadway and various streets adjacent thereto.

One after another the different hands of bright boys with gold bricks to sell rally around Charley and supply, much to their amusement, the opportunities that he has based the crack of the stick and a duck figure leaped over the wall.

The action starts in a boys' school where the villain is ousted through one who knew him—he was "Come-On Charley." Brains and a breezy assurance were his chief assets; but opportunity had never knocked so he could hear it. One day as Charley was pushing the balls around at the hotel billiard parlor, a New York lawyer dropped in at the Bennett House and approaching Mr. Teeters, the clerk, asked if Charley Arthur Carter was known to him and, if so, where he might be found. Mr. Teeters, somewhat troubled, so he asked if the stranger was trying to hang anything on Charley. The clerk was informed that the lawyer was trying to hang a fortune of two millions on Charley, therefore Charley was immediately dragged from his Kelly pool game and made to face the amazing facts. And at this juncture of the story is where the fun begins.

"GOLD OUT OF CELEBES," DINGLE

Modern adventure of a piratical twist, fights for love and a maiden in distress, and the old romantic setting of the Dutch East Indies, all are to be found in Captain A. E. Dingle's swift-moving tale, "Gold Out of Celebes."

This is a yarn of a "man standing in Batavia and Tom Little, an enthusiastic salesman lusting for employment. They join forces in the employment of the owner of great interests on the island. There in the land of a thousand pirate stories they find a beautiful young missionary in peril and distress. Quite naturally, without ado and with all the determination and recklessness that is to be associated with the hero of melodrama, they go to the rescue.

Captain Dingle's surprising heroine acts not at all in the manner to be expected. Instead of falling on the necks of her rescuers or of offering them encouragement in the slow work of saving her from the villain, she, apparently, does not wish to be saved. The young men fight in a maze of forest's growth and in another of bewilderment. It is all very exciting and puzzling.

At the close of the story the complicated rings of love, mystery and genuine squalid link up in a plausible chain and there is real gold in Celebes.

"Gold Out of Celebes," by Captain A. E. Dingle; Boston, Little Brown & Co.; $1.75.

"Body and Soul," Allegorical Play

Elizabeth H. Marsh has written a somewhat effective play in which the Body and Soul are the main characters and one that would emphasize the old regret that there is little of love or reverence that survives the life. For the most part the author has handled her subject in a manner dramatic enough to hold the interest and effective enough to invite presentation. It is only when she seeks to clothe her sentiments in poetry that spirit is lost and unfortunately, what should be an impressive ending is lost in some very weak verse. There is the spectacle of Soul saying:

"Now more to you I may not tell. This body swooned, ye know full well. But I must preach, both far and near. What I this night have suffered here."

"Body and Soul," by Elizabeth H. Marsh; Boston, The Cornhill Company, $1.25.

"JANE," A FIERY LIKABLE HEROINE

A red-haired free-living scamp of a girl is "Jane." Filled with an irrepressible sense of humor, a power for banter and a courage as big as the outside she travels through adventure in the frolicsome manner to make most interesting reading. In the character Anna Alice Chapin has done much the same as did Henry St. John Cooper in a recent book, "Sunny Ducrow."

The book does not pretend to be a novel. It has a beginning, a middle, and an end. It has laughs, a few thrills and one or two tears. "Jane" leaves the home of her step-father after "bawling" him out in most exquisite manner. She joins with a traveling troupe of actors and journeys far into the field of danger with nothing but her good sense and native innocence to protect her.

Jane wins out. She wins over the cowardly efforts of a wop who was trusted too well and she wins with the man worth while. In her winning there is a story to delight the one who likes to follow the amazing escapades of the "Daddy-Long-Legs" heroines.

little of his vexation—but he left the trouble almost unmentioned on heart, the news, and without informing Dimitris of his intention, went straight to London, resolved to probe what he considered a "mystery."

Farnese himself said

worked at her tapestry, and last, not least, studied herself. She had begun to be worth studying. Looking in her mirror, she saw a loveliness delicate and well-nigh unearthly, bathing her in its glowing lustre as in a mystic light. Her eyes shone with a melting lustre like the eyes of a child appealing to be told some strange sweet fairy legend—her complexion was so fair as to be almost dazzling, the pure ivory of her skin showing soft flushes of pale rose with the healthful pulsing of her blood—her lips were of a dewy crimson tint such as one might see on the petals of a rose newly opened—and as she gazed at herself and reluctantly smiled at her own reflection, she had the curious impression that she was seeing the picture of somebody else in the glass—somebody else who was young and enchantingly pretty, while she herself remained plain and elderly. And yet this was not the right time to take her own personality for apart altogether from her outward appearance she was conscious of a new vitality—an abounding ecstasy of life—a joy and strength which she had never known before. Her thoughts were full of sensations dominated every fibre of her being, they were not as formerly, connected with any positive human interest. On even days when the moon was showing a half crescent in the sky, and a light wind rustled the hundreds of roses on bush and stem that made the gardens fragrant, she would go to the lake by moonlight.

She made no reply, but at once threw a white coverlet across her shoulders, putting its silk-lined hood over her head, and accompanied him to a private passage which led from the upper floor of the house to the garden.

Dimitris beheld himself of one of the Whosos who is indifferent to the indifferent, all things are One!"

"Sarah and Her Daughter"

Is Tragic Narrative of a Girl's Life in New York's East Side.

From one job to another and from one experience with brute employer to another, Minnie Mendel makes her way in what is called a real story of New York's East Side. "Sarah and Her Daughter" unquestionably is well told and without doubt it has captured much of the color of the ghetto.

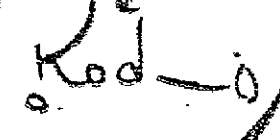

The story is that of a pretty girl who cannot work without selling herself. It is a story of hopes repeatedly dashed, of love dreams dissipated, and of friends found false. Bertha Pearl has heaped so much of misfortune on her small heroine that the wonder is that the book can be so compelling and so interesting.

In the picturing of the friends made by the girl, the painter-lover Louis, big Joe, the gambler, and of Sarah, the mother, the writer has accomplished that which marks the book as one well above the average. She has made of the story a tragic but real life narrative and has given to it the understanding and sympathy that would be possible from no one not a student of sociology and not acquainted with New York.

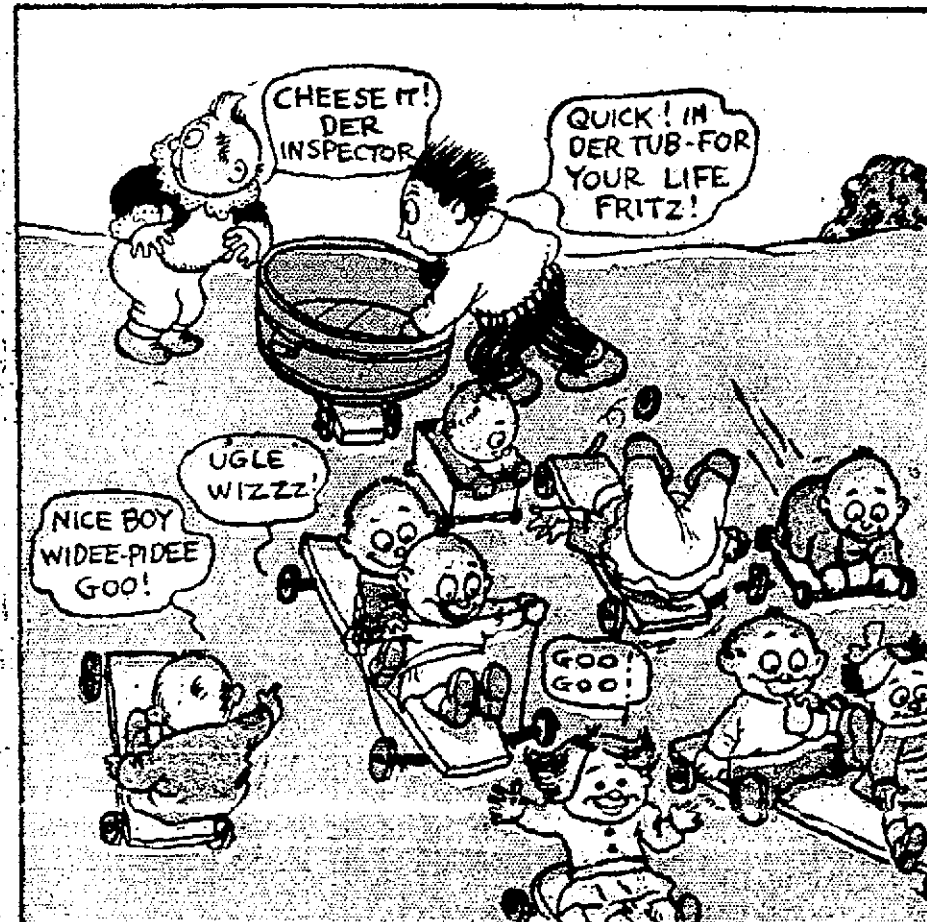

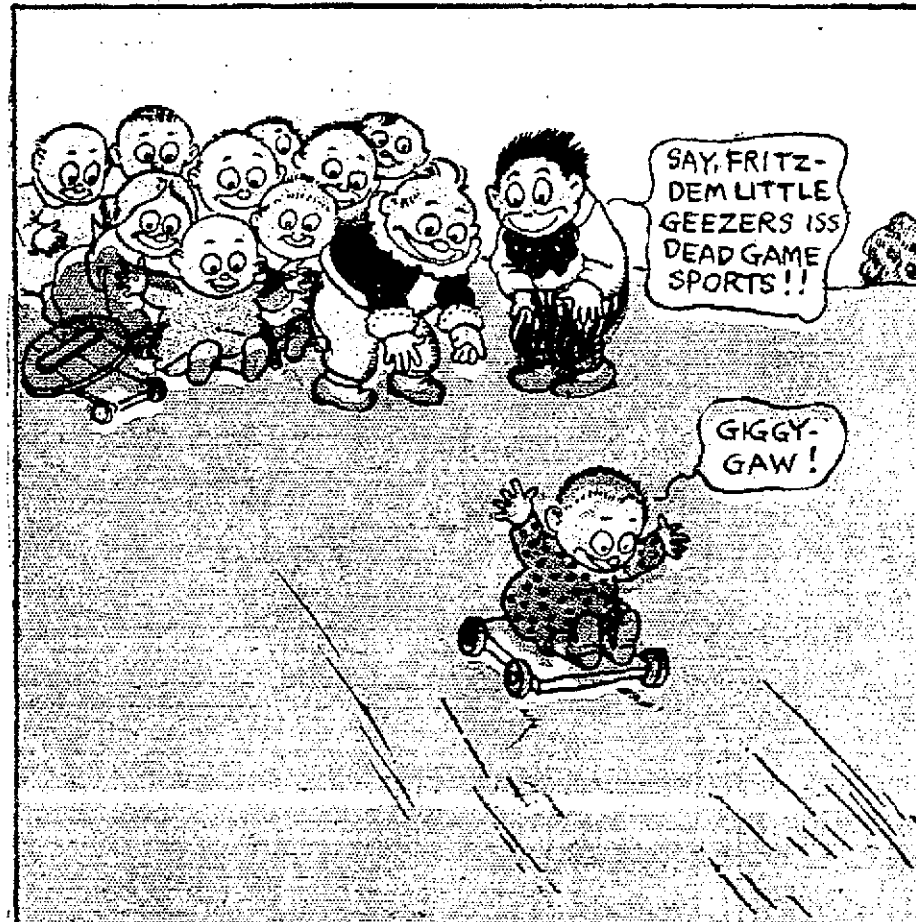

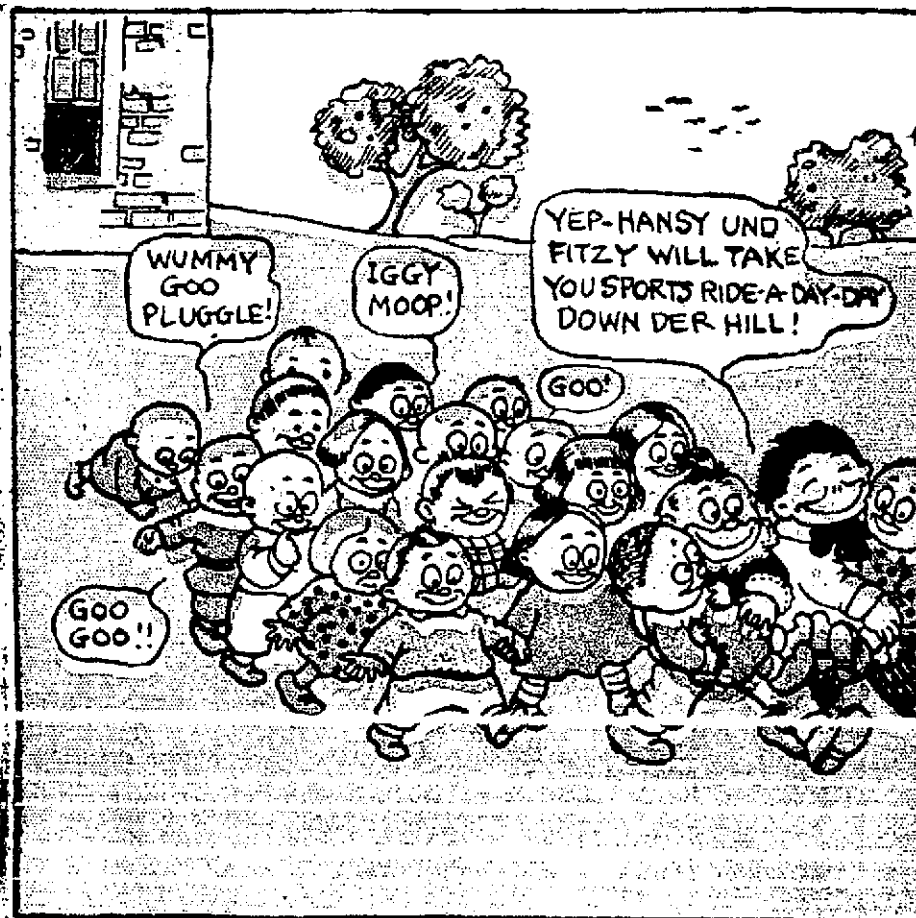

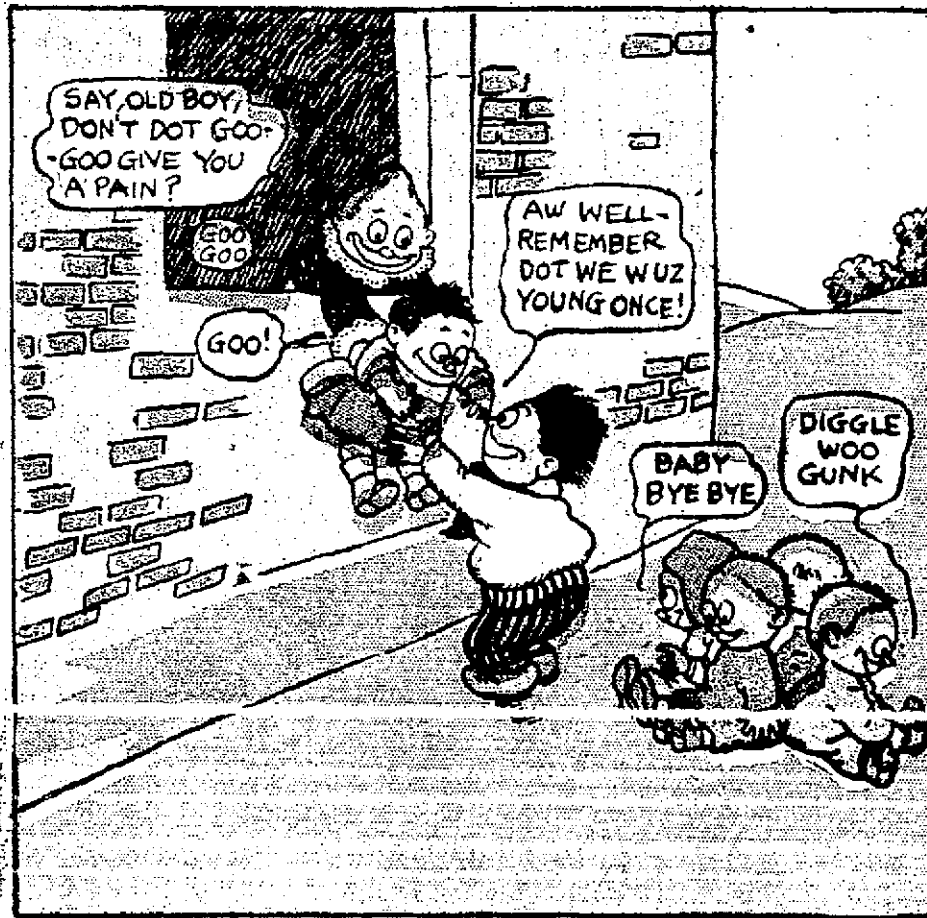

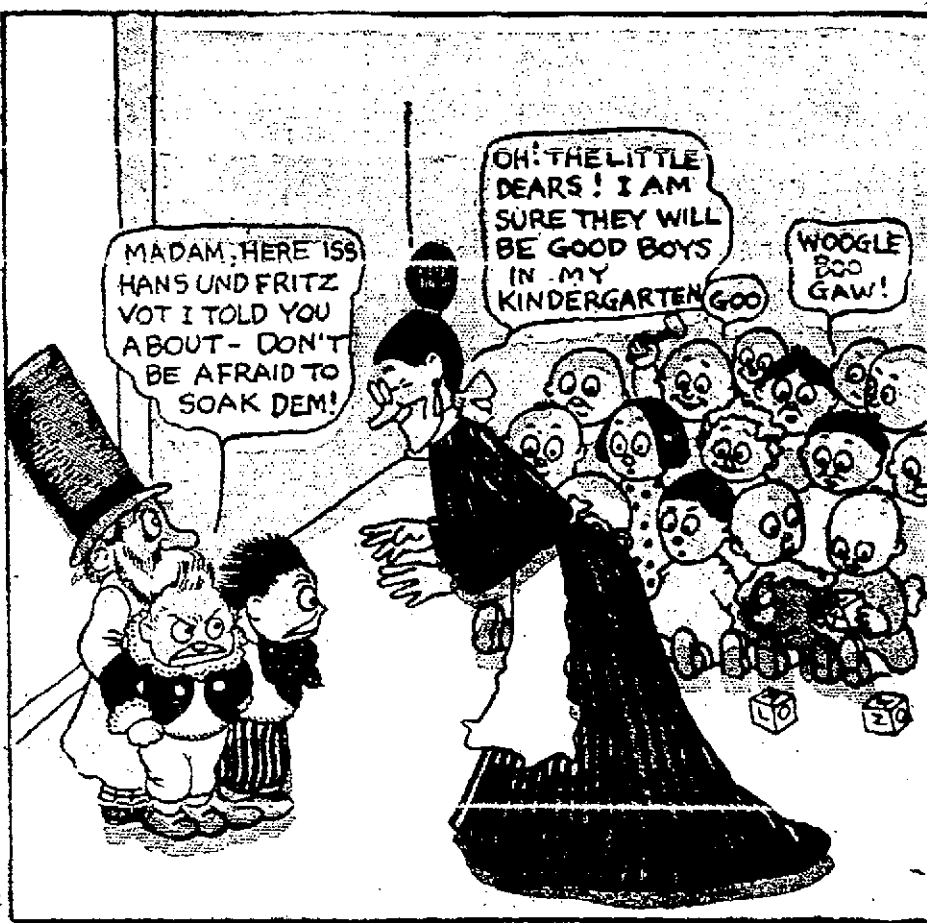

The story starts in the Ghetto and takes its characters out into the larger life of the city. It is in no sense a character story, nor does it caricature any race for popular interest. There are signs of humor in the narrative, but they are few and are all but hidden in the weight of a story that has all of the force of a personal and tragic revelation.

Uncle Wiggily's Adventures

UNCLE WIGGILY CERTAINLY HAD A LOT OF TROUBLE WHEN HE WENT TO BORROW A WASH TUB FOR NURSE JANE. BUT IT ALL ENDED HAPPILY, AS YOU MAY SEE.

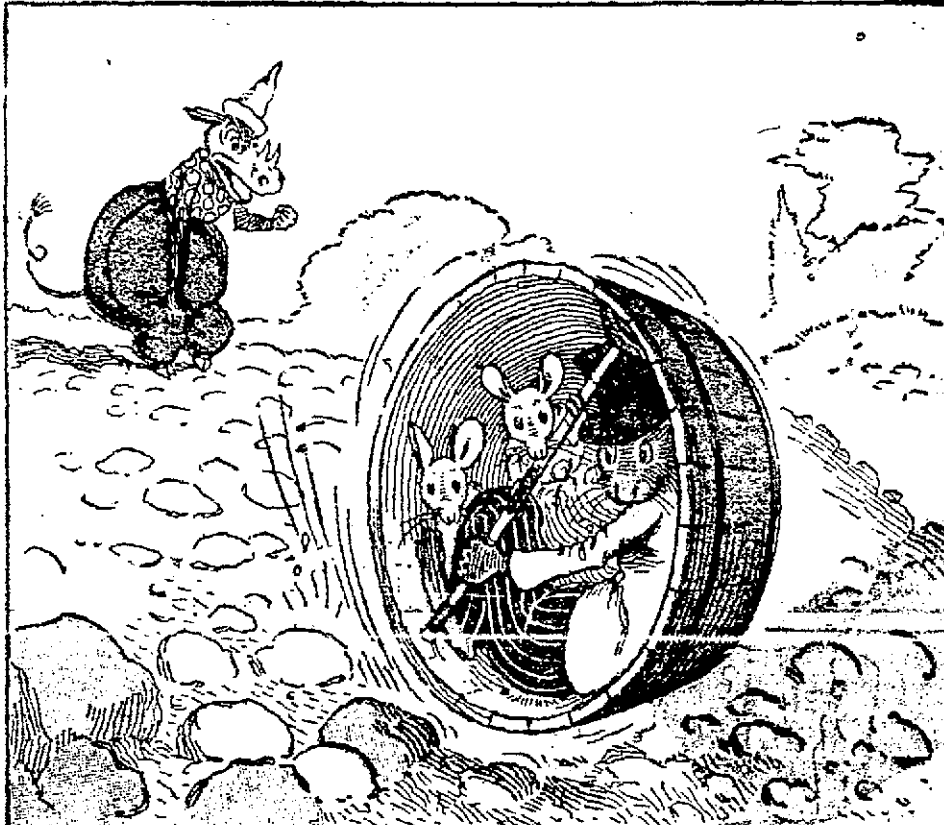

Text by HOWARD R. GARIS

"My dear Mrs. Longtail," said Uncle Wiggily to the mouse lady, as he called on her one morning, "will you kindly lend Nurse Jane a wash tub? Hers leaks." Mrs. Longtail said: "You may take mine; I shall not be washing until the middle of the week." Uncle Wiggily was much obliged and, putting his hat firmly on his head, he got ready to carry the mouse lady's wash tub to Nurse Fuzzy Wuzzzy, his muskrat lady housekeeper. "Oh, may we come?" squeaked Jollie and Jillie, and the bunny said they might.

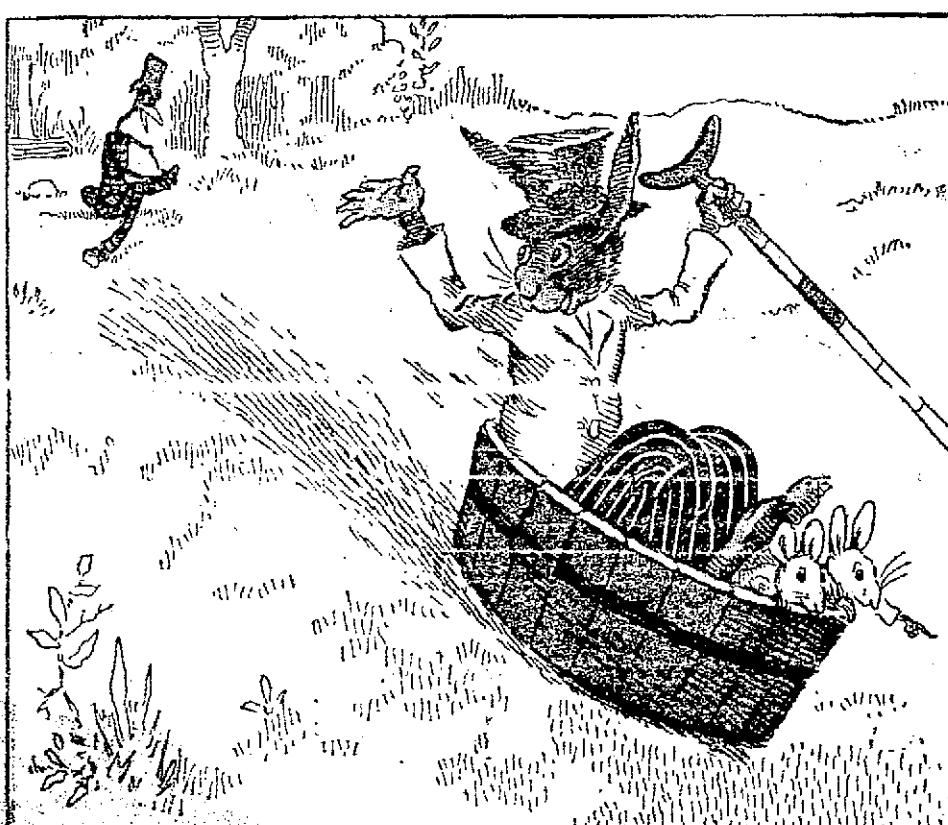

Uncle Wiggily, with the two mouse children to help him carry the tub, started off. They had not gone very far, however, before, all of a sudden, Jollie looked back and cried: "Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Here comes the Pipsisewah after us! What shall we do?" Uncle Wiggily said the only thing they could do was to run as fast as they could, which they did, carrying the tub. "When we get to the top of the hill, just ahead of us," said Uncle Wiggily, "perhaps I can think of a plan to fool the bad, old, chasing Pipsisewah!"

Faster and faster came the Pipsisewah. "Oh, we shall never get away from him!" squeaked Jollie, the little mouse girl, and she was almost going to let go her hold on the tub. "Uncle Wiggily will save us; won't you?" asked brave Jollie. "Yes, I will!" exclaimed the bunny rabbit gentleman. And by running very fast, they reached the top of the hill before the Pip. "Get into the tub and we'll roll down!" cried the bunny, and they did. The hill was so steep and stony that the Pip did not dare slide down. Oh, but he was mad!

It was rather a bumpy ride down the hill in the wash tub for Uncle Wiggily and the mouse children, but at last they reached the bottom safely. Uncle Wiggily's hat was somewhat crushed and his clothes were mussed. "But it's better than being caught by the Pip," said the bunny gentleman, as Jollie and Jillie started to help him carry the tub again. Just then Jollie looked back and cried: "Here comes the Skeezicks!" Sure enough, there he was, coming by leaps and bounds. "We must run again!" said Uncle Wiggily. "Come on!"

Keeping a tight hold of the tub, Uncle Wiggily ran on with Jollie and Jillie. The Skeezicks ran fast, crying: "Wait! Wait! I want to get some souse!" But did Uncle Wiggily wait? I guess not! Just ahead he saw a smooth, grassy hill. "We'll coast down that instead of rolling in the tub," the bunny gentleman told the mouse children. And, reaching the hill top, they got in the tub and began to go down. The Skeezicks was just going to chase after them, but he stubbed his toe so hard on a stone that he had to go down and rest.

It was a real, jolly coast the two mouse children had down the grassy hill with Uncle Wiggily. But, no sooner had they reached the bottom, than the Squiggie Bugs cried: "Here comes the Bazumpus!" Surely enough, on came the bad chap. "Dear me!" said Uncle Wiggily. "It seems that everyone is after my souse today. We must run again!" But Jollie and Jillie were so tired they could not run any more, so Uncle Wiggily put them in the tub and carried them. On came the bad old Bazumpus. How can Uncle Wiggily escape?

Uncle Wiggily could not run so fast when he had to carry the tub and the mouse children also, and soon he became very tired. The Bazumpus was still coming on. Just ahead of him Uncle Wiggily saw a pond of water. "I know what I'll do," said the bunny, as he saw the Bazumpus turn his head backward for a moment. "I'll hide under the tub with Jollie and Jillie, and put my crutch in the water. The Bazumpus will think we have swum over." Up came the bad chap. "They have escaped!" he said, as he saw the floating crutch.

Uncle Wiggily and the mice children kept very still and quiet under the tub while the Bazumpus was near. But finally they heard him say: "Yes, they must be on the other side of the pond now. This empty tub is of no use to me. I'm going home." Then he turned away, and Uncle Wiggily and Jollie and Jillie crawled out from under the tub. Jillie got Uncle Wiggily's crutch, and they were just going to travel on again, when the mouse girl cried: "Oh, here comes the Crozokus! He's worse than the Bazumpus!"

There was only one thing for Uncle Wiggily to do and he did it. Quickly he put the tub into the pond. Then he stuck his crutch up in it for a mast and fastened on his red handkerchief for a sail. "Get in!" cried the bunny gentleman. They did. Uncle Wiggily shoved off with a tree branch, with which, afterward, Jollie steered the wash tub boat. And, just as they sailed off over the blue water, along came the Crozokus. Oh, how he gnashed his teeth, for he could not swim an inch! And so Uncle Wiggily and the mice got away at last.

27 SCHOOLS HOLD RACES ON MERRITT

Immaculate in white duck crew uniforms, many with colorful trimmings, giving a holiday aspect to the big crowd, 378 boys and girls representing 27 schools and organizations engaged yesterday afternoon in a successful presentation of the annual spring regatta of the Oakland municipal recreation department at Lake Merritt.

Thousands crowded the lake front as bands blared and as the boys and girls in their rowing suits began their competitions.

Participation by United States naval training crews and by a crew from Stockton high school gave a broader aspect to this year's regatta than ever before. There were twelve events, including a life saving demonstration.

With Fire Chief Elliott Whitehead as referee, C. R. Grinnett as starter, Samuel Daugherty as starter and Edith Sanderson as rowing director, the races started promptly at 1 o'clock and lasted until after 4 p. m. Miss Hilda Clute and C. T. Hawes and F. Crawford, both of Coast Island, were judges.

GIRLS WIN FIRST EVENT

Oakland Women's Rowing club won the first event, which was an eight drill, with Miss Barnard's school second. Frick school, with Cleveland second, took event Number 2, the fifth and sixth grade girls' cup race. Event 3, the fifth and sixth grade boys' cup race, was won by Frick with McClesney second. There was a dispute over the outcome of event 7 and it will be held at a later date. In this event the United States naval training station was declared winner over the Polytechnic college of engineering.

The results of the day follow:

Event 1—Four drill, women's club. Won by Oakland Women's Rowing club, Miss Barnard's school second.

Event No. 2—Fifth and sixth grade girls' 220-yard race. Won by Frick school; Cleveland school, second.

Event No. 3—Fifth and sixth grade boys' 220-yard race. Won by Frick school; McClesney school second.

Event No. 4—Seventh and eighth grade girls' 220-yard race. Won by Frick school; International second.

Event No. 5—Seventh and eighth grade boys' 440-yard race. Won by Claremont; Grant school, second.

Event No. 6—Open race for women, 440 yards. Won by Miss Barnard's school; Oakland Y. W. C. A. second.

Event No. 7—Open race for men, one mile. Won by U. S. naval training station, Polytechnic college of engineering, second. (Award disputed.)

STOCKTON GETS PRIZE.

Event No. 7—High school boys' race. Won by Stockton high school; Oakland Technical high school, second.

Event No. 8—Open race for men, one mile. Won by U. S. naval training station, Polytechnic college of engineering, second.

The schools entered in the races were Oakland high, Fremont, Barnard, Technical high, Cleveland, McClesney, Frick, Marquette, International 1 and 2, Hawthorne, Melrose Heights, Claremont, Grant, Washington, Lafayette, Lakeview, San Lorenzo, Polytechnic high, Polytechnic school of engineering, and Stockton high. Other organizations which participated were Women's Rowing club, California cotton mills, Y. W. C. A., U. S. navy training station and U. S. receiving ship, Boston, crews.

The board of playground directors, nearly all of whom were present, were Professor H. Kower, president; H. B. Perkins, vice president; Lynne Stanley, Mrs. Adelle F. Mosher and Mrs. Georgiana Hodgman, Jay B. Nash, superintendent of recreation, acted in a supervisory capacity.

Reserve Tickets To Convention For Oakland Fund Subscribers

Blanks May Be Obtained at Chamber of Commerce
Headquarters.

Every subscriber in Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda to the entertainment fund of the Democratic national convention is to be given first chance to reserve tickets to the great gathering in San Francisco next month on the basis of one season ticket for each $100 subscription. Subscriptions on this basis were opened yesterday at the offices of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, following a meeting yesterday of the non-partisan committee appointed by Mayor Davis. The Berkeley Chamber of Commerce will handle subscriptions for that city and the Alameda Chamber of Commerce is expected to take care of its city.

According to those who have attended national political conventions, $100 for a season ticket is a "bargain price." Frequently as high as $350 has been paid at other conventions for a single admission ticket, particularly when the proceedings were expected to be exciting. The Democratic convention gives promise of being exciting all the way through.

The non-partisan committee, headed by George W. Hatch, also discussed the matter of entertaining the Democratic delegates and their families on this side of the bay.

Several Couples Are Divorced Cruelty Causes Marital Woes School Teacher Quits Soldier

Today dawned upon a number of readjusted Eastbay households as a result of an extraordinarily busy Saturday in the divorce departments of the superior court. Divorces which entailed a husband's false accusations against his wife, a soldier's confession that his marriage was only for money, or another's cruelty to his spouse, were either allowed or sought.

Howard Sweet, Berkeley civilian engineer, now at Grimes, Cal., wrote a letter of apology to his wife, Mrs. Gertrude Sweet, telling her he had been a brute when he threatened to put her out of their home if she did not accept his wishes, according to evidence introduced before Judge J. S. Church, who granted her an interlocutory decree of divorce yesterday.

She had army record of Stafford Wellborn, now at Camp Taylor, Kentucky, was revealed before Judge J. J. Trabucco with the hearing of the divorce suit instituted by Mrs. Julia H. Wellborn, a school teacher.

Declaring her husband had spent over twenty months of his service with the army in the guardhouse and went to France as a prisoner, with the result that she never obtained an allotment because it was used up in fines Mrs. Wellborn also charged her husband with associating intimately with other women and with writing endearing letters to them.

Mrs. Wellborn was granted an interlocutory decree but did not ask for alimony.

That Eugene N. Skinner made the declaration that he only married her for money, not for love, and that he would throw acid in her face if she ever started divorce proceedings, are the allegations made by Mrs. Laura G. Skinner in a suit for divorce filed yesterday.

Two black eyes received by a wife from her husband are self-evident of extreme cruelty without the wife stating whether they caused her physical and mental suffering, in the opinion of Judge George A. Sturtevant. Mrs. Violet Henderson testified that Willard E. Henderson, an employee of the O'Connor sanatorium at San Jose, gave her two black eyes when he came home intoxicated. Mrs. Henderson received an interlocutory decree with

TICKETS TO NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

To the Public—The Eastbay cities have been invited to participate in entertaining the National Democratic convention, meeting in San Francisco next month. Across the bay they are raising a fund of $200,000 for that purpose and only $25,000 is asked of us. The non-partisan committee in charge of the participation of the Eastbay cities has decided to issue reservations for season tickets to the convention for each $100 subscription. These tickets will admit to every session of the convention. Blanks subscriptions at the offices of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, east wing of the Hotel Oakland, 2198 Shattuck avenue, or Alameda city hall.

and reached the collection of a series of automobile rides provided. It is also possible that a number of ship launches may be staged for their benefit.

Those present at the committee meeting, in addition to Chairman Hatch, were:

Mrs. James C. L. Donohoe, Edgar L. Ormsby, J. P. Maxwell, J. C. Downey, H. S. Carpenter, C. H. Brockhagen, E. A. Vandewater, W. W. Johnson, J. E. Knowland and R. M. Fitzgerald.

gates in both conventions are unpledged. They are going to be very practical politicians who will not lose sight for a minute of the fact that the main consideration is party success in November. They are going to take up the candidates one at a time and talk them over with other delegates and try to get a line on the actual potential strength of this man and that.

If there is a common opinion at Chicago among the delegates from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan, for instance, that Smith has a better chance of carrying those doubtful States than has Jones, Jones is not going to be nominated. No matter how much he may be favored in some of the smaller or less doubtful States, for the delegates from the States that are safely Republican and those which are conceded to the opposition are going to be swayed very largely by the opinions of the delegates from the doubtful States.

It may be that the delegates from the doubtful States will prefer to take a chance on Brown, who has been scarcely mentioned as a possibility. Brown at once will become a "dark horse" possibility of very formidable proportions. At San Francisco the situation will be very much the same, except that "who does the President want" will certainly have equal right with "who is wanted by the doubtful States," for it now has been conclusively established that no man who does not meet White House approval can command a majority vote at San Francisco, much less the two-thirds necessary to a nomination.

PARIS, May 22.—The proposed financial conference of the League of Nations to be held in Brussels has been postponed until early in July, it was announced today.

Fresno County Put Under Quarantine by State For Rabies

(By United Press)

SACRAMENTO, May 22.—The State Board Health today placed Fresno county under quarantine for rabies.

Action followed the failure of the supervisors of Fresno county to enact a drastic ordinance compelling owners of dogs either to muzzle the animals or keep them from the streets.

The quarantine will last six months, during which time no dog can be moved about within the county nor between counties. All dogs must be chained to premises of their owners.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Makes Food Taste Good Creates an Appetite Aids Digestion Purifies the Blood

Promotes assimilation so as to secure full nutritive value of food, and to give strength to the whole system. A well-known Justice of the Peace in Indiana says Hood's Sarsaparilla made "food taste good," as after taking three bottles he eats three hearty meals a day, works hard and sleeps well. It will help you to do this. Fifty years' phenomenal sales prove its merit. Prepared by educated pharmacists. Get a bottle today.

Round Trip Balloon Service Projected

AKRON, Ohio, May 22.—Daily round trips between Detroit and Akron are to be made by a huge dirigible beginning next fall. This mammoth airship is to carry mail, express, freight and passengers. The trip to Detroit, a distance of 150 miles by air line, is to be made in three hours.

Gifts to Soldiers In Paris Warehouse

PARIS, May 22.—The most hotly debated mystery of the war—"Where did the parcels go?"—has been solved in part by a Y. M. C. A. agent in Paris.

Rummaging through a warehouse in an attempt to classify the heterogeneous mass of stocks which remain to be sold, he came across thousands of packages of all sizes and shapes, piled high to the ceiling. Many of the parcels had been opened and an assortment of presents intended by their senders two years ago for the boys in the trenches were scattered about the floor.

Candlesticks were used in England in the days of King Edgar.

Methodists Endorse Theater Going Ban

DES MOINES, May 22.—The Methodist general conference today had under consideration the report of the convention of the state of the church regarding the paragraph of the church discipline prohibiting members from playing cards, attending theaters or engaging in other worldly pleasures. The report, which advised against repeal of this paragraph, was adopted by the committee by a vote of 66 to 25. Thirteen editors of the Methodist publications were elected. They include:

California Christian Advocate, F. M. Larkin; Pacific Advocate, Edward Mills.

Big Sisters Will Give Entertainment

The first of a series of entertainments planned by the Big Sisters of the Public Welfare League for their smaller sisters, the girls of the California Girls' Training Home of Alameda, will take place in the auditorium of the Y. W. C. A. Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The object of the entertainment is to provide some of the home comforts and means of recreational exercise that the average girl enjoys.

LEAGUE IS NEEDED SAYS LORD CECIL

By EARLE C. REEVES, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, May 22.—An ardent plea for the league of nations, in which he pointed out the growing danger of a new world war, both at home and abroad, was made today by Lord Robert Cecil, M. P., chairman of the executive committee of the league of nations.

Lord Cecil, who has been one of the strongest European supporters of the league of nations since the idea took form in the peace conference, declared that the masses are firmly opposing the proposal for a league of nations, even though the masses are opposed to getting everything they want into the covenant.

PLEA FOR LEAGUE

The speaker admitted that the league of nations could not prevent war under present conditions, but he said that the league should have been utilized in an effort to prevent the present hostilities between Russia and Poland. He called upon the British government to put the strength of the league behind the league and thus lead the world.

Lord Cecil's statement, which was made exclusively to the International News Service, followed.

I am profoundly convinced that the present league of nations is quite ineffective for the purpose for which it was formed, namely, the prevention of war. But that does not mean that it is a waste of effort. I think it could be.

But it must be worked out and enforced by people who believe in it.

I fail to realize the machinery of the league of nations, which has been established between Poland and Bolshevik Russia, was most serious.

I see no reason why the league machinery should not have been put to its proper use this spring. It may be well that the opportunity is now past.

Talk about the league being powerless is really fantastic.

FIELD FOR OPERATION.

"Poland and Russia both urgently need economic relations with the powers forming the league council."

It is manifest that the nations that consent to these relations will give the league a lot of immense power.

It is no answer to say that Russia refused to receive the investigating committee which the league of nations projected to send into that country. I doubt it that is the true construction that should have been put upon the answer to the league's representatives to Russia. It is no way affects the question of league.

In order to restore Russia's economic life the world would have been ready to accept the league's mediation in the Russo-Polish dispute.

The real question is: If the British government is earnest? Will it put at the power of the empire behind the league covenant which it accepted both in spirit and letter?

If the government is in earnest in this respect we can lead the world."

Killing of One Man Used Up 395 Shells

By the United Press

PARIS, May 22.—Artillery is such an expensive way of killing that no one but a madman would ever hope to hope to enjoy this means of getting rid of his enemies.

This is the conclusion of a report filed with the French Academy of Medicine on how many shells it took to kill a man during the war. It requires 75 shells to wound a man and 395 to kill one.

Other statistics kept by individual artillery officers in limited sectors demonstrated that often the average number of shells required to kill a man was 800.

Actress 83 Years Old Plays London Parts

LONDON, May 22.—Miss Genevieve Ward, the star of half a century ago, has just astonished the British theatrical world by taking different parts for a week in the anniversary revival of Shakespearean plays.

Although eighty-three years old, she played three different parts in the course of twenty-eight hours. And she said she did not feel the strain.

"I doubt a few people came just to see me break down," she said, "just as they would watch a trapeze performer expecting every moment to see him fall. And they were disappointed."

High Prices Laid to Two Main Causes

LONDON, May 22.—C. A. McCurdy, Great Britain's food controller, said high prices today are due to two main causes.

First, there is actual scarcity of world commodities such as food, clothing, coal, iron and all sorts of manufactured goods due to depletion of world surplus stocks during the war and to war activities.

Second, there has been a tremendous inflation or watering of paper money by the belligerents.

Drive Launched On High Priced "Spuds"

PITTSBURGH, May 22.—An organized effort to bring down the price of potatoes is under way here.

The movement was initiated by the Pittsburgh branch of the International Growers' Association, which adopted resolutions asking the public to be conservative about the price of tubers.

Restaurant owners, clubs and grocers are to be distributed all over the city to a "people of this ban."

Ohio Voters Will Pass on Single Tax

COLUMBUS, O., May 22.—A proposed constitutional amendment adopted by the Ohio State Value Taxation League, which provides for abolition within nine years of all taxes except on the value of land, probably will be submitted to the voters of Ohio at the next election.

Former General Price has approved a number of the proposed amendment.

Mrs. Wilson Hites Church

LONDON, May 22.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the President, has sent a contribution to a fund for restoring the historic church of St. George's, Gravesend, near London, where the remains of the Virginian Princess Pocahontas are interred.

Pittsburg to War On Baseball Pools

PITTSBURGH, May 22.—The cleanup of the baseball pools and lotteries is starting early in Pittsburgh this year.

And we will continue it in the future in the same way that we have in the past, on an old-fashioned honest policy of giving the best possible value that we can---one hundred cents' worth for one dollar, and more if we can---quick sales and quick turnover of stock and a small profit---nothing stays in stock here very long, we don't carry any old stock and so our goods are generally fresh, clean, new merchandise, and we're generally in a position to make advantageous purchases. Here are a few instances of them and you will find the values and prices exactly as stated---exceptional.

the supervision of Mrs. M. D. Wagner.

Every imaginable variety of baby was represented. There were dark babies and there were light pink babies. There were tiny infants and there were babies just beginning to crawl. There were chubby babies and there were thin babies. There were round, roly-poly babies, and there were little thin mites, who were a great deal of proper care to bring them up to normal. There were irritable youngsters, who let it be known to the audience by crying and yelling. And there were happy dispositioned babies, who let their joy in living be known by going and crawling.

It was no easy task to select the winning 100 per cent babies out of this wide variety. However, after much comparing and contrasting, the following were chosen as the winners of the contest:

WINNERS ANNOUNCED.
Infant Class—Lucille Johnson, first place, received a merchandise order.
In the 1 to 3 year old class, Beatrice Packoury, first place, received an attractive Kiddle Mar.

The children were judged according to their height, weight, general condition and conduct.

They were examined by Dr. Drenan, the health center doctor, who gives at least an hour a week free to the examining of children and prescribing of the children brought to the center. She was assisted by Dr. Pen-on and Walker. After all the babies had been examined, there was a short program consisting of musical numbers and a health play. Five pupils of the school, in addition to the three were exhibits of the proper infant clothes, toys and material for clothing. These were displayed over by members of the Smith-Hughes class, some of whom also have short talks to the mothers on infant feeding.

Prescott is the largest of the four children's health centers that have been started in Oakland, under the direction of Dr. Alvin Powell, director of the main Health Center at thirty-first and Grove. The other three are at the Laker, Tompkins and technical high schools. Dr. Edna W.
Walley is acting director of these centers and Miss G. N. Whitton is superintendent.

CARE OF CHILDREN.
Besides examining and caring for the babies of the community, the center is also looking after the children in the first three grades of the school. By giving these children to become healthier and happier, they hope to live up to their slogan, "Save the Youngest." The children that are found to be more than ten per cent below normal, according to the standard height and weight scales, are put into nutrition classes, where they receive special attention.

Amely, breakfast and lunch. The menus for these meals, that are prepared by the school cafeteria and served by the Smith-Hughes girls, are arranged by Miss Florence La-mke, and are such as will furnish the best building material for the children. A graduate student of the nutrition department of the university of California comes once a week to play health games with the children and to tell them appropriate tales, thus interesting the children in cultivating the proper habits of health.

CILLE JOHNSON; right, BEATRICE PACKOURY. Sketch

Program for Teachers at U. C. Summer Music School

By ROY HARRISON DANFORTH.
The program in music to be offered in the University of California
summer session at Berkeley, from June 21 to July 31, has been planned primarily for teachers who desire to take advantage of the latest methods of instruction in public school music and of the suggestions for choral and orchestral material suitable for grammar grades and the high school, according to Dean Walter Morris Hart.

Frederick Alexander, head of the department of music at the Michigan State Normal College and director of the Normal Conservatory, Ypsilanti, Mich., will again be in charge of the department. Mr. Alexander will offer courses for the university chorus, the repertoire being selected mainly from the masterpieces.
He will give a course also in the history and appreciation of music. In addition he will conduct an evening chorus, which will appear in public concert during the summer.

With Alexander will be associated Miss Madge Quigley, who will give two courses in harmony and ear training. Miss Lillian Cunningham, head of the school music department, college of music, University of Southern California, will give three courses in school music—music for primary and grammar grades, high school music and music for supervisors. Miss Cummings was for five years head of the music department of the State Normal school at Brookport, N. Y. She is a graduate of the Crane Institute of Music, New York, and of the music supervisors course of Cornell University.

Sascha Jacobson, pupil of Carl Fleisch, will give two courses in orchestral practice. Mr. Jacobson made his artistic debut in New York in the autumn of 1916, with the New York Philharmonic orchestra, playing the Brahms concerto. With Miss Marie Mikova he is planning a series of concert-recitals for the coming season.

Students of music contemplating university courses during the summer session may obtain additional information upon request to the University of California.

DANISH DRAMATIC TENOR WILL SING Much interest musically has been aroused by the announcement that Fovl Bjornskjold, a Danish dramatic tenor with a number of years' experience, will give a recital
Thursday evening at the ballroom of the Hotel Oakland. He will be assisted by Esther Wiesner, violinist, and Frederick Maurer, pianist.
In addition to several groups of Scandinavian songs he will offer several Wagnerian arias and Cadmus and other lyrics.

BERKELEY ORCHESTRA WILL GIVE CONCERT
The Berkeley orchestra, which recently gave so successful an initial concert in the Berkeley high school auditorium, announces a second concert for the evening of June 3. The orchestra is directed by Estor H.

Embs, supervisor of music in the Berkeley schools, and its membership includes some of the most capable amateurs in the city. This is the first concert of the orchestra, not only of artistic ability but of a fine and serious spirit.

The orchestra has opened its books for associate membership applications. By such memberships, nominal in cost and entitling the holder to admissions, it will be supported. Adolph Bach, Berkeley, 2201-J, is secretary, and is in charge of receiving such applications. Any member of the orchestra will also see that applications are filled.

CITY BAND PROGRAM
A new march, "Aahms Temple," by Rosander, dedicated to the Aahms Temple Shrine band of Oakland, will be played as a feature number by the Oakland Municipal band at this afternoon's concert in Lake Merritt. Secretary Henry P.
Vogt of the board of park directors, manager of the band, announced the following program today for the coming concert:

"The Star Spangled Banner," march by Dr. John Philip Sousa; "The Arab Chief" (Thomas); two popular numbers, (a) "When My Baby Smiles at Me" (Maurer),
(b) "Let the Heart of the World Go
By" (Ball); waltz, "Lysistrata" (Lincke); ballet music, "Aida" (Verdi); intermission; overture, "Jolly Fellows" (Sousa); waltz, "The Castle of Dreams" (Tierney); (b)
"My Baby's Arms" (Tierney); general, "Ermeline" (Jakovlev); fantasy, "Hands Across the Sea" (Tomas); march, "Aahms Temple" (Rosander), dedicated to Aahms
Shrine band of Oakland; "America."

MISS SIMPSON PRESENTS PUPILS
A concert will be given at the Twentieth Century Club in Berkeley, Tuesday evening, by Ethel Long Martin and Winifred Williams, two gifted artists, pupils of Elizabeth Simpson. Mrs. Williams is a member of the San Francisco Musical Club and was recently chosen as the youngest soloist of the club to play on an important program given by the Federation of Musical Clubs at the St. Francis hotel, where she was most enthusiastically received. Mrs.
Martin has played with marked success before the Twentieth Century Club of Berkeley, the Sorosis, Chancellery Auxiliary and the Laurel Hill clubs of San Francisco and the Oakland Club.

CECILIA CHORAL TO SING AT GREEK
The half-hour of music in the Greek theater at the University of California this afternoon at 4 o'clock will be given by the Cecilia Choral Club of fifty women's voices, under the direction of Percy A. R. Dow.
The club will be assisted by James Edwin Ziegler, baritone; Miss Daisy Foster, Edgar Thorpe, pianist.

The group will be sung by Mrs. Florence
H. Brown and the chorus. Other soloists of the club will be Mrs. W.
L. Turner and Mrs. H. S. Engle.
The half-hour of music on June 12 will be given by the McNeill Club of Sacramento, a men's choral organization, also directed by Mr. Dow.

PIANO PUPILS TO BE PRESENTED
Miss M. Laura Prentiss will present a group of her piano pupils, many of them from this side of the bay, at Sorosis hall, San Francisco, the evening of June 2. Among those to participate will be Claire Israel, Miss Mildred Miller, Miss Florence
V. Riese, Marvin E. Kirshbaum, Galvin, Miss Francisco, O. Daris,
Thomas J. Hill, Miss Lillian R.
Davis, Miss Lucile J. Chase, Mrs.
Henri H. Lillie and Miss Esther L.
Guthrie.

YOUNG SINGERS HEARD IN RECITAL
An interesting song recital recently was given by the pupils of Mrs. Ruth Waterman Anderson and Carl Edwin Anderson at their studio on Randolph avenue. Mr. and Mrs.
Anderson participated in the program. The pupils appearing were Elsa Sternberg, Anita Avila, Albert
E. Norman, Francis Currow, Mrs.
L. R. Dupich, Thomas Corder, Lu-dian Lundgren, Myrtle Glenn, Theodore Cooke, Marguerite Weaver and Mrs. A. D. L. Hamilton.

MANY IN VOCAL AND PIANO RECITAL
Music lovers gathered Friday night at the Unitarian church to hear an interesting recital given by the vocal and piano pupils who have been studying with the Oakland teacher, T. Wilmet Eckert. A program including classic and modern selections was rendered. Among those who took part were the Mesdames Mary Perryman, Edith Kuzman, Lillian Johnson, Barbara Barnett, Esther Wiede, Jeanie Berry, H. Jones, Beatrice Stork and Mrs. Mitchell; the Misses Virginia Diller, Gladys Moore, Emily Moore, Edna Bartels, Gladys Warren, May-bell Duncan, Maybell Richmond, Sue Runkle, Irma Deardoff, Dorothy Groves, Zaida Nicely, Fredericka Berry,

sona Gault, Elsie Knopp; Harold Earhart and Masters Vincent Gold, Styles Soderstrand and John Fones.

WEDNESDAY MORNING CHORAL TO CLOSE
The Wednesday Morning Choral, an organization of women of religious interest and artistic ability under the direction of Paul Steindorff, after an interesting year's work will close the season with a musical to be given in the local clubhouses on the afternoon of June 2. Mr. and Mrs. Newton A.
Koser will entertain the women of the choral, their husbands and escorts on the evening of June 4, at their new home on Hillside avenue in Pro-mont.

ETUDE CLUB TO PRESENT PROGRAM
The Etude Musical Club will make its third annual appearance in concert at Heights of Columbia hall, Thirteenth street, near Grove street,
Tuesday evening. The Etude Club is an organization of colored men and women of vocal and instrumental ability. Their previous programs have been admirably rendered. A feature of their work is the rendition of negro spirituals, which they sing with beauty and faith and with an authentic ability at interpretation that is rarely to be met elsewhere. The club is the support of the children's home and of the Old People's Home, has been set for this concert.

ORGANIST GRADUATE WILL GIVE RECITAL
Mrs. William H. Rost (Gertrude Blanchard), who will be graduated in June from the College of the Pacific at San Jose soon, will give her graduating recital there Wednesday evening. Mrs. Rost is organist and choir leader at St. Francis Episcopal church, organist of three local churches of the Episcopalian and conductor of the Glenview and Oakland Chamber choral clubs.

IN CONCERT PROGRAM
An interesting program recently was given by the pupils of Mrs.
Grace La Paro, pianist, at the studio of Melrose Heights. Those participating were Miss Teresa Healy, Miss Bertha Freeman, Mrs. E. Luning,

Again California Art School Wins Against Whole Field

By LAURA BRIDE POWERS.
Again the California School of Fine Arts, in San Francisco, Lee Randolph director, walks off with the big end of the honors at the Students' Art League, New York.
As in the past three years, the school on the top of the town has carried off 70 per cent of the scholarships in direct competition with all the art schools of the country, the largest of them securing one each, or in rare instances, two.

And the 1920 record is six winning out of a possible ten.
Here are the youngsters that have won for themselves a year's tuition in the New York institution, where, by the way, Frank Van Sloan, gone from these many months, is teaching—and incidentally wearing his young life away to get back to San Francisco:

Marie Leininger, Marguerite Miller, Svend Barfod, Emily Michaels, Lucy Johnson and Regina Jan-ney.

At the graduation exercises at the school, followed by a link and a dance —and students' dances are not like anything else on earth for spirit and fun—the winners of prizes were announced. And they ran like this:

MORNING LIFE CLASS
Lee Randolph, instructor.
Painting—First prize, Marguerite
West Miller; second prize, Cecil Gregory; honorable mention, Sammy Fong, Cio Damianakes.
Drawing—First prize, Edwin Greaves; second prize, Florence
Leary; honorable mention, Mildred Oestermann, Ralph Wilkins.
Dr. George P. Wintermute, prize

Miss May Lynch, Mrs. Harry Wales,
Miss W. Mueller, Miss Isabelle Lynch and Miss Garcia.

ISAYE, ELMAN TO FILL AUDITORIUM
At the Exposition Auditorium, in San Francisco, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock sharp, will appear Eugene Ysaye, the incomparable Belgian, and Mischa Elman, pre-eminent Russian violinists. The advance sale indicates that the Auditorium will be filled.

Federation of Art and Museum Movement
It is significant that all over the country discussions are on the boards concerning art museums and their relation to community life. It is following the movement that has created art museums in San Francisco, Oakland, Toledo, St. Louis, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, Pittsburg and, of course, in Boston and the Big Burg, whence all American art is supposed to migrate—but doesn't. At any rate, not appreciably from California, where art actively in an environment designed by God to stimulate the highest aspirations of the soul—our California.

This museum movement is timed with many activities throughout the nation that is concerned with War Memorials—about San Francisco bay, for instance.

The following have come from the the up-and-coming American Federation of Arts, Richard F. Bach, extension secretary:

A good sign of progress in America is the concrete evidence of the work of the American Federation of Art, which held its annual convention the week in New York, at the invitation of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, which celebrates its own golden anniversary. For eleven years this national society, consisting of 224 affiliated chapters in 46 states, besides thousands of individual members, has been building up a reputation for service along lines of inestimable value to the American people.

The convention was held from the 19th and 21st. President De Forest delivering the opening address. Vice-President Hutchinson talked of the extension work of the federation, Francis C. Jones on traveling exhibitions, which constitutes an important part of the federation's work; and Allen Eaton, field secretary, discussed the federation's new venture under the slogan, "Art in the Home."

At the afternoon session three phases of art museum work were discussed: "How to Establish an Art Museum," by George W. Stevens, who has had to solve the problem as director of the Toledo Art Museum; "Museum and Community Centers," by George W. Eggers, who has done much work along these lines as director of the Chicago Art Institute; and "Museum and the Industrial World," by William F. Page, who, as associate in industrial arts at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, has the task of making art collections useful in the practical field of production by maintaining contact with manufacturers and designers.

On Thursday Raymond Wyer, director of the Worcester Art Museum, talked on "Transition Exhibitions." Harold Haven Brown, director of the John Heron Art Institute, Indianapolis, on "Building up Permanent Collections," and John W. Best, director of fine arts at Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, on "Leading Collections." An interesting feature of this session was an address by Miss Margaret W. Stevens, assistant director of the Toledo Art Museum, on "How to Reach the People," a discussion of various methods now used in museums, such as lectures, music, moving pictures, instruction service.

Thursday afternoon was devoted to an examination of the fifteenth annual exhibition on view at the Metropolitan Museum and a demonstration of the Metropolitan Museum's work with children, shown in the form of a children's hour, prepared by the educational department of the museum.

PACIFIC COAST BOWLING ASSOCIATION TOURNAMENT CLOSES AT MARYLAND ALLEYS TONIGHT

WORK OF SAM AGNEW PRACTICALLY CAUSES DEFEAT OF BEAVERS

Sam Ross Loses Tough Mound Duel to Johnny Couch; Seal Catc her, Maisel Star.

By EDDIE MURPHY

Not in a long, long while has a big Saturday afternoon crowd at Recreation Park in San Francisco been treated to such a wonderful exhibition of baseball as was more than eight thousand fans at the baseball park yesterday afternoon when the Seal defeated the Portland Beavers 2 to 1 and thereby clinched the series, taking four wins in five games played. Johnny Couch for the Seals and Sam Ross for the Beavers were the pitchers, and Couch can thank his battery mate, Sam Agnew, that the game didn't run into extra innings or the Beavers didn't win the game. Ross pitched the best game of any hurler at the Oakland or San Francisco diamonds this season. He allowed only two hits, both in the second inning, by Phil Koerner and Willie Kamma. Koerner's hit was a fluke, the ball taking a bad hop as Koerner went to field it.

That hit turned out to be the winning run for the Seals, as it was the only one that counted. The Seals scored in the second inning when Agnew pitched a wild pitch which was caught by the Seals' catcher, Maisel, who then threw to first base to put out the runner, Seal. Seal was the only one who got on base in the game.

AGNEW NIPS THREE RUNNERS. Sam Agnew, who was the pitcher for the Seals, was the only one who got on base in the game. He pitched a wild pitch which was caught by the Seals' catcher, Maisel, who then threw to first base to put out the runner, Seal. Seal was the only one who got on base in the game.

Rebellion Breaks Out in Ranks of Philly Club

CHICAGO, May 22.—Rebellion broke in the ranks of the Philadelphia Athletics here today in their game with the Cubs which the visitors lost 15 to 8. Manager Cravath ordered Rightstetter to short after what he termed "repeated inferior playing" by Dave Bancroft. The shortstop refused to budge and not until after the two men were on the field and Cravath had demanded him to leave did Bancroft give way. Passing the dugout he threatened Cravath and attempted to attack him, players declared, when three teammates interfered and engineered him to the clubhouse.

ANGLERS' NOOK

Feather river fishing is splendid. Some many trout have been caught but the fish taken are large, some of them going as high as three pounds.

Some splendid baskets of fish were taken this week on the Feather river. At present they are biting freely and run to a fair size.

The Mokelumne and Tuolumne rivers are in nice shape now and the fishing is good.

The San Andreas is good fishing grounds at present.

Turning anglers all agree that this is an ideal spot for their favorite sport.

It Williams reports that he had some nice bass fishing on the Russian river near the bridge at Monte Rio.

"Good fishing at Dos Rios," reads a wire from that place.

Some two and three-pound fish were taken on spinners last week on the Mokelumne river. The waters are clear and the fish are plentiful.

Garda river fishing is getting better as the weather warms up as last week good catches were made. Camped on this river reported that the trout were easily had and that the fish averaged six inches.

Red fishing is great now. The warm days have been the means of bringing large numbers of trout to the river.

From the wharf at Point San Quentin, one of the largest squid that have been seen around here were taken on trawlers. One fisherman had twenty fish that measured about eighteen inches long.

On the Berkeley wharf there have been many baskets filled last week with these fish.

Striped bass have begun their run in earnest as from all points we hear of numerous fish and large catches.

The best places to gather striped bass is at Richmond, Port Costa, Martinez, Redwood and the Sacramento river.

PROMINENT VISITING BOWLERS

Prizes Will Be Awarded Here Today

Today will see the termination of the most successful tournament ever held under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Bowling Association. Oakland will be the scene of the closing ceremonies and the prizes will be given out.

As many as ten teams have entered in a tournament, and that the city has come through in grand style is needless to say. Visiting bowlers and their families will be leaving the city in the next day or two well pleased with the treatment accorded them.

This evening at the Maryland Bowling Alleys where the tournament has been conducted, the association will be the main attraction. All the star teams of the tournament have signalled their intention of entering among them being the Philadelphia, Detroit, and the Chicago teams.

Admission is free to all. The tournament is a great success. The prizes will be given out to the winners of the tournament.

Some two and three-pound fish were taken on spinners last week on the Mokelumne river. The waters are clear and the fish are plentiful.

Garda river fishing is getting better as the weather warms up as last week good catches were made. Camped on this river reported that the trout were easily had and that the fish averaged six inches.

Red fishing is great now. The warm days have been the means of bringing large numbers of trout to the river.

From the wharf at Point San Quentin, one of the largest squid that have been seen around here were taken on trawlers. One fisherman had twenty fish that measured about eighteen inches long.

On the Berkeley wharf there have been many baskets filled last week with these fish.

Striped bass have begun their run in earnest as from all points we hear of numerous fish and large catches.

CHICAGO, May 22.—Rebellion broke in the ranks of the Philadelphia Athletics here today in their game with the Cubs which the visitors lost 15 to 8.

Manager Cravath ordered Rightstetter to short after what he termed "repeated inferior playing" by Dave Bancroft. The shortstop refused to budge and not until after the two men were on the field and Cravath had demanded him to leave did Bancroft give way.

Passing the dugout he threatened Cravath and attempted to attack him, players declared, when three teammates interfered and engineered him to the clubhouse.

AGNEW NIPS THREE RUNNERS. Sam Agnew, who was the pitcher for the Seals, was the only one who got on base in the game. He pitched a wild pitch which was caught by the Seals' catcher, Maisel, who then threw to first base to put out the runner, Seal. Seal was the only one who got on base in the game.

Ninth Inning Rally Gives Oaks Scare

Billy Hamilton Aids in Scoring All Runs Made by the Oaks.

SACRAMENTO, May 22.—The Oaks won a ball game from Sacramento today three to two but they got a terrible scare in the ninth inning when the Rodgers crew came within a run of tying the count.

The Oaks snared a pair of tallies in the seventh inning, Billy Hamilton starting things with a single after Knight had fanned. Arlett drew a walk and Spellman cracked one to score. Hamilton hit into a double play, Schang found time to score while Cady and Orr were being disposed of. Sheshan hitting for the pitcher, walked but was forced by McGaffigan for the third out.

Arlett entered with the runner on the Oaks and allowed nine hits. Walter Mails went eight frames and was ranked sixth in the league for his. Kuntz pitched the last inning. Mails was touched for seven batters.

"Carry Your Uniform or Quit."

HOW ZEIDER DREW RELEASE

"I'll Quit Before I Carry It."

Rollie Zeider, second baseman, captain and assistant manager of the Oaks, was given his unconditional release by Manager Del Howard yesterday just before the game started at Sacramento.

Howard notified the players that they were to report at the depot 6:45 to go to Stockton for the Sunday morning game and that the players would have to carry their own baggage.

"That's a heck way to travel and I'm not going to do it," said Zeider. "All right," replied Del. "You're through with the Oakland ball club right now and your transportation to Oakland will be waiting for you after the game."

"That suits me fine," replied Zeider, and the incident was closed. Zeider took off his uniform and turned it in and then sat in the grand stand and watched the game. He met Howard at the hotel later and received his transportation.

DEL'S NERVES RAGGED. Over the telephone last night Howard said there was no ill feeling between the player and himself, but added Del. "There is enough to contend with the way things are going without one of the ball players acting like a prima donna."

Zeider has not done much good for the Oaks since he joined the club in the spring. He has been "anathema." Too many years in the big leagues spoiled him for the minors.

Howard intimated last night that he would put another infielder on the payroll tonight. In the meantime Del says Billy Hamilton is playing swell ball.

"Del Howard is the manager. He can hire and fire as he sees fit. I don't think the Oaks will be weakened by the loss of Zeider." This was Cal Ewing's only comment last night.

SEVEN FISHING CRAFT IN PORT

Seven fishing vessels arrived from Tacoma yesterday and docked at the Standard Gas and Engine Company's wharf in Oakland. The vessels were built in Tacoma for a San Pedro fishing concern. They were equipped in the northern city with gas engines built by the Standard Gas and Engine Company of Oakland, the motors having been shipped north and installed.

On the way down the coast the fleet ran into a 60-mile gale, but the vessels weathered the pounding and arrived safely in port. The fleet will leave the Oakland harbor in a few days for San Pedro, where the vessels will be engaged in the fishing industry.

This is the first fleet of motorized fishing vessels that has ever entered the Oakland harbor.

COAST TIRE CO. READY TO WORK

The State Corporation Department, under the signature of Colonel Bellows, has granted a release to the funds of the Coast Tire and Rubber company, held in escrow by the First National bank. This means that the company has lived up to all the requirements imposed by the state in floating the company and that all money paid by subscribers is now available for the construction of the new factory.

E. Lawhorn, general superintendent of the Coast Tire and Rubber company, is in Oakland on a flying visit from Akron. During his visit he found time to buy a home in Broadmoor which will be convenient to the new factory on East Twelfth street, between Forty-eighth and Fiftieth avenues. Lawhorn regards the threatened shortage in tires quite seriously and is leaving for Chagway Falls to hasten the shipment of the heavy machinery in order that the new Oakland factory may commence production on or about September first.

TEN NEW HOMES.
Waddell took out building permits for ten new bungalows to be built on Humboldt avenue near the station in East Oakland. They will average $3700 each. J. M. Waddell has the contract.

NEW APARTMENTS.
M. Tucker has given a contract to James M. Rich for a two-story, seventeen room apartment house on Kueld avenue near Van Buren, for $18,500. Construction is already under way.

CALIFORNIA'S GROWTH OF COTTON BIG

From a production valued at $14,000,000 in 1909, to $35,000,000 in 1920, notes the growth of the cotton industry in California. Previous to 1909 the cotton was scarcely raised here at all, it being but a more than an experimental position. Imperial Valley then had the entire monopoly of the industry and then it was that J. R. Miller, president of the California Cotton Mill Company, bought a large production at the small price obtained.

In his opinion, the future of the cotton industry in California is incalculable, its possibilities being beyond estimate. Not only can it be raised here at a cost of 40¢ per pound more than in the old territory of the south, but the price of the product here is vastly superior.

Moreover, no boll weevil infests here, as there, and no adverse weather conditions intervene critical times in cotton development, to follow the product or less the yield. And with these advantages California produces superior cotton.

MONEY IS REFUSED.
Miller has just returned from an ended business trip to eastern states. Of financial conditions he observed that a group of leading banks of the metropolis are refusing loans for speculative purposes, where Liberty Loan bonds are offered as security. Absolute refusal of speculative money was the rigidly enforced, he said, and while abundant money was offered for conservative business on reliable business reputation, illustrating the causes of high prices of commodities, he cited a recent instance taken from the experience of his own trade. Cotton towns, he said, sold by his concern at 80¢ per cent, and owing to the multiplicity of speculating, speculative barmenles lying upon the price-foretelling chambers of all classes.

He spoke of the recent government experiment in Chicago, where a pair of identical shoes were displayed in retail windows priced, in instance, at $3.55 per pair, and the other at $12.50 per pair, just off the street, wherein 11 pairs of the higher priced were sold before a pair at the lesser were taken. It is an illustration of encouragement to profiteering which reckless speculators now offer.

FROM FIVE MORE MILLS.
The future of Oakland as a cotton manufacturing center, though raw material must be brought to it, he said that atmospheric conditions which enabled a saving in which more than the compensation for the freight outlay, while California's increased yield wiped her higher wage scale, in the end and factory.

There is room here, he said, for fast increase in cotton mills, as there is a certainty of a vast increase in fibre production. Confessing, having just closed several very successful contracts for plants, Miller modestly refrained from detailing any prospective extensions of his own enterprise.

Yosemite Park Co. Opens Oakland Office.
The Yosemite National Park company, which controls practically all of the concessions in the Yosemite Valley, including the Sentinel Hotel, and the Glacier Point Hotel, and at Yosemite Falls, El Capitan, Red Lake, Tenaya Lake, Tuolumne Meadows and elsewhere, with a cable car, automobile service, general store and general camping village, has opened an office at 20 Broadway.

Wheat production in the United States has increased more than 1200 per cent in eighty years.

Many Sales Reported by Broadmoor Tract Dealer

Sales totaling more than $70,000 in three weeks is the report of J. B. Caldwell, the Broadmoor "Exposition of Homes." According to F. R. Caldwell, manager of the Broadmoor Park office, the location points to a total of more than $150,000 in sales for the month of May. Caldwell further states his report that at the tract the Lower Company Tells Of Business Growth

As evidence of the tremendous industrial development proceeding in a city, Manager F. H. Woodward of the Oakland office of the Western Over Company, furnishes the following statement of extensions, additions and improvements authorized to be made in this district, between April 15 and 25, just passed, the aggregate these improvements amount to $154,755.50 and cover a variety of necessary work. All street wires on Franklin street are being placed in underground ducts; 300 poles throughout the tract are being replaced, where defective, re-braced and painted; a new telephone line for the company is being built from Dives ave-

WILL GUARD CALIFORNIA FROM PESTS

J. Fred Seuberg, county horticultural commissioner, returned during the past week from the Western Plant Quarantine Conference, which was called by the governors of all of the western states and of Canada and Mexico, to consider the question of quarantine regulations by each state or province against the others. The delegation from California consisted of G. H. Heckie, State superintendent of the department of agriculture, Fred Mayhew, superintendent of the quarantine department, and Fred Seuberg, experts upon quarantine regulations.

The conference was of vital importance to California, which state is particularly free from agricultural pests, and which has strict regulations governing the importation of seed and plants from other states.

291,000 car loads of agricultural products valued at over $700,000,000, said Seuberg, "and it is to keep this immense crop free from taint that our delegation attended the Salt Lake conference. The idea of the whole conference was to see where each state and province could help each other in enforcing their local quarantine regulations and not against ill feeling. For instance, it is of vital importance to us that the boll weevil and the pink boll worm be kept out of our cotton."

"Our cotton is the long staple, Egyptian variety, and is finer than the original. It is, as yet, free from these pests, which have broken out in Texas, and we must keep all taint away from our cotton fields, which now reach to Fresno. On the other hand, our potatoes are badly infected, and we must keep the fields of Idaho and Oregon free from our pests."

"There were delegates present from Canada, Governor Cantel of Lower California has promised that no one can enter his territory without a permit from an American plant inspector. Director Heckie has elaborate plans for guarding California against the importation of any pests. The conference was very fruitful, for we are going to have the cooperation of all states to the north, east and south of us."

GROWERS OF BULBS SURE OF SUCCESS

By WILLIAM METZNER.
One reason why many people do not succeed well in growing bulbs is for want of a proper understanding of the natural blooming and also dormant periods. Just about the time bulbs come into bloom many amateurs catch the planting fever and rush pell-mell to procure a supply, and if successful in finding them plant only to be disappointed. The natural growing period has passed and the bulbs, with exhausted vitality, because kept out of the ground too long, fail to respond, are weak and sickly in growth and seldom produce even a weak flower. The grower is disappointed, perhaps the bulb was also.

When the hyacinth, narcissus and tulip are in bloom in the garden or in the house, the grower should regret if you must your failure to plant them, but remember, easier by far to raise successfully, always sure to bloom and producing spikes which bloom even indoors than on your plants, is the wonderful modern gladiolus, the commander-in-chief of all bulbous plants.

The old-fashioned gladiolus in our grandmother's garden, an ugly, fiery brick and yellow mixture, without beauty or form, weak in stem, planted in some corner of the garden, eventually pulled up and destroyed as a worthless unsatisfactory creation, about as valuable as many weeds.

"Not so with the modern type of hybrids, crossed and bred up until one questions 'is it possible to make further improvement.'"

To one with 50,000 or more seedlings, all the result of careful crossing of selected types, under constant observation, the answer is, "no development is only in its infancy."

Where former standard types produced flowers 1½ inches in diameter under the same cultivating methods 1½ inches is but ordinary and many types average 6½ inches in diameter. Where one or two flowers would be in bloom on the spike at any one time, now 8, 12 and 14 or more open down to perfect form on sturdy spikes are quite common; where spikes produced in all 12 or 15 buds, now they show an improved species 25 to 35 buds.

Cut the spikes, when the first flower opens, bring them indoors, place in a vase of water and see them develop, one after the other, until the uppermost bud has displayed its beauty. The development in color has been even more pronounced. Strong brilliant shades of scarlet, cherry, crimson, maroon almost to black, salmon and coral tints, rose, orange, omelette, royal purple and brilliant yellow lend beauty to the color scheme.

Then we have the softer and more delicate units of cream, flesh, primrose, amber and maize, lavender, heliotrope and old rose, yes, every conceivable tint or fashionable shade produced by the dr's skill nature showers upon the wonderful garden gladiolus.

Blended shades of colors, never clashing, always beautiful, blooms which in their blending and richness of color excel the glory of autumn leaves, surely a riot of color.

Today the California hybrid gladiolus equals if it does not excel the very highest recognized standard of color and form produced by the world's best hybridizers; while far outstripping its eastern or foreign rivals in the vigor, strength and size of flower and spike.

Slowly but surely the eastern and foreign grower is turning his eyes to the California grand prize strains of gladiolus, and well he may. We have forged so far ahead in the limited run that with the promising novelties now in course of development the same fate awaits the standard varieties of the present that befel the old-fashioned type in grandmother's garden.

ABANDONS RAILROAD LANE.
The Ocean Shore Railroad has applied to the Railroad Commission for permission to abandon and remove its line running from Santa Cruz north to Davenport and Swanton. When the Ocean Shore line was projected construction was begun from both ends of the line at once, but the road got into financial difficulties before the two sections were connected. There is no prospect of the completion of the line, and the lower portion is now to be entirely abandoned, the Southern Pacific serving the action affected.

DEVELOP THE ARTISTIC SIDE

Planting to suit each individual style of building will, with each recurrent spring, afford new opportunity to study and develop artistic effects in planting as well as in the selection of new flowering plants merely for a change.

The first thought in laying out your grounds should concern the shape and size of beds. Use Nature's long, curved lines, lay out the beds close to the buildings and about the boundaries, keeping the center of the lawn clear.

Some evergreen trees of the many hardy varieties are advisable for winter adornment, in between which various spring and summer flowering plants, shrubs and fall berry growing varieties should be tastefully arranged.

Lay out your beds, the surface slightly higher than the lawn, avoiding severe straight lines, and do all the planting in a similar naturally irregular way, avoiding also in this all straight lines and sharp angles. Devote the borders of the beds to perennials and the low bulbs, such as tulips, hyacinths, daffodils, etc.

A proper regard to color scheme of buildings, aiming always for contrast in the environment, will maintain a perpetual freshness and distinctive charm about the house.

A typical Broadmoor scene.

SUNSHINE HOMES HAVE RECORD BREAKING SALE

Home-seekers have found in Broadmoor their Ideal Home Place—but most important, they have come to realize that THE VALUES ARE THERE.

Today is closing day of the Broadmoor Exposition of Beautiful Homes, which opened the first of May, featuring the sale of 67 newly built homes. Of the 67 but 10 remain. Today 10 more homes completed during the week will be thrown open for inspection. A number of homes are in the course of construction and 15 are ready to start. With this record—there is little question that there is more activity in the building of homes and sale of property in Broadmoor than in any other one section in the county.

Visit this Wonderland today—come out to Broadmoor and bask in the sunny home atmosphere, enjoy the blossoms and flowers. Here, you will find a Show Garden of Nature's beauties; here, you will find one of the most highly developed residence parks close to the heart of the city.

THE PRICES RANGE FROM $4250 TO $8500

Terms as low as $500 down—and the balance at $45 a month. These convenient payments may be had if desired—in fact you can take a period of twelve years in which to pay, if you wish.

CHIROPRACTIC

 So the People May Know

When the Medical Board started their campaign of persecution of Chiropractors in December I was arrested for practicing without a license. As there is not a Chiropractic law nor examining board in California, it is impossible to obtain a Chiropractic license. There is a Druggist Practice Act controlled by the Medical Board; they absolutely refuse to give an applicant an examination. They also say they do not recognize graduates of the Palmer School of Chiropractic.

As the medical doctors know absolutely nothing about Chiropractic they are not qualified to give a Chiropractor an examination, and when they issue a "suspended license" to an applicant they do not know if he is qualified to practice any health work on human beings.

The people will vote for a Chiropractic Law on November 2. This law will pass by a large majority that will stop medical tyranny.

OBREGON TO PROBE DEATH OF CARRANZA

By GEN. ALVARO OBREGON
Special Telegram to the United Press
MEXICO CITY, May 22.—Telegrams received at my general head quarters last night and today confirmed earlier reports of the death of V. Carranza and six of his soldiers, who have not been identified up to this time.

Available details indicate General Rodolfo Herrero, former federal commander attached to the forces of General Mariel, who accompanied Carranza, precipitated the fighting which resulted in their fatal consequences.

TO INVESTIGATE DEATH.

I have appointed a commission composed of two high military chiefs and two prominent lawyers who will go at once to the scene of the killing and present a detailed report of what happened. The body of Senor Carranza will arrive in the capital at 7 o'clock tonight and will be delivered to his family, according to their wishes.

During the last few days and on repeated occasions I have offered Senor Carranza every kind of guarantees and considerations to the en-that he retire from the danger zone but he continually refused to accept my offers.

MILITARY HONORS.
MEXICO CITY, May 22.—(Special Cable Despatch.)—The ending of the population of Mexico City without distinction or political creed was deeply shocked today when word was received that Carranza had been assassinated.

Restriction In Use of Gasoline Will Not Be Serious If Motorists Are Careful

ECONOMY IS TEMPORARY REQUIREMENT

By JIM HOULIHAN

What is the real truth concerning the gasoline shortage? How long will a fuel stringency exist and how serious will it become? If I take a long trip, will I get 'stuck' in some small town because no garage or supply station can supply me? Why are the oil companies exporting tremendous quantities which they should be forced to keep in this country for the supply of home needs? Is it wise for me to buy a motor car now? These and hundreds of similar queries are being propounded by every man and woman who owns a motor car and by hundreds of others who are on the point of buying one.

The writer has made an earnest effort in the past two weeks to investigate true conditions. He realizes the seriousness of the propaganda which has spread like wildfire throughout the state in a short time, most of it being misinformation instead of an intelligent survey of facts as they really are. Possibly the general public has some reason for groundless rumors yet that which follows is the writer's viewpoint.

CONSERVATISM URGED.

If the present motor car owner is conservative in his use of gasoline, it instead of touring 200 miles on Sunday or over a week and he makes that journey to 100 miles, it again he travels on foot a mile or two each day where he now uses his automobile, he will have saved in his particular case about 30 per cent of the fuel that his car would have consumed with ordinary conditions prevailing in a six months period. If every motorist would put into effect some such system of curtailment it is reasonably safe to claim that strict rationing of gasoline will not be necessary on the part of oil producers. The ration system is likely to come unless the automobile owner, of his own free will, doesn't institute individual economy. By more careful operation of his motor car the owner need not be deprived of the pleasure he obtains from his car, and the manufacturer has not suffered from investing in his favored model.

OIL MAN STATES CAUSE.

E. J. Williamson, local manager of the Standard Oil Co. issued the following statement as his opinion of present conditions:

"While the production of gasoline is being increased by the installation of newly invented devices to secure a larger quantity of the product from crude oil, and while science promises a still greater output in the future, the Pacific Coast will face a gas shortage before the summer is over unless drivers of pleasure cars cut down their consumption of the fuel twenty per cent."

The statement was supplemented by the fact that it was his personal opinion that the supply for pleasure purposes must be cut to seventy per cent of that used last year.

"The gain in production," says Williamson, "is more than made up by the increase in the number of automobiles in use."

Summarizing the situation Williamson said: "There is a palpable shortage of gasoline for pleasure purposes but plenty for essential uses. A great deal of gasoline is being used by persons driving about here and there who could just as well curtail and effect a saving."

"In a way one might say that a ration system is now in effect in this city and section among owners who use Standard Gasoline. The garage and station men know their trade and they act accordingly. Gas is often refused when the demand is for more than is actually needed. Unless the drivers of the pleasure cars save on the supply there will be many who will have to do without."

U. S. OFFICIAL'S OPINION.
Director F. G. Cottrell of the Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior, will say in the June issue of the publication of the California Automobile Association:

"While the gasoline situation appears to be acute in California and other Pacific Coast states, where there was only two weeks supply in February, this is not true in any other part of the country."

"It is undoubtedly true, however, that due to the great increase in the number of automobiles in use today compared with the increase in both gasoline and crude oil, from which gasoline is derived, it is possible that gasoline is being consumed at a rate which will become serious before the summer of 1920 is over. The production of gasoline in February 1920 was about eleven per cent more than in the corresponding month in 1919, but the number of automobiles and trucks in use was about twenty-five per cent greater. The new refining processes which Williamson speaks of, will, it is understood, produce approximately ten gallons of gasoline from a given quantity of crude oil where but six gallons are now derived. A sum in excess of $10,000,000 is being spent on new refining plants at Richmond. How general this new refining principle will be employed through the

LOCAL SHIP BY TRUCK RUN A SUCCESS

Oakland leads the way in the great "Ship by Truck" movement of the country. There was more real enthusiasm in the reception of the Ship by Truck caravan that left this city and toured the nearby counties than in any other in the country. This is the word sent out by Ship by Truck over the all over the country and they know, because they had a chance to see a great number of these demonstrations.

The usefulness of the motor truck was proved to admiring thousands and men who never believed in trucks before now are "sold" on the idea. The propaganda was carried to the uttermost limits of the county, and to nearby farmers and merchants and truck users in general, so that the man who has something to haul will think of motor trucks first, and other means of transportation afterward.

Sixty-one trucks made the pilgrimage and many of them carried capacity loads, others picked up shipments along the run, delivered the merchandise to other cities and then loaded up again. It was a wonderful demonstration of the usefulness of motor trucks.

Over sixty machines made the run, including Uncle Sam's sturdy motor transports.

The committee in charge of the affair had a difficult task but they managed with skill and there was not a kick in the whole event. Billy Moyle, advertising manager of Weaver-Wells Company, and P. M. Fitz of the Firestone ship by truck bureau, head train commander, and the other officials were J. E. Martland and Walter Hesse, manager of the W. L. Hughson Co. make the affair a great success.

Martland had his troubles. It was a tough battle to keep the trucks in line. There was much friendly rivalry among the truck drivers.

Walter Hesse was chairman of the run and Martland train commander, and the other officials were J. E. Le W. M. Tudor, D. S. Jones and R. E. Miller.

The idea of the ship by truck tour was to bring out the fact for the shippers that short hauls can be handled more economically by motor trucks than by railroads.

That this was accomplished is shown by the substantial increase in sales of trucks which have been the direct result of the tour. There have been many orders taken since the truck tour started and this is especially true with dealers throughout the Eastbay district.

Many trucks have been placed in the hands of sub-dealers and this means that farmers will soon be hauling their quotas of supplies from farm to town.

The Eastbay ship by truck tour was a wonderful success, and many a man knows a lot more about trucks now than he ever did before.

Auto Men Hear Loyalty Lecture

A lecture was delivered Friday night in the W. L. Hughson Co. salesrooms by Dr. Breitwieser of the University of California. His subject was "Loyalty and Co-operation" and his audience embraced the working forces of the W. L. Hughson Co., Chanslor and Lyon Co. and the Auto Electric Service Co. More than fifty men and women from these three firms were in attendance.

Here's Sample Plan of Testing Brakes

Here is a simple method of getting correct brake adjustment. Push the pedal forward about two inches and keep it in that position by means of a small block of wood. Then tighten up the turn buckle or other adjustment until the brakes are snug and when the block of wood is removed it will be found that the slack has been correctly taken up.

The Ship-by-Truck tour last week brought to the farmer an idea of how he could speed up his production and get his products to market in a short time. Here are some of the trucks that participated in the tour.

United States is not known, but undoubtedly, there will be a pretty uniform adoption of the method.

SHORTAGE IS TEMPORARY.
The writer doesn't believe the present shortage will continue for much longer than six months. If the leading automobile manufacturers entertained fears of a permanent shortage, and as good business men they have studied the fuel problem closely because their success is allied with a limitless supply of crude oil, they would not, in the past year, have increased and contracted to build from 50 per cent to 100 per cent additions to their plants. The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, in which 90 per cent of the automobile producers are enrolled doesn't take an alarming view of existing circumstances. If this big body did you can lay any wager you wish to that curtailment instead of expansion in production of cars would prevail right now. Instead we see cars being put on the market almost daily and all old line organizations striving with might and main to catch up to a never ending increased demand.

EXPORTS NOT BIG.
From many sources come a wall that exportation of gasoline should be prohibited. General indeed appears the belief that tremendous quantities are being shipped out of the country. I wonder how many people know of the number of automobiles and trucks in use through the world, excluding the United States and Canada. Latest statistics available show that all the countries of Europe have approximately a grand total of 350,000 gasoline propelled vehicles. China and Japan together may have 25,000, but not much more. South America can't boast of 50,000 while the quantity in Australia and South Africa will not exceed an additional 25,000. From the figures just quoted we have a total of 450,000 contrasted to 6,500,000 owned in the United States. The ratio for the entire world outside of America is about 8 per cent of the total number of vehicles used in the United States. It is a known fact that gasoline is a commodity that cannot be hoarded for a long time. Evaporation precludes

RACER TELLS HOW HE WON MILEAGE RUN

By HENRY AMON

(Winner of Class 1 trophy, Grand Sweepstakes and Baker Economy Run, Los Angeles-Yosemite Economy Run.)

Most people have an idea that "the big mileage" records are won in a contest of this kind are largely a matter of trick driving, or special mechanical devices. The accuracy of this thought depends largely upon what you regard as trick driving, and for special mechanical devices, the fact that the contest was held under the auspices and sanction of the American Automobile Association is sufficient guaranty that the cars used differed in no mechanical way from these same stock cars regularly offered for sale to the consumer.

The thing that loses most races and contests is unpreparedness and lack of program. We went into this thing to win, and from the moment we decided to enter Overland, we began to study the car and the road with a view to securing as far as possible an ideal condition. The car selected was one that had been in use for some months, in fact it was used as a service tow car up to a couple of weeks before the event, and had previously been used on the Los Angeles demonstrating track and had had lots of rough usage.

Our first task was to familiarize ourselves with the road. I had not driven the route and as I was to pilot the car, my first instruction from E. B. Wilson, Willys-Overland branch manager, was to learn every foot of it. This we proceeded to do, driving with Wilson as chief observer and making notes of every detail of grade, bend and surface. I drove the race with the record of "log" before us, so that nothing was left to chance or memory and there were no "surprises" in the road ahead.

FRICTION REDUCES POWER.

The same thing is true of the alignment of all wheels to get proper traction. If wheels are not square and true, there is bound to be friction and you are scraping your car over the ground instead of running over it. Friction, power's greatest enemy, must be eliminated everywhere through either lubrication or more perfect adjustment of parts, so that the big fundamental conditioning the car is the search for friction and wherever it shows, to find a cure for it. Another important item is proper adjustment of brakes, brakes that drag eat up an almost incredible amount of power. The biggest recognized item of daily fuel waste is incorrect carburetor adjustment. In an economy run this is the first step in the tuning up process. Last of all comes proper tire pressure—this has a vital effect on mileage. Not only does it effect the ability of the car to roll but it has an important bearing on tire bills as well. It is appalling to consider the money waste on this and new owners should determine the best needed pressure for their car and driving, and faithfully see that their tires hold to it. After we had the car conditioned and knew our road, there came the question of lubrication. The 355-mile jaunt from Los Angeles to the floor of the Yosemite covers about every variety of grade and driving condition. There are many good opportunities to coast, and these are needed to compensate for the grades you pull on the last leg of the trip.

HENRY AMON, OVERLAND PILOT AND THE THREE trophies he captured in the Los Angeles-Yosemite Economy Run

Keep Radiator Full to Protect Engine

In the thermosyphon cooling system it is important to keep the radiator full or nearly so, in order that there may be adequate resistance to keep the water forcing its way forward. It is better to add a little water frequently than to let the matter go until the engine begins to knock for help.

Driving Ease in a

MAXWELL

is Due to Special Steels

Many who drive a Maxwell prefer it to a larger car.

They like its nimbleness, its quickness in getting under way, its peculiar ability to thread its way through traffic, its rare driving ease.

One can drive it farther in a day with less fatigue than many cars much larger.

The reason is clear: its engine pulls no superfluous weight.

Not a single unnecessary pound burdens it.

Special steels in a Maxwell eliminate the useless weight—steels made to Maxwell's own formulae, which equal pound for pound those in any car built.

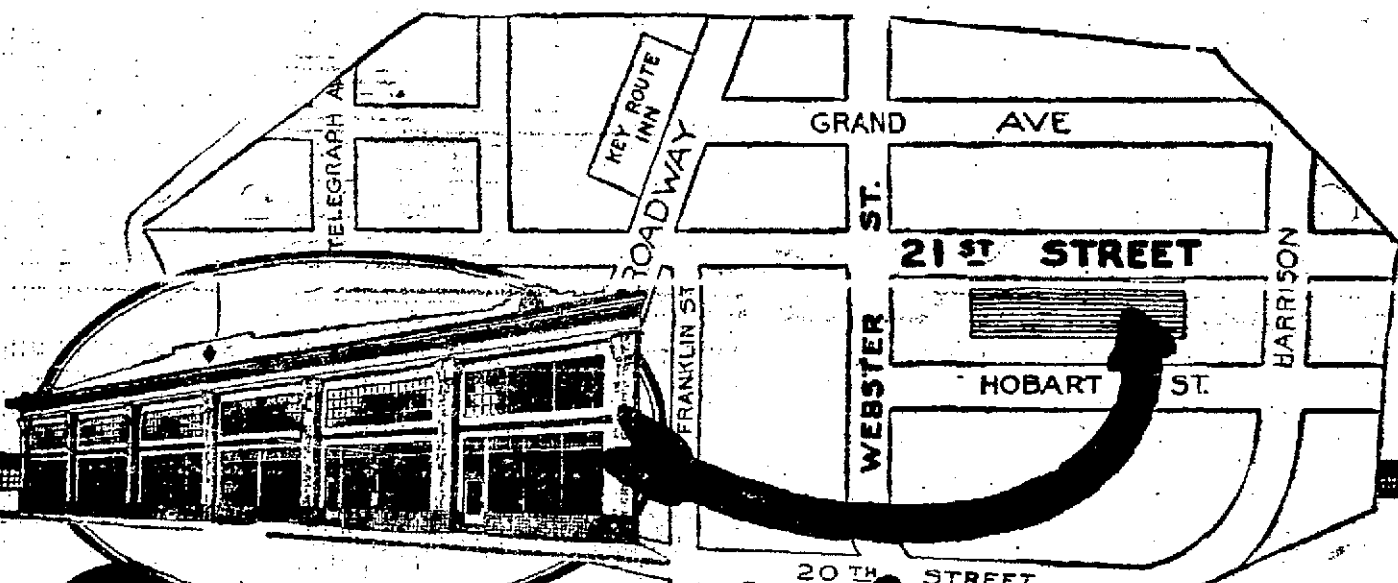

They have extra strength forged into them, and they provide lightness.

This is one reason why Maxwell has won public favor the world over as indicated by nearly 400,000 now in use. How marked the tendency today is recorded by a production of 100,000 for 1920.

Care Is Required in Selection of Roads

Rapidly increasing use of country roads by motor trucks is emphasizing the need of great care in the selection of locations for hard surfaced highways, according to ship-by-truck advocates.

The growing prestige of the motor truck in the short haul transportation field is based largely on its ability to speed deliveries. It is pointed out, its ability to function efficiently in this field is lessened on every grade that requires it to go into-intermediate gear, and on every curve that requires a material reduction of speed.

The production of motor trucks in the United States is represented by no less than 233 companies.

DISPATCH RIDERS WIN TOUR PRAISES

L. W. King and W. N. Ross performed creditably as dispatch riders in the recent TRIBUNE tour to Yosemite and their work received commendation from every one of the participants.

Goodyear equipped Harley Davidson twins were used by each of the riders. Their duties called for riding back and forth between the trail blazing car in the lead and the service ice truck at the rear of the caravan to see that even progress was being made by the numerous entrants. They were instructed with the responsibility of seeing that order was maintained and none of the road rules violated.

Each of the men road at least 225 miles in covering the 225 mile gap between Oakland and the floor of the valley.

DEVICE AIDS MOTOR USE POOR FUELS

A recent invention, devised for the perfection of the automobile motor, is the Lexi-Gasifier, with which the Lexington motor cars are now equipped. This device is used in conjunction with the Moore multiple exhaust system which has been employed on the Lexington car since 1911. Both devices are the inventions of John C. Moore, chief engineer at the Lexington factory.

"There are four ways in which the gasifier increases the efficiency of the motor," according to J. J. Huen, manager for O. N. Hirsch.

"The first of these," says Huen, "is in its production of increased power from a lower grade of fuel—an important item in these days of gasoline shortage. The motor will start quicker and better without choking, no matter what the weather condition. By preventing vaporized gasoline from entering the engine, it avoids burnt-out bearings and scored cylinders, things that are bound to occur where lubricants have been diluted by having been mixed with gasoline."

"The gasifier is economical because it uses every bit of gasoline and prevents the mixing of gasoline and oil, which would make necessary the frequent draining of the crank case."

Firm Announces a Cut in Tire Prices

The Standard Tire Sales Co. announces a cut in prices of tires and tubes, following the present prevailing epidemic of price slashing by their lines. This firm, anticipating the last raise in tire prices last March, purchased a large stock at old prices and they are in position to cut the price if they so choose from the present lists and still make a fair margin of profit. This they have decided to do and are offering reductions from present lists of from 10 to 50 per cent, coming at the opening of the vacation season they should enjoy a successful sale.

Don't Pump Stretched Tire Too Tightly

After a casing has been long in stretching sometimes results, so that it takes longer to inflate it. A stretched tire should not be pumped too tight, and incidentally it is better to fit such tires with an inner lining, as this will add many miles to their useful life.

Sales Manager Named for Local Willys Branch

H. D. BELL, new sales manager of the Willys-Overland Company.

Herbert D. Bell, until last week attached to the Fresno branch of the Willys-Overland company, has been selected by Harold Knudsen to act as sales manager of the Oakland Overland organization. Bell comes to this city with a record of being the highest point winner in the Pacific Coast Willys sales family. Several prizes, offered in recent months to the salesman piling up the largest number of orders have been captured by Bell. He has already assumed his new position.

Auto Comfort Bed Meets Ready Sale

Increased use of the Newman Auto Comfort Bed, an Oakland product, from various sections of the United States is reported by the local manufacturers. The present is the third season in which the Newman camping outfit has been on general sale though its origin dates back quite a few years.

The growing popularity of camping occasions a wider demand for compact and comfortable auto bed outfits and the Newman make will continue to reap some of this trade.

TOP MAKER AGAIN PLANS ADDITION

Following the occupancy of their new building on Webster street, east of Twenty-first, officials of Konrad Gobel's, Inc., top, body building and painting concern announce that they have plans under way for still another structure, equal in size to their present home which will be devoted entirely to work on Dodge Brothers, Maxwell, Chevrolet and Ford cars. While owners of these makes will be catered to at present, they are great enough in number to warrant specialization and such an operating plan can be put into effect in a separate establishment.

News concerning the extensiveness of the Gobel building was detailed in last Sunday's Tribune. It is one of the largest on the coast and houses departments for top-making, body-building and painting.

27 MILES HOUR FOR 120 MILES MADE BY TRUCK

Twenty-seven miles an hour on a continuous journey of more than a hundred and twenty miles including several steep grades is good time for the average automobile but for a three-ton truck to negotiate this distance in such time is unusual. Yet this is the performance of the 2½ ton Day-Elder truck which was entered by Weaver-Weiss Co. in the motor-car dealers sociability run to Yosemite.

Driven by Hart L. Weaver, general manager of the truck division of the Chester N. Weaver Company, distributors of Day-Elder trucks and Studebaker automobiles, the truck in question made the run from Oakland to Merced in little less than four and one-half hours.

LOOSE FENDERS BREAK LAMPS
In cars where the headlamps are fastened to the fenders, looseness in these latter results in excessive vibration, which will account for rapid rubbing of bulbs.

The value of automotive courses which are in operation throughout the army training schools is being recognized by motor manufacturers.

Announcement

The famous Ferris car will soon be here.

This car, one of the best known cars in the country, a new comer to Oakland, is coming as fast as the railroads can pull it here.

Save a date for us, because you will surely want to take a look at this automobile.

It is one of these cars that can be taken into the bosom, and soon become a member, of the family, through sheer merit.

The Message of "Little Heap"

By CHARLES W. DUNCAN

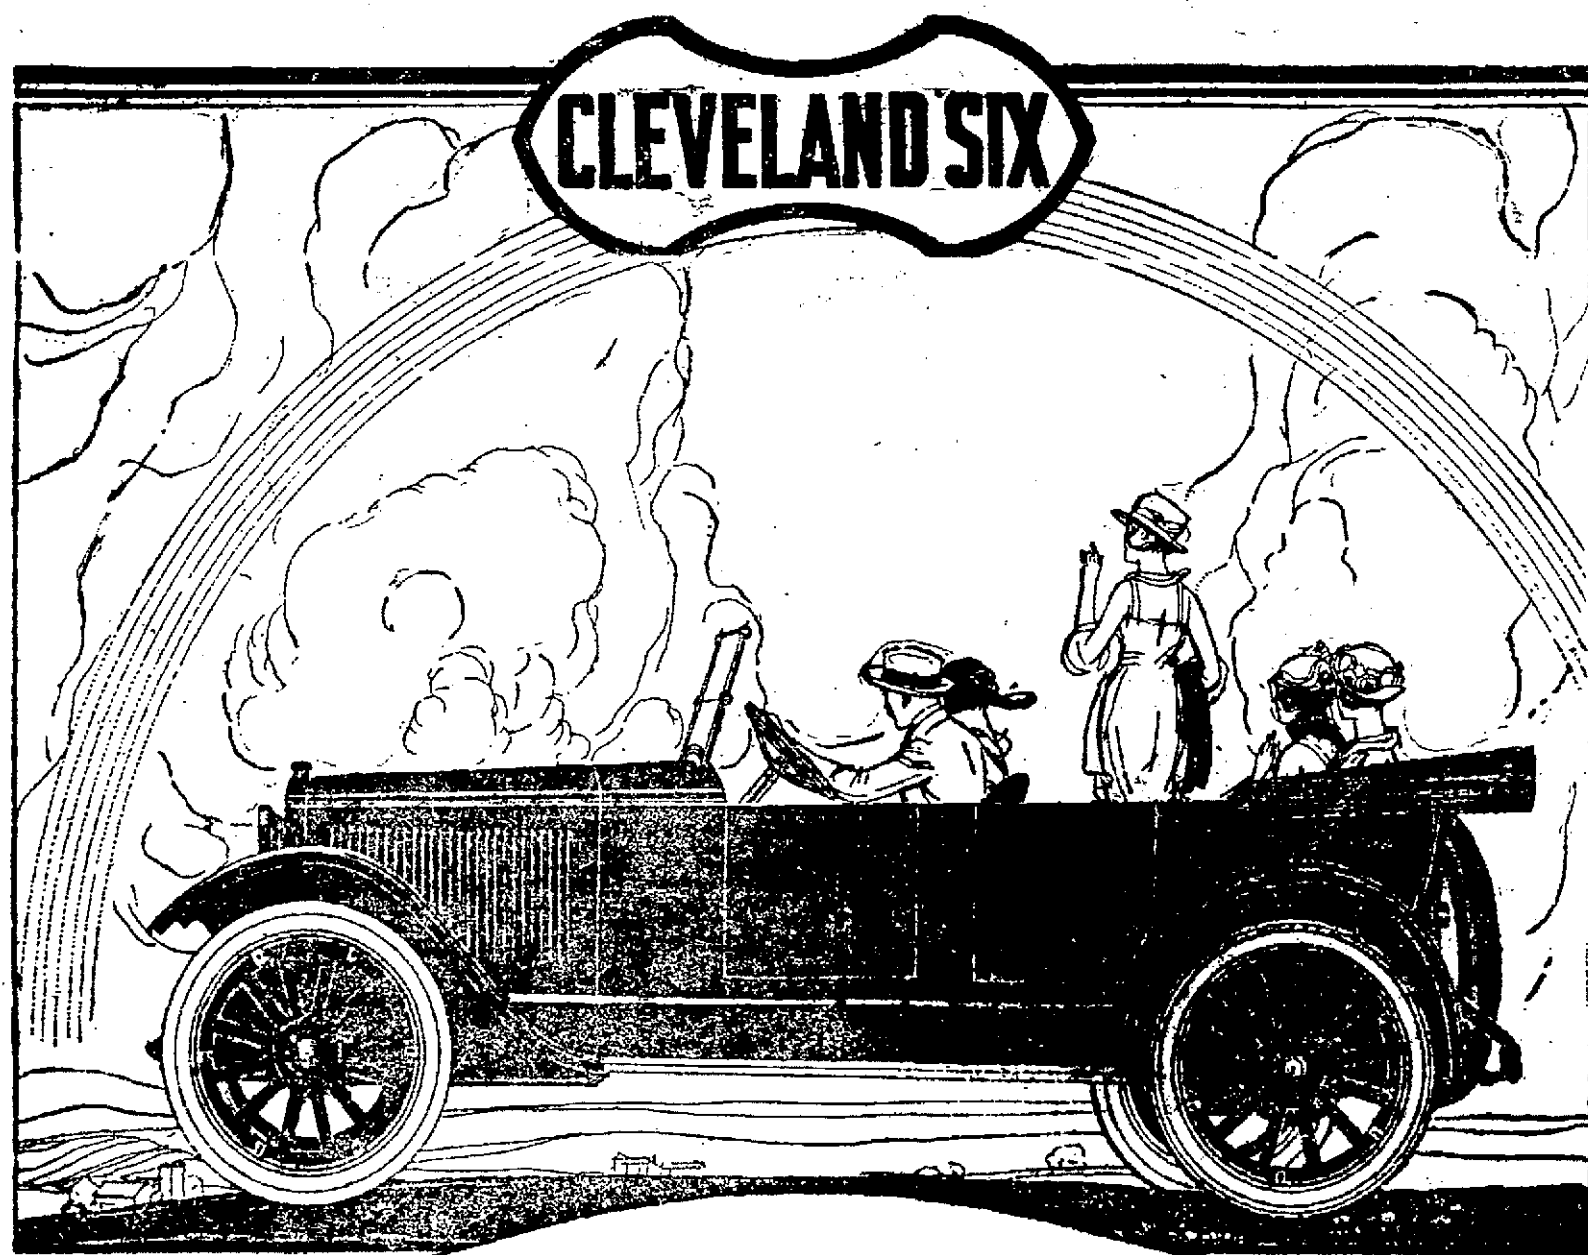

"What do you stand for, Little Heap?" I heard a motorist say To the little chief upon the sign that stands by the broad highway.
"Oh, why do you stand beside your tire, and smile but never sleep?
Come, little brave, speak up and tell me your story, Little Heap."
The Injun moved, stepped forth from the sign and down to the broad highway,
And he raised his hand in the sign of peace, and here's what he had to say:
"I've raised my hand in the sign of peace and I bring my pipe-smoke deep."

I'll tell you the reason I stand by the road and they call me 'Little Heap':
I stand by the road in this sign of mine, and signal to drivers like you;
And I shout my message as you pass by, as a real good savage should do.
I tell you I stand for the strongest tread that ever was worn by a tire;
I tell of mileage in store for you, and I shout it in letters of fire;
I tell of tires as tough as steel, that stand the gaff of the road,
And I tell of side-walls built with care, and of tubes that will carry the load.
I'm proud as I stand by the broad highway, with a 'Savage' tread by my side;

I'm proud, indeed, of my chieftain's blood, as I signal to you who ride.
For I stand for a tire that loves the road, with a tread that is black and deep,
And behind my smiles are thousands of miles—so they call me 'Little Heap.'
The Injun went back to his place in the sign, and the motorist scratched his head.
And he thought of the Injun and he thought of the tire, and of all Little Heap had said—
Then he drove into town, with his mind made up, that before he would eat or sleep, He'd equip his car, both front and rear, with the tires of Little Heap.

It Makes Thousands of Friends by Its Every-day Performance

Men and women, everywhere, have acclaimed the Cleveland Six a winner. It has won thousands of them, and they are enthusiastic in its praise. It has won them because it brings them so much more of the pleasure of driving, such ease of driving and such unusual comfort.

The Cleveland has made its friends, too, because of the extraordinary performance of the Cleveland motor, developed through three years of tests in the laboratories and shops and on the road before being offered to the public. It has life, pick-up, power and endurance that you cannot find in many cars.

Cleveland bodies are of most graceful, dignified design, handsomely finished and upholstered in genuine hand-buffed leather.

Come in and see the Cleveland Six. Ride in it. Drive it yourself. Then you will know just how good it is.

NEW AGENCY TO OPEN ON MOTOR ROW

"Opening Day" at Charles Griffiths' San Francisco headquarters has been set for Thursday, May 27. Griffiths has secured a lease at 1830 Van Ness avenue, a very desirable location on San Francisco's "Automobile Row," and according to his present plans everything will be ready for the official opening next Thursday. Griffiths is Pacific Coast distributor for the American Balanced Six and has recently acquired distribution rights for Northern California, Nevada and the Hawaiian Islands, for the Ferris Six.

The first Ferris is already on its way. Due to the present unsettled conditions caused by the road tie-up, it is impossible to forecast the date of its probable arrival, but Griffiths hopes to have both American Balanced Six and Ferris Six models on display at both his San Francisco headquarters and his Oakland establishment before many days.

SHOWS SKILL IN FIGHT TO GET MOTORS

This is the tale of the young man from the west who invaded the "hard boiled" east and took automobiles away from a manufacturer who did not want to give them up. The man in question is A. W. Rawling and he sells Marmon cars in Oakland. Rawling left Oakland a few weeks ago with fire in his eye and a determination to get automobiles whether or no. He had forty orders on his books and he wanted to make deliveries on them. The perils of Pauline and the daredevil stunts of the average movie hero were outdone by Rawling and his determination to get results. When he reached Indianapolis, he was told that he had about as much chance as the proverbial snowball in Hades of getting any Marmons. There were no cars, nor were there freight conveyances to haul them with if he did get Marmons. Factory officials were not enthusiastic. They wanted to give Rawling cars, but could not, so they said. Rawling, after overcoming every possible objection of the manufacturers, finally obtained twenty-four Marmons. The factory men dug up the cars, but they did not know what Rawling was going to do with them after he got this allotment. "Simply put those Marmons on the shipping platform and I will do the rest," he told the Marmon men. Then the Genie of old, he rubbed the lamp and produced seven freight cars, that everyone said could not be "dug up." Then they told him that the cars could never be moved, even after he had produced and loaded them. Again he rubbed the lamp and the freight cars, loaded with Marmons, moved out of the yards at Indianapolis and they are still rolling. Rawling routed them so that they would avoid the freight car congestion which is tying up freight shipments in many of the bigger centers.

LOCAL BATTERY FIRM MOVES TO NEW LOCATION

Clark Nowak well known battery man along auto row, announces his removal to new and larger quarters at 2573 Broadway. For some time Nowak has sought this location but it was only lately that the opportunity of getting it was a certainty. Along with the battery department he has opened a fine department for the repairing of magnetos, electric lighting and starting systems, also generator work. Nowak is sure he will get his share of business by giving service to the automobile owner who comes to him with grief.

In the east they are still rubbing their eyes and wondering how a dealer can come from the Golden West, with a determination to do things and get away with it.

such a possibility. It is also revealed that except in a few countries the character of roads elsewhere do not compare to those in the United States, therefore touring is on a more restricted scale than it is here and accordingly less fuel per car is used. If these statements are accepted, and they are made with a true knowledge of facts, then one must also believe that the requirements abroad are really negligible, much less than 10 per cent of what is needed at home. The charge that exportation of fuel is a cause for the shortage in sight, in the light of the foregoing facts, is therefore untrue.

Some maintain that producers have created a false belief that the present supply is limited simply to boost prices. That argument doesn't seem feasible for the very reason that continued high gasoline costs would encourage untold development of supposed oil producing lands. The lure of quick profits would create investment by the thousands. In some respects, if higher charges per gallon of fuel are made there may come the beneficial future results of discoveries in many localities of oil producing soil.

In conclusion the writer urges motor car owners not to become unduly excited over the gasoline question. Simply pledge yourself to drive fewer miles each month, don't take your car when you can ride just as readily by other means on short trips. If that suggestion is followed until permanent remedial plans are effective none will be denied the health giving pleasures of an automobile.

TRAINLOAD OF MOTORS SPEEDS WEST

One way to be sure of getting automobiles is to locate and assemble a trainload of flat cars, secure a consignment of models to fill these cars, get railroads through congested districts and then station your own men in the "freight" to see that progress westward is uninterrupted.

This clever plan was followed by the Pioneer Motor company, Southern California. Peerless, Buick, Buick and Republic Truck distributors. It brought constructive results in the shape of thirty-seven flat cars loaded with different Peerless models which are to be unloaded early this week in Oakland.

Suffering as have many other organizations from the freight car tie up, the Pioneer company has upped the idea outlined above and Bob Barrett, wholesale manager, was delegated to get the motor cars moving to the San Francisco lay in the speediest time possible.

Barrett succeeded completely at a time when others' attempts employed were hopeless. He had no difficulties in securing railroad car releases to move his consignments.

Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania are really doing a lot of business in registrations of motor vehicles.

ROAD TO TAHOE BY PLACERVILLE NOW AVAILABLE

The Placerville road to Lake Tahoe was opened Wednesday and is now in good condition, according to George S. Grant, manager of the touring bureau of the California State Automobile association.

The road from Tallah to Tahoe Tavern on the California side of the lake is still closed and is reported in bad condition in the vicinity of Emerald Bay.

One of the heavy snow the automobile road from Chingachin, on the Washington road to Glacier Point, will not be opened before July 1. The Downville road, via, Marysville, Camptonville, and Downville to Sierra City, also via, Sacramento, Auburn, Grass Valley, Nevada City, Camptonville, Downville and Sierra City, is open to Reno.

The road to Sequoia National Park will be open by May 25.

Dr. F. A. Brown, Hayward, physician, enjoys the distinction of having bought a car, had it wrecked two hours later and having immediately purchased another car of exactly the same make and model.

Dr. Brown decided to purchase a new automobile recently in order to take his wife and small son on an excursion to the Yosemite.

He purchased a Mitchell Six roadster. Scarcely had he packed bag and baggage aboard and started out for the higher altitudes than a great big touring car tried to push him off the road. It did not succeed, but two wrecked cars resulted from the incident.

Two hours later the wreck had been conveyed to the Victory Motor Sales Company headquarters in this city, where Dr. Brown had purchased his first car from Manager, Carl Christensen. He asked what would be allowed on the wreck, accepted and immediately purchased another roadster of the same model as before.

The next day he made the trip to the Yosemite in his brand new car in good time.

TRUCK BODIES NOW SPECIALIZED

The day when one kind of truck body was made to do the duty of a dozen has passed, and now the forward-looking manufacturers of trucks are specializing—building a different kind of body for every task. The big commission houses need trucks that will carry their goods direct to a destination and return direct with just one loading and one unloading operation at either end.

For instance, there are many kinds of retail businesses, such as grocery or dry goods establishments where the parcels carried vary greatly in size, some being quite small. The task of covering a delivery route in the smallest amount of time possible is facilitated by the use of trucks opening on either side. However, for other types of transportation there should be no opening on the side as loading and unloading is accomplished with a greater degree of efficiency from the rear.

A good example of this is furnished in the foodstuff and produce-handling business. The big commission houses need trucks that will carry their goods direct to a destination and return direct with just one loading and one unloading operation at either end.

Answers a demand heretofore unfilled in the motor truck field. It carries a full 1½-ton load economically and efficiently at twenty to twenty-five miles an hour.

Hemp String and Soap To Pack Gas Pump

About the only satisfactory material for packing the stuffing box of the gasoline pump is hemp string and soap. Gasoline will dissolve practically any kind of oil used as a lubricant, but it has no effect on soap, so that this material may be used in place of grease as a lubricant or in place of red lead in making screw joints tight.

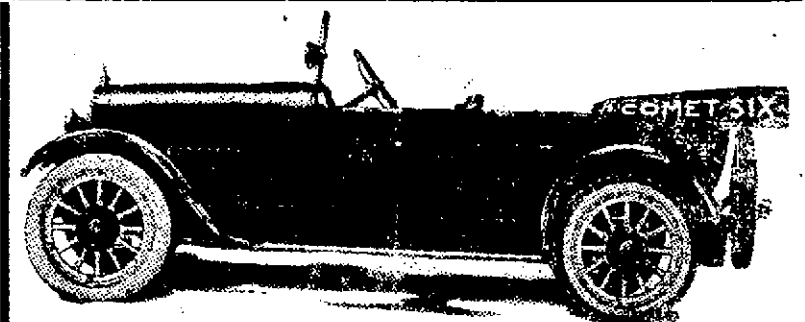

No Side-thrust or Skidding

ARMLEDER Quality Motor Trucks

Armleder Exclusive Radiator Construction

Cast Tank Radiator

An Armleder radiator is not affected by vibration or shocks. Large copper tubes soldered only at the ends fastened in copper plates protected by a cast shell—tubes are wound individually with fins which churn the air back and forth, multiplying its cooling qualities; the cooling capacity being such that the motor will never run hotter than is intended. An Armleder radiator is also the easiest to repair. Merely telescope a new tube into the one that has been injured and so simple is this work that it could be done by a tinsmith at trifling cost. The Armleder is the only radiator in the world that makes the truck owner free from that common, expensive, unbearable annoyance of leaks and the consequent destructive effect upon the motor. Next week we will explain wheel construction.

BIG EXPOSITION OPENS IN THE AUDITORIUM

COMMERCE
MEN OF U. S.
ARE GREETED

View of the Elmhurst mansion and beautiful grounds of the Chauncey W. Gibson home which was turned over yesterday by the Gibsons to the orphans of California as a complete gift valued at more than $50,000. Portrait is of MRS. HOGAN D. COSBY, who received the deed for the Children's Home Society.

The mammoth exposition of the United Commercial Travelers' opened last evening in the arena at the municipal auditorium where more than 150 special exhibits representing every important industry in the bay cities have been placed in the main hall and the corridor. So well were all of the plans carried out that the big show opened exactly at 8 o'clock as arranged and all of the exhibits were in place and without the usual last minute finishing touches.

Prior to the opening of the show airplanes from the Durant aviation field circled over the auditorium and dropped several thousand free admission tickets. Inside the arena the ceremonies were marked by an address by Mayor John L. Davis, representing the city of Oakland; Supervisor Redmond Staats, representing Alameda county, and Samuel T. Breyer, representing the United Commercial Travelers of America. The work of the organization was lauded by the first two speakers while Breyer confined his remarks more generally to the desire of the organization to aid in civic development.

ARENA TRANSFORMED.

The arena and the corridor have been transformed into a forest and all of the booths and decorations carry out this idea. At one end of the hall and reaching far on each side is a huge canvas painting of California scenes, and standing out in bold relief are the rugged hills. To further carry out the effect of the painting, trees have been placed in front of the canvas.

As one enters the auditorium and starts down the corridor, the ceiling and sides of the hall are covered with evergreens and you are gradually led into the big arena. Here all of the booths have been constructed with a view of carrying out the woodland effect. The sides and pillars are painted to represent trunks of trees, the effect being a decidedly novel and striking one. The band is placed in the balcony among trees, nearly concealing it from view. Throughout the show last evening there was music of the jazz type.

EXHIBITS WELL PLACED

The exhibits are well placed and very complete. They range from automobiles to machinery, food, and various other articles. In addition to the auto display there is a display of auto accessories which attracted large crowds last evening. The commercial travelers have arranged so that they will be no dull moment during the ten days of the exposition. There were motion pictures last evening and various stunts that kept the crowd amused. Another big feature was the Trilby and Cinderella contests. A pair of shoes is donated to each day's winner.

ner. In order to put on all of the stunts the Auditorium theater will be used on special occasions. There are also lectures, concerts and another aerial circus to be held.

BIG CROWD DUE TODAY

Today will be United Commercial Travelers' day, starting the big exposition with a whoop, as 5000 commercial travelers will cut short their Sacramento convention and come from Sacramento in a special train, arriving at Fortieth and Shattuck at about 5:30 p. m. The arriving salesmen will be guests of the Oakland lodge and will be entertained with a banquet and automobile rides. Then the exposition will be theirs for the rest of the day.

Reservations by commercial travelers from all over the state promise to crowd the hotels to the uttermost. The mighty invading army is expected to stay until Monday evening. "The show is already the most successful of the sort seen in Oakland," says Ben Welch, director of the exposition. "It is the most pretentious and the space is all taken, which is something for any exposition to boast of."

The proceeds from the exposition will go toward building in this county the only clubhouse for commercial travelers in the United States.

Tomorrow will be known as Alameda day and the Fraternal Organizations' day, with special features for the Alamedans and the members of the lodges and brotherhoods. Tuesday will be Livermore day and Gift day, and arrangements have been made to donate a large worth of special gifts on that day.

A machine for electrocuting insects in packages of cereals is being used by an American company.

REALTY DEMAND SHOWS INCREASE

Strong demand for residence property continues to feature the real estate market. During the month of May the sales of homes by one concern alone has amounted to more than $100,000. On January 1 this firm started 67 homes, all but ten of which are now sold. There are fifteen additional ones under construction.

The company, Breed & Bancroft, reports that many of the sales have been to newcomers from the east and the interior of the state. Other realty dealers report similar conditions prevailing.

Sales aggregating $485,000 within the last thirty days have been made by a company which has centered its activity on property around Twenty-first and Broadway. The buyers have been San Francisco capitalists. At Twenty-first and Harrison there is to be erected by L. D. Allen, Inc., a large garage and automobile headquarters to be erected on the corner.

Construction has started on the H-P Press Manufacturing company which is to manufacture rotary pumps. L. A. Moberly, president of the concern which is capitalized at $200,000.

Police Put Bars
Up On Sailings
For Northland

BY UNITED PRESS. LEARNED WIRE TO TRIBUNE. SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—Captain Arthur Layne of the harbor police announced this afternoon that in the future ships sailing for Alaska must submit to police inspection. His action follows the return of the Costa Rica, which put back into port with part of its crew demanding to be put ashore.

When launches ran alongside the bark the men clambered overboard. Living conditions were such, the men said, that they were weakened. Two fires broke out within the last week, they said, and the ship listed heavily in rough seas.

MANSION FOR ORPHANS IS DONOR'S GIFT

Giving up his own handsome residence in order that orphan waifs may know the real meaning of "home," Chauncey W. Gibson, Oakland capitalist, has transferred more than $50,000 in property to the northern district of the Children's Home Society of California.

A deed for the Gibson home, at 2421 Sixty-seventh, Elmhurst, with countless fruit trees and berry bushes to delight the hearts of kiddies, passed yesterday from the philanthropist owner to the hands of Mrs. Hogan D. Cosby, of Berkeley, president of the northern district of the home finding society.

Gibson and his wife are now moving out their possessions to give way to the children who will be transferred from the present inadequate quarters of the society at 1944 Fifty-fourth street, to the more commodious residence and grounds of the Elmhurst property. With the gift, Gibson goes but one provision which the women who head the northern activities of the state society have promised to meet, and that is the raising of a $250,000 endowment fund for the organization.

Five Eastbay men, eager to consummate the formalities of the generous offer, have each pledged $1000 to the fund, while an active canvass will be inaugurated at once to raise the additional $20,000, which Mrs. Cosby and her workers anticipate no trouble in obtaining.

HOPE HAS WIDE GROUNDS. Ideally situated in the center of attractive grounds, the Gibson residence of twelve large rooms, built but a few years ago, will meet the needs of the children's society for many years to come. Mrs. Cosby says. Peach, cherry, apple and other fruit trees, berry bushes and currants fill the grounds with "goodies" to delight the young heart while for the aesthetic eye there are fragrant lilac bushes and countless other blooms.

On the more material side the estate is equipped with a private water plant valued at $3000, which will furnish water for the children's use.

Not only will school children under the age of ten be given swimming instructions, but adults as well will be taught by Red Cross instructors. On Tuesday and Thursday afternoon of this week the pool will be turned over to the Red Cross for instruction of women and girls. Free swim tickets may be obtained from Red Cross headquarters at the City Hall.

Instructions in swimming and practical work in life saving will be demonstrated by Red Cross swimming experts. As the Brink system of teaching will be used, it is claimed that a novice can learn to swim in half an hour.

Tuberculosis Shuts Out Many Cattle

WASHINGTON, May 22.—The bureau of animal industry of the Department of Agriculture reports that tuberculosis in cattle was responsible for the condemnation of more cattle, slaughtered under Federal meat inspection last year, than all other diseases combined. Information from the bureau shows that 29,547 carcasses of cattle were condemned on post-mortem inspection and of that number 27,000 were the result of tuberculosis.

OAKLAND WILL SEND DELEGATES

Several delegates are to be sent by the Oakland Real Estate Board and by the Berkeley Real Estate Exchange to the forthcoming annual national convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards to be held at Kansas City during the first week in June.

Among those who are to represent this part of the state are John T. Caldwell, Mayor McManis and Leslie Burks of San Francisco, John T. Summers of Santa Rosa, H. H. Traxler and Chris R. Jones of Sacramento, Frazzetta of Berkeley, San Jose, Fred E. Reed, president of the California Real Estate Association, J. H. Bolton, Fred T. Wood, G. C. Barnhart, R. Porter (city secretary of the local Real Estate Board), and H. M. Martin, Thomas H. Larkin and Charles C. Ensign of Berkeley.

California Synodical Society Will Meet

The California Synodical Society of Home Missions will hold its quarterly meeting Tuesday at the John's Presbyterian church, San Francisco, when the synodical officers will preside. Greetings will be offered by Mrs. J. E. Gluey, the secretary of the board. A number of the members of the synodical society will be present. Mrs. J. D. Donlin will conduct the devotional, Miss Nona Reed, Russian settlement worker, being the special soloist.

Of special interest will be the talk by Mrs. Cora Conklin, Y. W. C. A. secretary in charge of the International Institute of San Francisco, her subject being "Stranger Within Our Gates." She will have at her a group of girls of different nationalities. Miss Julia Fraser, the president of the society, will give a travelogue of the Southwest in the interest of the home board. A number of Oakland women will attend.

Realty Board Is Pledged Co-operation

"Everything that may be done by the district attorney of this county may be depended upon to assist the Oakland Real Estate Board in maintaining clean business methods, honesty and square dealing in real estate business of this city," was the assurance given the members of the Oakland Real Estate Board at this week's luncheon meeting by District Attorney Ezra W. Decoto.

In talking on the subject "Co-operation Between the District Attorney and the Real Estate Board in Upholding the Square Deal," Decoto recounted many cases wherein his office had been instrumental in prosecuting persons found by the Realty Board to be transacting business on dishonest lines and highly praised the work which the organization is doing along this line.

Postmaster to Speak Before Housewives

"Efficiency in Conducting a Post Office" will be discussed by Joseph J. Rosborough, postmaster of Oakland, tomorrow before the Oakland branch of the California Federation of Housewives' Leagues in the council chambers of the city hall, Mrs. L. C. Grasser presiding.

A review of the prices on necessities of food and clothing will be made by committee chairman. The program for tomorrow has been arranged by Mrs. Mary Merrill.

MUSIC EXAMINATIONS

The California State Board of Education announces an examination for the regular State board high school credential, and for the special credential in music, both elementary and advanced, to be held simultaneously in Los Angeles and Berkeley on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 28, 29 and 30.

How Grant Won the G. O. P. Nomination

General's Success Easy Despite Political Situation

Depew Tells Failure of Blaine's Contest

This is the third installment of Chauncey M. Depew's recollections of former presidential campaigns, from Fremont to Wilson. The articles constitute a distinct contribution to American history and on the eve of the presidential campaign of 1920 are particularly timely.

The great captain won his Republican nomination and the subsequent election in 1868 so easily, with such tremendous popular approval, that the singularly of his earlier situation politically may be overlooked in these days after so many years crowded with political happenings.

It is now time to recall the fact, however, that many people versed in the political history of the country remember that, in 1868, the singularly of his earlier situation politically may be overlooked in these days after so many years crowded with political happenings.

Mills College Graduation Exercises to Be Held June 1

Commencement at Mills College, June 1, will be made notable by reason of the distinguished men who will participate in the exercises attending the awarding of degrees to the forty young women graduates.

Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York, trustee of the New York university, and founder of the Scarborough school at Scarborough-on-the-Hudson, will be the commencement speaker.

Dean Walter J. Gresham of Grace cathedral in San Francisco, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon.

The festivities of commencement week will be inaugurated on Saturday with the annual May 7th on the banks of Lake Aliso when 150 Mills students present the story of "King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table." The production is, graduating class.

under the direction of the senior girls. The program has been written by Helen Colgan, Sacramento; Marian Hedrick, San Jose, and Nancy Ellen White, Chico.

The principal roles have been assigned to Ethel Cluff, Oakland; Gladys Halstead, Honolulu; Amy Gracie, Stockton; Nancy Ellen White, Chico; Helen Colgan, Sacramento; Sara McTear, San Diego; Marie Louise Chausser, France; Agnes Penneycock, Vallejo; Ruth Palmer, Long Beach; Margaret Hill, Omaha; Helen Pardee, Oakland; Hazel Downer, Folsom; Gladys Hinman, Oakland; and Arleigh Jarrell, Texas.

The baccalaureate sermon will be offered at 3 o'clock on Memorial day in Lasser Hall. A feature will be the procession and recessional led by the vested choir followed by the "Round Table." The production is, graduating class.

Railroads Ask Right Four R.R. Messengers Battle, Kill Wildcat

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—A battle between a wild cat and four railroad messengers on the Chesapeake & Ohio train No. 6, speeding from Cincinnati to Washington, came to light here today when Geo. Ramsdell, Cincinnati, a messenger, showed a picture of the dead animal.

A messenger named Wheeler of Clifton Forge, Va., discovered the animal being shipped to Richmond, Va., had gnawed its way out of a crate and was eating live chickens. Fourteen bullets were fired into the beast before it succumbed.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 22.—All steam railroads in Illinois joined to petition the State Public Utilities Commission for a 30 per cent freight rate increase in this state.

Terminal railroads at East St. Louis joined in the petition, but cut the rate sought to a 25 per cent advance.

BRITISH VISITORS TO BE WELCOMED

Irving Kahn was yesterday chosen chairman of the committee of East-bay merchants who will formally welcome to Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda the twenty prominent British merchants now touring the United States as guests of the United Retail Dry Goods Association.

The noted tourists, who are the official representatives of the Drapers' Chamber of Trade of the United Kingdom, will enter California Sunday. Following a welcome to the state by a representative of Governor Stephens, the representatives will be received by a committee of twenty of the foremost merchants of San Francisco. Monday will be the merchants' big Eastbay day.

Following their arrival in Oakland the party will be taken to the Claremont Country Club for lunch, then to the University of California, where President David P. Barrows will act as host. In the evening the merchants will be banqueted at the Hotel Oakland.

The British representatives will also make a week in the bay district and peninsula towns, attending the convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. On Wednesday of the Associated Clubs of San Francisco at a luncheon. In the evening they will be entertained at a smoker.

H. C. Canwell acting as master of ceremonies. American mercantile methods and service will be studied by the drapers, who will leave on Saturday for Los Angeles.

Louis joined in the petition, but cut the rate sought to a 25 per cent advance.

A HEALTHY GAIN.

Official census returns show Oakland to have a population of 216,361. As an indication of a decided and healthy growth they are to be accepted with general satisfaction and for the promise they hold out for the future. A gain of 44.1 percent in many parts of the country would be called phenomenal. Here it is a steady expansion of a kind that makes for permanence and stability and a development of which the city well may be proud.

No one expected that Oakland would grow in the years between 1910 and 1920 at the rate noted in the ten years before. The abnormal conditions caused by the fire in San Francisco, the movement of population across the bay, and the discovery that on this continental side there were beautiful locations for homes and logical sites for manufacturing, gave to the census figures an unprecedented leap and made of a small city a large one.

In the past ten years Oakland has added to its population a number of persons who, by themselves, would comprise a city of fourth or fifth rank in the cities of the State. Along with the development and expansion here Berkeley has added 38 percent to its population, and Alameda, now a community of more than 28,000, has increased 23.2 percent. There has been no time in which so many new industries have looked to the mainland shore of the bay upon which to build factories, and there has been no period in which so much has been done to make this city and county so attractive to newcomers.

Oakland is now better equipped than ever to be the manufacturing center of the State. Its harbor invites the shipping of the world and its waterfront and factory acreage are daily welcoming the builders of manufacturing plants. At the same rate of gain shown in this latest census Oakland, in 1930, will be a city of well over 300,000 inhabitants and the Eastbay community one of over a half-million.

Indications are that the census was well taken and that there will be nothing but satisfaction and pride in the results. It so happened that the count was recorded at a time when the strikes were on in the shipyards and when many men and families had left for other places. Had it been taken a little earlier, or later, the total would have been larger by so many names.

The official figures show Oakland to be a large city, growing in a large and healthy manner.

FOOD SITUATION SERIOUS.

The present spectacle of overcrowded cities, of parks filled with tents, and of long lines of husky men waiting the opportunity to purchase tickets for the matinees, has another side that means a shortage in food. It is a side that is reflected in part from the first census returns from agricultural California, returns that show Shasta and Alpine counties to have fewer inhabitants than ten years ago, and that are emphasized more strongly in the Middle West, East and South, where the call for farm labor is one of desperation. In the State of New York 24,000 farm houses are vacant while the newcomer to New York city is at a loss to find a roof to cover his head.

It has been estimated by farm experts that there will be a shortage of 24,000,000 acres of wheat crops this year because there is no way of harvesting a crop. In bushels the figure has been placed by one authority at 250,000,000, and there is a corresponding decrease in other food products.

In the meantime, to the automobile factories of the Middle West, to the spinning mills of the South and to the great manufacturing of the East the young men of the farms are applying for work. Factories all over the country are employing men who will accept no less than $1 an hour, and in many farms broad acres are bearing a harvest of weeds.

On the administration the farmer rests a part of the blame for his present condition. While the Department of Justice has been declaring with frequency its intention to deal severely with the profiteers and to reduce the cost of living there has been nothing done to see that the producer of agricultural products receives his just proportion of the prices asked. For potatoes that sold for $12 a bushel the farmer has been paid from $7 to $9 a barrel. In some instances the retail price which of course includes the wholesaler's and jobber's profits, on produce for which the farmer received $9 has been as high as $35. Yet the farmer is expected from his returns to compete in the labor market against factory wages and the call to the city, that he might supply the nation its food. In many places the farmer has either abandoned his holdings or has cultivated but that small part which he can care for himself. The situation is serious.

One remedy that is being advanced with some show of success although results cannot be apparent for several seasons is the encouragement of the small acreage and intensive farming idea. California is held up to the country as an example in this respect and the opportunities for an interesting and profitable livelihood are being stressed in those sections which used to be purely large farm areas.

Only a few of the farm authorities interviewed in a recent canvass of the situation hold out the hope of anything but continued advances in food costs. They say that the peak is yet a few months off, but is in sight, and hold that with an increased foreign harvest of wheat the local supply will be ample. These optimists, however, are in a very small minority and the food and farm labor situation may well be viewed as one of the most pressing confronting the nation.

DESERVE BETTER TREATMENT.

The review of the letter carriers of Oakland afforded a visual demonstration of loyalty and efficiency and one that cannot be possible much longer unless an administration does its simple duty. The carriers are deserving of better treatment and cannot be expected to remain in employment that brings a smaller financial reward than that which they could obtain in other fields.

No body of men comes in closer personal contact with the public than does the organization that delivers the mail. The requirements of the work include intelligence, tact, and a pride in appearance and deportment. Requirements which are met in full measure by the men of the Oakland corps.

If a niggardly policy is to mean that this class of men is to be forced into employment which recognizes those qualities that have made the mail carrier a synonym for efficiency, something like a crisis will appear in the daily transaction of business. Only when the smooth working machinery is missing and the places of these men are taken by others whose capabilities are measured by the wages offered, will full realization of the value of the carrier come to those who take the daily mail delivery, as that of milk or bread, as a matter of course.

The mail carrier is a part of the industrial and social life of the community. Upon his promptness, his intelligence and resourcefulness depends prompt delivery and an absence of errors. He is the daily visitor to the front doors of the residences and one of whom no complaint is made. If his ranks are not to be filled with men of less tact and education he should be given what he has long deserved and that is a salary commensurate with the labor, the brain, and the deportment he puts into his job.

The review of the Oakland force proved that here the carriers have stood by their work. Many of them have seniority rights they do not wish to forego while there is a chance for Federal action toward a betterment of their condition. They cannot be expected to wait much longer.

SWAT THE MOSQUITO.

Upon the health and numbers of the mosquitoes at Anderson this summer and fall will depend one of the most important experiments ever conducted by the State Board of Health. At an expenditure of $10,000, taken from the emergency fund, the board has practiced all of the known arts of mosquito abatement and control and has educated the citizens of Anderson in the methods of keeping up the work. The early returns show an overwhelming majority against the mosquito.

At the close of the work it was found that 84.2 percent of the persons who had been under observation as malarial had been cured and showed no symptom. So important does the board believe its labors to have been that it declares the whole promising future of the town depends on the success of the campaign.

The State has never attacked the mosquito on so wide a front or with so near a complete battery and there is many another place that will watch with interest to see if Anderson this year is sleeping undisturbed or is going about its swatting as usual.

A great deal has been published in denunciation of reckless auto driving, especially of intoxicated persons performing at the wheel, of which instances there are a surprising number. Severe consequences should be visited on all who thus imperil sober and orderly people who may be out on the road on legitimate errands. But the punishment, to be impressive and corrective, must fit the crime. There are degrees of offense. To let an aggravated case go with an inadequate penalty, and to visit severe punishment upon a slight offense, where no injury or damage results, is not what fair and sensible people want to see in enforcing the law, and is not likely to increase that respect for authority that is always desirable.

After all that the President has seen in the Senate it is to be wondered what pleasure he can be looking at a circus parade.

NOTES and COMMENT

Many unusual premiums have been offered in financing, but none as those which characterized the drive of last week. And the doughnut was quite successful in separating the generous and discerning citizen from his dough.

Efforts to confuse profiteers have been so uniformly unsuccessful that the continued measures against the "backers" proposed in Congress are arousing the suspicion that something is being attempted to jolly the voter. As long as nothing happens to the high cost of things it may not be of much use to harass great industries.

While the commercial columns quote wheat in the Eastern markets at $1.62, Louis W. Hill, in the news columns, predicts that it will go to $1.75. As he is one of the Great Northern Hills, who have the reputation of thinking it out before uttering it.

The Red Bluff News makes a discovery: "We are certain that readers of the News as a class are of average intelligence, but we discover one occasionally that believes the paid ads determine the policy of the paper, and that the raising things in display type should be charged to the editor. Even it stopping the paper."

Fewer violations of prohibition laws than were expected have taken place in California. Frank M. Silva, prohibition director, told the fourteenth annual convention of the California State Pharmaceutical association. Which is entitled to considerable credit for having a reputation of being an ultra wet State.

The Richmond Terminal tells of a plan that would skin the overall red a mile. "An Albany commuter dug 22 lbs. of volunteer potatoes from 10 hills. Even nature will assist a fellow in beating the high cost, if he will not insist on being too much of a slacker."

We cannot always depend on what is said, averred and asseverated as to presidential booms; but when it is announced that the suit of rooms at Chicago, reserved for General Pershing, has been relinquished, it is a considerable hunch that the General is not figuring on impersonating the dark horse.

The story of the Chicago man who killed himself because his son did not write, and a letter arriving three hours after the rash act, is perhaps another count against Burleson.

Villa denies that he has harmed any Americans "for many months." And very few of the many whom he "harmed" before that are on hand to give testimony in the matter. By elimination it may be claimed by his defenders. If he has any, that Villa is thus made out a perfect gentleman.

The Red Bluff News makes a compensation: "Many people regret the passing of the horse from the street, but anyone who gnaws the bark of an apple doesn't gnaw the bark off the shade trees."

The Redding Searchlight discourses of the alfalfa harvest: "There is no defense for whiskers. The first thing a man does after having committed a crime is to saw off his whiskers. Carranza recently disposed of his."

The Union may have in mind the Sacramento way: "Of course, the State Senators say some very hard things about the other, but at that they don't hold it over the rest of us so very much."

The Lake County Bee tells how it goes: "The old man laboriously works himself from the bottom to the top through years of toil, and his sons start at the top and toboggan to the bottom with a whoop."

Does the Sacramento Bee discern a real danger, or is it just seeing things? "The Californian, of course, is right in his estimate that the capitalist State not only is, but always should remain the City of Sacramento."

From the Woodland Mail, and has a sound as though an expert was testifying: "The 'whisky' sold nowadays is more harmful than a whisky used to be, but it doesn't harm so many people."

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS

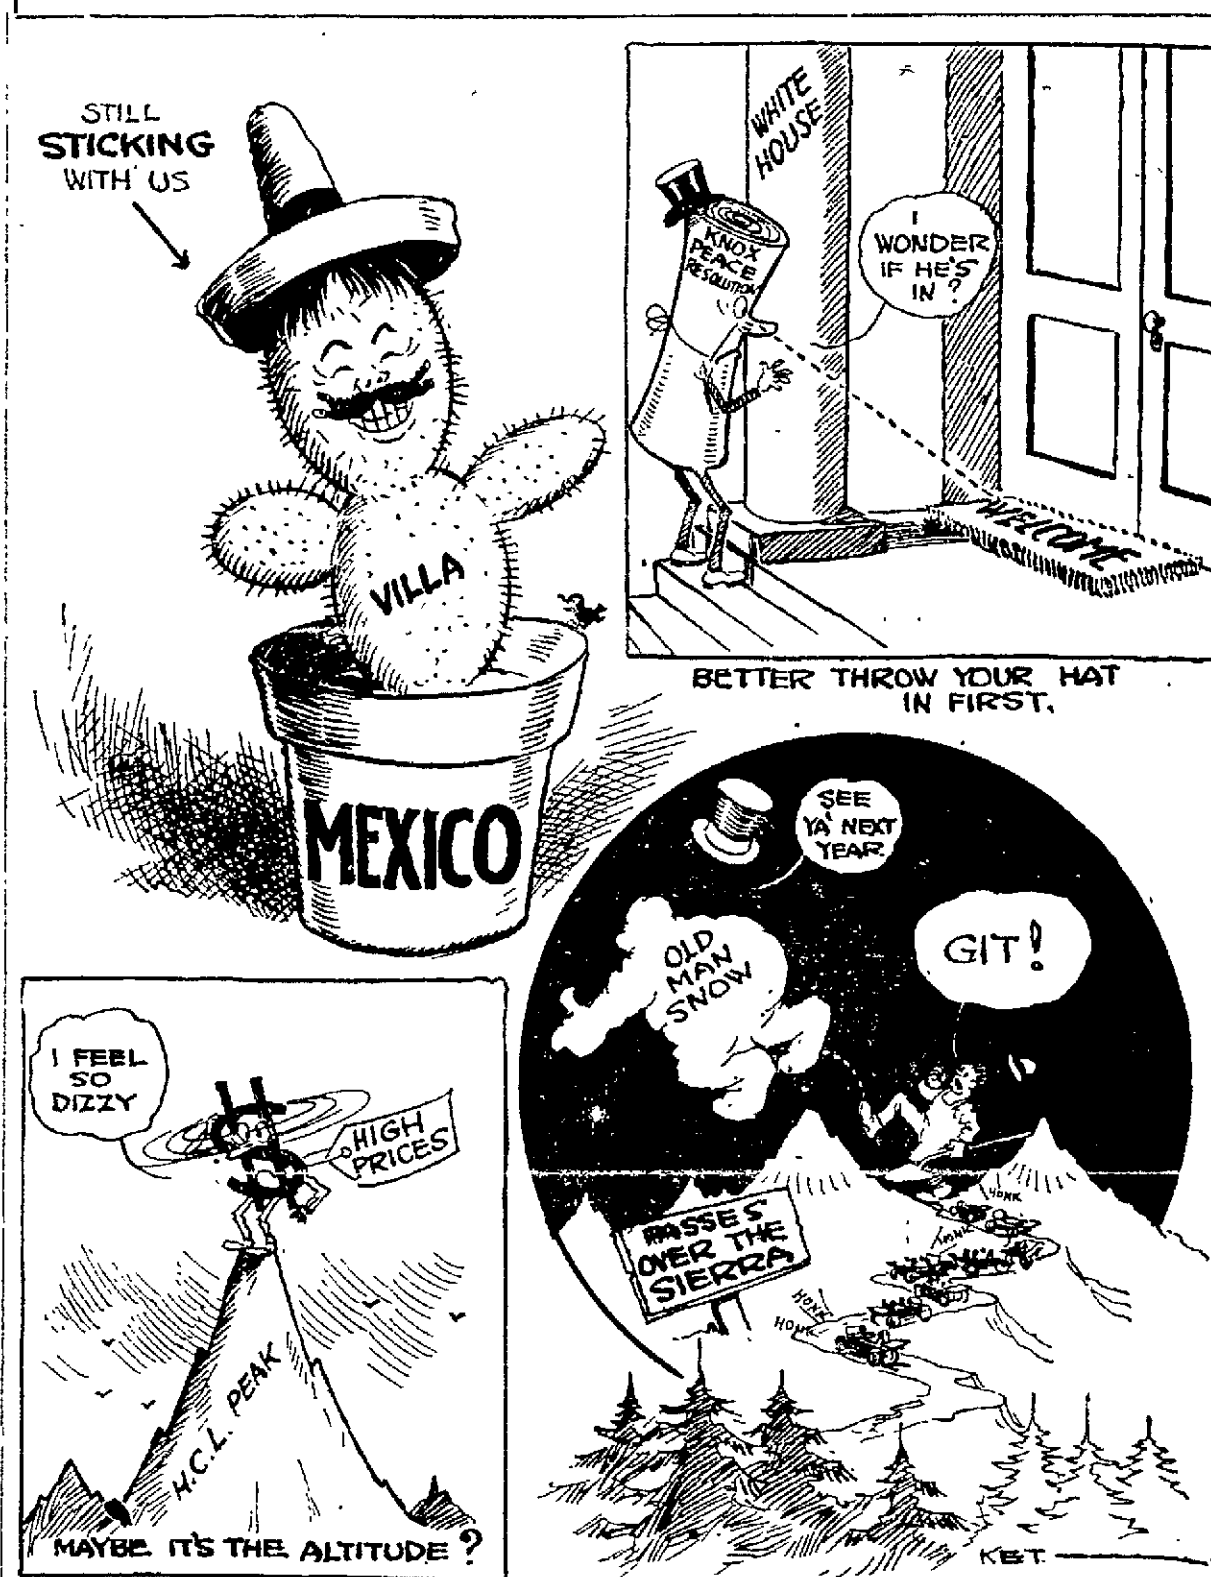

One of the speakers at the convention of clubwomen here told her hearers if they wished to keep their husbands they should study the film vampires. Even sorer, however, would be the intelligent perusal of the scenes of the city and an intelligent application thereof—Sacramento Bee.

News that the San Luis Obispo supervisors have been unable to secure bids on contracts for the construction of three sections of the highway system of that county, to be built from the money recently voted in a bond election, is causing the local good road committee no worry, in spite of the reports to the contrary circulated in other parts of the county. Contractors, it is said, are holding off from taking jobs of that size because of the uncertain market as to materials—Lompoc Review.

It is announced that soon a passenger can fly from Los Angeles to San Francisco at $100 per one way. This is a most serious time for the rail fare. The high cost of flying is the only fly in the flying ointment thus far—Sacramento Bee.

According to reports received from all districts of the state, it becomes apparent that the present yield for the season of 1920 will fall considerably below that of 1919. As a result of our survey we are not inclined to estimate the new crop at greater than 60 to 85 per cent of last season. Reports at the present time show a crop of potatoes light crop in the green shipping districts north of the bay, where Vacaville alone reports anything like 100 per cent yield—Niles Register.

EVENTS OF THE WEEK

CHIHUAHUA

Chihuahua, Mexican border state, reported to have gone over to the revolution, is described in the following bulletin from the Washington Geographic society: "Largest of Mexican states and richest in resources, Chihuahua has an area about twice that of Pennsylvania, but a population only two-thirds that of Pittsburgh. Were its lands allocated among its citizens every five persons might have more than a acre of land." "Such allotments would make many quintets of owners fabulously rich; for a Croesus might envy the wealth of some Chihuahua mines. Best known of these is the historic Santa Eulalia, 17 miles southeast of Chihuahua City, discovered in 1703, but not yet exhausted, from which have come millions of dollars worth of silver. Many of the silver mines possess ores of 50, 60 and even 75 percent metal, and there came from one Chihuahua mine a giant nugget of nearly 600 pounds of almost pure silver." "Gold, lead, iron and copper also are mined. Farming is a major industry of Chihuahua, and it has been stimulated by irrigation projects, though the agricultural output has been estimated, under normal conditions, to be only one-fourth as valuable as the minerals." "Cattle-raising is extensive. But the most recent, and potentially one of the most valuable industries of the State, is that connected with the vast forests. Resin and turpentine were derived from some of the mountain timber." "Four-fifths of Chihuahua consists of undulating table-lands, for the most part thousands of feet above sea level, offering extremes of temperature from the bleak snow-capped peaks in winter to the oppressive heat of valleys in midsummer. Rich in minerals, it is the State, taken as a whole, there are broad, arid, desert-like areas." "In Chihuahua grows the Agave, nature's own antidote for snake bites, dearsly also to the reptile which tastes its juice. The curious Chihuahua dog, if his pedigree can be verified, is almost worth his weight in gold. These tiny, sickly, rat-sized canines have been compared to the sleeves of dogs of China. A 'butterfly dog' of highest degree should weigh less than two pounds." "At Guanajuato is the Bastille of Mexico, the Alhondiga de Granaditas, once a grain market, later a prison, where the head of Iturbide was displayed on a spike for a decade as a warning to other revolutionists. Though Hidalgo was executed (two years before his trial was concluded, incidentally, and his army dispersed, he is known as the author of Mexican liberty. He rang Mexico's liberty bell on his church at Dolores in 1810, sounding the tocsin of the future freedom and long era of prosperity, interrupted by disturbances of the last few years." "Traces of the Apaches, once the 'cruel and most treacherous race in the world,' are to be found in Chihuahua, as are many cliff dwellings, Aztec mounds and various other ruins, which have not been studied. The conquest of these Anachas was one of the most difficult tasks of the white man's effort toward peaceful development of Mexico. The politically inclined may conclude that nature, as well as natives, helped make Chihuahua inhospitable. For many kinds of plants, especially in the desert, are thorny and prickly. Especially is this true of the prolific cactus. Moreover, one writer comments, 'The mountain ridges' present the most singular summits, terminating in pyramidal points, or resembling towers or minarets.' "Near Santa Rosalia, famous for its mineral waters, reputed to be helpful for treatment of rheumatism, are ruins of the fort taken by American troops which marched through Chihuahua in 1849 to join General Zachary Taylor."

THE ROTH CASE

To the Editor of The Tribune: Let us hope the publicity given this "Roth affair" will not result in more disasters of the kind, for there are a few persons like the ones involved in the world who would take up the idea from the Roth point of view. Of course, it is the offspring that suffers, and is there not enough of this kind of miserable, disgraceful misery in the world already? I think such people as this—that will stand up before the world, especially before our young daughters and our good old gray-haired mothers, and make such statements—should be ushered off of civilization to an island with other animals.

HEALTH and HAPPINESS

Why the Milk Bottle Is the "Barometer of Well-Being"

By DR. LEONARD K. HIRSBERG, A. B., M. D.

(Johns Hopkins University)

The primitive, time-honored cry of "no booze, no work" has changed at last to a physiological slogan, namely, "two bottles of milk a day drive the sulks and fatigue away." Strong drink is well sent to the discard if workers will go to the "milk bars" instead.

Milk adds to bone and tissue growth, thins and refreshes the blood, and goes to your very marrow and generates new blood corpuscles. It is the ammunition and commissary of the white blood corpuscles. It stores energy, makes heat, repairs wear and tear, is the brick and mortar of anatomical repair, and, all in all, contains vitamins, fats, oils, albumen, fertilizers, sweets and dust.

At the Wisconsin experimental station recently, as well as the University of Wisconsin, researches of an exact degree confirm the investigations of numerous scientists about the health preservative influence of pure, fresh milk, Pasteurized and boiled milk.

Milk is digested in two hours and is then available to your fabric in all its glory. It is utilized in its entirety through the performance of the function of assimilation, there being no refuse whatsoever to tax the power of the often overworked body machine.

Don't drink milk! Eat it. Take as much time with a glass of milk as you would with your very best breakfast. The milk has the same food value. If you take it slowly you will get the full enjoyment of its deliciously sweet flavor. Hold up the glass. Doesn't it look appetizing, wholesome and pure?

Prof. McCollum is not satisfied that one-fifth of all the food consumed in this country is dairy products. He says that milk is the greatest factor of safety in our nutrition, and it is certain we could not have accomplished what we have had we dispensed with milk as a food. He attributes our national success in very large part to the use of milk.

Heed this warning spoken by Dr. McCollum: "The use of milk must be increased. Its use in this country is the effects will soon become apparent in a lowering of our standards of health and efficiency."

Milk is not only the greatest factor of safety in our diet, but it has much potency to influence our physical wellbeing that the milk bottle is a veritable health barometer. Folks between 25 and 60 years—you drink at least a pint of milk each day; this is between 12 and 12 percent of your daily health requirements. Young folks, 18 to 25 years, you must drink at least a quart, which will consist of 15 to 20 percent of all the food necessary during the day.

Old folks, 60 years and over, should be almost wholly limited in their diet to milk, which should be 95 percent at the minimum. As they grow older this proportion may be safely reduced, but until they are 12 years old, never below 60 percent of their daily food requirements.

Two quarts from sun to sun is not a bit too much for these little people. As for the "old folks," they will be comfortable and happy on a ration consisting of at least 50 to 65 percent milk.

A couple of glasses at a time (milk is not bulky) in morning, noon, afternoon and evening will attend to your nutrition requirements nicely.

In view of all of these facts the problem of supplying healthful milk would seem to the distributor one of such a nature that he could not hope to solve it. Pasteur found that most bacteria are killed at such low temperatures that a food like milk can be freed from dangerous organisms and not be changed in the process.

The process called pasteurizing solves the problem of wholesome milk. The tubercle bacillus, the typhoid organism and other harmful bacteria likely to be found in milk are destroyed when it is heated to a temperature of 145 deg. for 25 to 30 minutes. This temperature does not change the food value of the milk even for the most delicate children. It makes possible milk that contains no harmful bacteria.

EUGENIE 94 YEARS OLD.

That Empress Eugenie should now be visiting Spain and should have arrived at Seville to make a stay of some duration with her grand-nephew, the seventeenth Duke of Alba, serves to direct attention to the extraordinary vitality and longevity of this wonderful old lady, who, according to the standard works of reference, official and otherwise, was born at Granada, in Spain, 34 years ago, but who is in the belief of many much older, at least 97 years of age. It was at Seville that she celebrated her official birthday.

There has been a great deal of mystery with regard to her birth and origin. The parish registers of births and deaths at Granada were mutilated and subjected to erasures and corrections about the time of Eugenie's marriage to Napoleon III in January, 1853.

She is alleged that both Eugenie and her sister, the Duchess of Alba, were the daughters, not the Comtesse de Montijo, but the offspring of Princess Christina of Bourbon, daughter of Francis I of Naples and of the Two Sicilies. Christina is known to have been secretly married by a priest in Calabria to an English artist of the name of Ward, a brother of her governess, and to have had some children by him before becoming in December, 1829, the fourth queen of Ferdinand VII of Spain. It is claimed that when the Duke of Montijo was married along with a mission of Spanish dignitaries to Naples as principal bridesmaid to escort the royal bride to Madrid she quickly won the affection and entire confidence of the princess, who confided to her the story of her secret and in point of law illegal marriage and the existence of her children.—Washington Post.

THE SPIRIT OF COURAGE.

Do you know the regular and rhythmic beat O'er turf and o'er rock-land of coursers' swift feet?
Slowly at starting—then leap after leap Gaining and quickening, onrushing they sweep
Forward, forward and forward!
E'er the silk breasts plunging head.
'Gainst the roaring driven wind...
What matters it, where is the end?
'Tis the joy of the running—light bodies that surge
In swift motion onward!... Nor lash nor spur-steel their brave spirits urge.
Pure joy in the running, the being,
the doing, the flight
Over the courses, or boggy and heavy, or light.
Click, click, click
Quick, quick! quick!
Fast, fast, and faster now!
Faster!
Despising, o'er-riding, defeating disaster!
'Tis only our heart-beats that pounding, we hear
Our heart-beats triumphant, o'erriding star fear.
CLAUDIUS THAYER.
Berkeley, May, 1920.

SILENCE AND SUFFLE.

In the reconstruction through which the world is now passing, nothing is so necessary as a wholehearted attitude towards society in general. Nothing can be accomplished where everyone distrusts his fellow. All good work requires unity of purpose, unity of action, unity of confidence. We have said in our haste all men are liars, all men are thieves and robbers, humanity is rotten to the core. Let us as hastily unsay it and get down to work.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

'MELT IN ARMS' DANCES BANNED

CHICAGO, May 22.—School dances in Chicago this summer will be of the simon-pure variety. The following set of rules have been drawn up by the High School Dances' association.

Partners take one another, six or seven inches apart, being your own rulers, bodies parallel, shoulders parallel and with heads erect.

British Urged to Help Germany Nation's Ruin Means Ruin of Europe Bryce Talks on Plans for Peace

BERLIN, May 22.—Viscount Bryce speaking in the British House of Lords during the debate on the conditions in Central Europe, said: "We, too, are partly responsible for the misery which has come to these countries. The mistakes for which Germany has been blamed are really those which have been given a place in the peace treaty. They were mistakes and the wish to harm, revenge and humiliate the enemy without seeing that one may no too far in this direction."

His statement showing as it does the strong sense of justice of the speaker, gives one courage to consider the possibility and the suitability of paving the way to an understanding between the English and the Germans.

Politically there is nothing to hinder an understanding between England and Germany. Would such an understanding be to England's interest?

I admit that I am a pacifist, and my greatest wish is that peace may be secured to mankind for as long a time as possible. But I realize from the point of view of modern politics that it is better not to count too much on the intelligence of nations which ought to insist for their own good on the settlement of all disputes by diplomatic means instead of by force of arms.

SUGGESTS AGREEMENT.

From this point of view it appears to me that it would be to the advantage of England and Germany to aspire to the thought of an agreement between the two countries. If regard to economic questions, it would not be a difficult matter to safeguard the interests of both sides. The commerce and industry of the two nations are interdependent. Each is the customer and provider for the other.

A close co-operation between England and Germany may be the means of procuring peace for the world. By this it is not meant that militarism would be in any way of guiding factor in such a co-operation. For a long time to come Germany will not be in a position to think of restoring her military power.

Wortham Shows to Remain This Afternoon and Evening

"BABE," born with Wortham Shows, is given first look at the world by "PONGO," his mother. These monkeys are valuable specimens of the Ruis monkey family.

Gigantic "Tented City" of Fun and Frolic Closes Successful Engagement at Midnight Tonight

Although their engagement for the Shrine Spring Carnival closed at midnight last night, the Wortham Shows through being compelled to make a change in their traveling schedule, will exhibit in Oakland, under their own auspices, this afternoon and evening on the same grounds at 5th ave. and East 14th st.

Another opportunity to enjoy "Over the Hills," the sensational Coney Island attraction, the Big Trained Animal Circus, Submarine Exhibit, Hawaiian Show and many other high class and modern attractions will be afforded the public today.

After midnight tonight there will be 200 less people in Oakland. It takes that number to handle this unique amusement enterprise, with a special train of thirty-five cars.

Arrangements for Oakland in six weeks is a record breaking event in the Show World. This is what the Wortham Shows accomplished on their first trip to California.

The Wortham Shows are located on EAST 14TH ST., AT 54TH AVENUE. All cars connect to the show grounds. No admission charge to the grounds. (Advertisement.)

MALE VAMPING URGED TO HELP OUT SELLING

CHICAGO, May 18.—The male business vamping is the latest success in selling goods. Professor Frank W. Dugan, of La Salle Extension University, explained his art in a speech here recently on "Coquetry in the Sales Letter."

"Notice how a woman always manages to keep a man busy," said the professor. "She drops her handkerchief; she complains of thirst; she is fatigued; there are a million other subterfuges to attract attention. She keeps him in a constant worry and never for a moment allows him to think he is victor."

"As a last resort a woman will play upon the emotions and the feelings of a male caller. She makes him jealous by smiling at other men."

"Do the same thing with your customer. Excite his jealousy by holding back a little of the desired article."

Ford Urges Action in Newberry Case

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, May 22.—Immediate investigation of the Ford-Newberry election contest charges was urged today by counsel for Henry Ford before the Senate subcommittee in charge of the election contest. Ford, represented by Alfred Lucking, presented a motion for immediate consideration. James O. Murfin and Martin W. Littleton, counsel for Newberry, urged that no action be taken until the Michigan court delivers an opinion on the appeal of the case decided by the Michigan court against Newberry.

Picture Bride Pact Ruled Out of Court

SEATTLE, May 22.—Japanese picture brides were severely scored by Superior Judge Calvin H. Hall yesterday, who refused to recognize the legality of the picture bride agreement. He denied divorce to Ikuo Utsunomiya, picture bride. The decision was appealed to the State Supreme Court today.

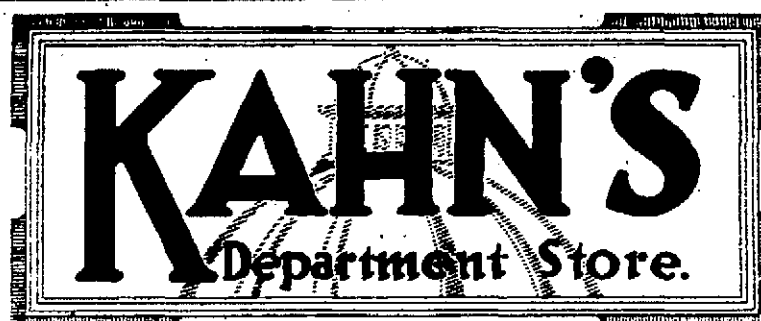

"People must be married before they can be divorced," Judge Hall said.

EASTBAY SOCIETY NEWS

LUNCHEON HOST

Mrs. George Dillman of Alameda was hostess on Wednesday at luncheon at the Claremont Country Club, entertaining for Mrs. Harry Knowles who recently returned from the east with her daughter, Miss Jessie Knowles.

Mrs. Homer Clarke Poundstone and her aunt, Mrs. Marie Chauche, have sent out cards for Tuesday afternoon, when they will entertain at the Claremont Country Club prior to the departure of Mrs. Poundstone for West Virginia.

Cards have been received for a tea which Mrs. Harry Houghton will give at her home in Tenth avenue, June 2, for Miss Helen Coogan and Mrs. Samuel Barbour, who is visiting from her home in Canada.

Sunday afternoon at the parsonage of the First Methodist Church in Alameda a group of friends and relatives witnessed the marriage of Morton Sterling Buell of Alameda, avenue and Miss Fay Georgia Hoover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hoover. The service was read by Rev. E. R. Dille. Among the guests were Miss Thelma Hoover and L. V. Hoover. Mrs. Michael and Miss Gertrude Michael, Mrs. Harry Smith Sr. and Mrs. Harry Smith and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Ulrich.

Miss Anna Hunt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hunt of Santa Clara avenue, Alameda, with her mother, will leave on Wednesday for Salt Lake City, where the Alameda girl's marriage to Moore Lowrey Allen will take place June 23.

Mr. Allen is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Allen of Eighth avenue, Salt Lake City. The wedding will take place at the Allen home. The bridegroom has recently completed the medical course at the University of Utah, and in the autumn will continue his work at the Johns Hopkins University, while his bride will take up the study of art.

Mrs. Hunt and her daughter will be accompanied to Salt Lake City by Miss Marjory Stanley, who will be bridesmaid.

HOHEN RECITALS

The Paul O. Tietzen home was the fit setting for the interpretation of Ferrar's "Jewels of the Madonna," one of the most charming of the readings of Sydney Francis Hohen's inspirational group.

The sponsors for the series in the Berkeley town are the Mesdames:

Frank S. McCullough, Shirell Hall, William E. Dyer, Dyer H. Faye, T. B. Moore, W. O. Heron, E. S. Sikes, Thomas B. Rieley, Ralph B. Rice, Harry P. Rasmussen, C. F. Pond, Victor Fong, Walter T. Wood, Samuel Huse, H. S. Howard, Curtis Wright, Kenneth Jester, Angus Clark, Charles William Cram, Clyde E. Sefer, George Heston, Leroy Austin, Lester Richards, Walter Clark, E. S. Tanner, Oscar Barber, Gordon Hall, George T. Gray.

Because of Mr. Hohen's departure for Australia, there will be two recitals this week. The first will be on Wednesday and Miss Sans Gene on Saturday.

Miss Betty Burns entertained for a hundred of the younger set on Friday evening at her Piedmont apartments, giving a dinner dance in honor of her cousin, Miss Louise Howard, who is soon to wed Mr. Granville A. Mosely, Jr., of New York.

FOR "PROVIDENCE"

Providence Hospital, one of the institutions of Oakland that maintains a free bed, has among its friends a group of earnest women—the Ladies' Auxiliary—who see to it that funds are on hand to keep its usefulness at its highest point.

On Thursday afternoon, a card party will be given to raise funds for the cause, at the Hotel Oakland—the annual card party, as a matter of fact.

And it is a bit of good news that over four hundred tickets have been sold for the party, when bridge or five hundred will be offered for what promises to be a most successful afternoon. Among those who have the affair in charge are the Mesdames:

Thomas P. Hogan, S. J. Silva, Peter C. Quinn, Thomas P. Hogan, Jr., W. T. Morton, James McAllister, D. J. McMan, C. B. Hale, John Slavic, C. B. Hale, A. A. Kennedy, E. W. Harlan.

NOTABLE RECITAL

A notable musical and social event of a busy month was the recital given by Miss Virginia Goodsell at the Hotel Oakland Thursday evening, where a representative gathering of talented young vocalists. The affair marked the only professional appearance on the coast of Miss Goodsell during her short visit.

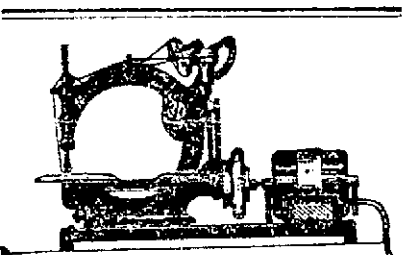

Splendid expression of personality, a good voice and dramatic talent were evidenced by the singer in her rendition of a well balanced program.

Following her return from overseas, Miss Goodsell devoted a year to study in New York with Mme. Yvette Guilbert, and it is her intention to return to the metropolis soon for an indefinite stay. Since adding musical readings to her repertoire as a singer, Miss Goodsell has attained a fine success in Gotham where the critics predict a brilliant future for her.

After the concert an informal reception was held in the hotel lounge. Among the representative people present were:

Mrs. M. M. Merriman and Miss Virginia McKay, sisters of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Merriman, spent the week-end at the Merriman ranch in Hayward. They had as their guest, Miss Ida Body, principal of the Merriman school in Piedmont.

A Value Demonstration In Our Millinery Shop

Demonstration No. 4

Clearance of All Trimmed Hats

starts Monday morning with our usual deep, season-end reductions.

$4.75 $9.75 $14.75 $16.75

Are the four new prices which now include every trimmed hat in stock (excepting only a few newly received hats and sport modes). These four prices offer savings of one-third, half and even more on hats of unusual smartness. Large hats, small hats, hats of many shapes, colors and trimmings. "Model" hats from noted creators are all included.

We wish it distinctly understood that the reductions featured in this clearance are the usual deep price-cuts which are customarily taken at this time every season in order to clear our Millinery stocks. It is our policy to always provide decisive savings in such events—and this regular season millinery clearance starts tomorrow as a hearty demonstration of that value-policy.

Rapture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificates being marked "Rapture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the symptoms of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a brass, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truth is only a makeshift—a false support against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The blood pressure, which is the most scientific, logical and successful treatment for rapture, the world has ever known.

But science has found a way, and every true sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAD method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful treatment for rapture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAD PAD when adhered closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place. Therefore, cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached. Learn how to close the hernial opening at nature intended as the rupture CAN'T come down. Women of Alameda County and Their Work

Wide Spread and Varied Program of Pending Laws Considered by Club Women

By EDNA B. KINARD

When Adam got into trouble his children with tendency toward tuberculosis is still on the job. While even yet the masculine brow may be a bit uplifted in a superior sort of a way over the efforts of his mother, his wife or his daughter, she goes right valiantly on doing it. Large conventions of women have marked these closing days of the season. No pink teas have distinguished the deliberations. The delegates have debated serious matters for legislation, taken stringent action and agreed that what must be done is to be done.

LAW BEING CONSIDERED
A brief resume of the feminine mind in these early summer days before the club doors swing closed for their three months' vacation may not be amiss. Federal laws are none too important for women to give heed to—do they not live under them as well as the men? The Smith-Towner bill providing educational development; the Pass bill permitting training in home craft; the Vesper bill, protecting prohibition; the bill extending military rank to nurses of the staff and rank—these are some of the important matters which are familiar to the majority of feminine citizens in California.

The power of public opinion is coming to the aid of the wife in the movement to defeat the referendum which will decide in November whether a married woman may will one-half her community property to her children or not. More than 100,000 organized women are determined that the father and the mother alike shall have the right to extend protection to their children and have entered the fight to defeat the referendum by voting "yes." State finances are greatly agitating the home-makers whose minds extend even to the state housing keeping and from them has come the suggestion that the poll tax be restored, and that it be trebled on those who are aliens. Redwood forests and streams must be protected, declare they who have facts and figures to prove that California is all too swiftly being devastated and the water supplies endangered. It is to be expected that the women would find importance in the beautification of highways and prohibition have loomed big and given inhibition of that which mars their picturesqueness. Hence some interesting legislation has been proposed.

MRS. THOMAS REED is the newly-elected president of the University Women's Club which plans shortly to open a unique clubhouse in Berkeley. The club has a membership of more than 250 college graduates.—Boye Photo for the Keystone View Company.

Center Will Elect Officers

Oakland Center, California Civic League, comes up to its annual meeting on Friday to review the work of the past year and elect a board of directors into whose keeping will be given the business of the important organization for the coming twelve months. It is quite the fashion this closing month of the club season to tinker and amend constitution and by-laws. The civic center will not be the exception. The most important change proposed will have to do with increasing membership fees. The high cost of living does not apply alone to food and clothing but to housing and printing and numerous other items as well. Therefore it has been found expedient by the board of directors to ask the members to sanction an advance from one dollar to one dollar and a half for annual dues and from fifty cents to seventy-five cents for a half year. Inasmuch as this fee covers the entire financial responsibility of the membership, the center may still claim the lowest dues of any established and reputable organization in the city.

Mrs. C. F. Williams has been nominated to succeed Mrs. Frank G. Law as president. Mrs. Law became the president of the California Civic League at its annual meeting last week. For the vice president the names of Mrs. E. C. Edley and Mrs. A. E. Thurston have been presented. Other candidates for election are: Recording secretary, Mrs. C. E. Vance; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. R. Erdman; publication secretary, Mrs. L. G. Leonard; auditors, Mrs. A. G. Evanson, Mrs. P. J. Kramer; directors, Mrs. Porter Mickle; Mrs. W. H. Kelley.

Plan Convention Trip

The "Golden Prairie Biennial Special" will leave Oakland on Thursday, June 10, arriving in Des Moines, Iowa, in ample time for the opening of the international conference of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Prominent California club leaders, headed by Mrs. Aaron Schloss, president of the State Federation, are arranging the journey which will take them across the prairie.

Already twenty well-known women have made their reservations to accompany the party. They will be joined in Nevada by a half score additional delegates. As the train proceeds on its way other federation specialists will be added. The club special from the southern part of the state bearing Mrs. Josiah Evans, Cowles, general president; Mrs. Robert Burdette, Mrs. Herbert A. Cable, secretary, Mrs. W. H. Kelley; treasurer, Mrs. E. S. Panton; corresponding secretary, Mrs. George Samuels; assistant secretary, Mrs. H. E. Wharton; chairman of departments, Mrs. Nellie Nelson.

The May luncheon committee in charge of the party, Mrs. Alvin Viss, Mrs. William Voltes, Mrs. C. C. N. Walter, Mrs. Alfred Walker, Mrs. E. A. Watson, Mrs. Warren Webb, Mrs. C. L. Wenk, Mrs. Thelma Westphal, Mrs. H. E. Wharton, Mrs. J. Whitten, Mrs. Allan Wickland, Mrs. Gladys Wickland, Mrs. L. Winsor, Mrs. Herbert Wise, Mrs. I. Vollin, Mrs. F. H. Greene; recording secretary, Mrs. J. C. Chestnut; financial secretary, Mrs. W. H. Kelley; treasurer, Mrs. E. S. Panton; corresponding secretary, Mrs. George Samuels; assistant secretary, Mrs. H. E. Wharton; chairman of departments, Mrs. Nellie Nelson.

250 University Women Unite With New Club

Standing unique among the women's newer organizations in this part of California is the University Women's Club which already has a membership roll of more than 250 college graduates. Its purpose is to establish in Berkeley a clubhouse similar to the University Club carried on by the men in San Francisco which shall be one in a string of similar institutions across the continent. Mrs. Thomas H. Reed of Berkeley has been elected president. With her board of directors she is busily engaged in inaugurating the work preliminary to the opening of the clubhouse. Those who are associated with Mrs. Reed in the responsibilities are: Vice presidents, Mrs. Rudolph Schevill, Mrs. Ramsey Probasco; recording secretary, Mrs. A. E. Randall; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. W. Whitney; treasurer, Mrs. MacDonald Robinson; auditor, Mrs. Louis Hermann; historian, Miss Irene Birge; directors, Miss Mary E. Wilson, Miss Harriet Thomson, Mrs. Ralph Marx, Mrs. J. Warner Brown.

Ebell Members To Hear Writer Next Tuesday

Peter Clark Macfarlane will be the speaker before Ebell members and their guests on Tuesday afternoon when the final program of the club year will be presented. The preliminary concert will be presented by Mrs. Ruth Waterman Anderson assisted by Miss Beatrice Sherwood as accompanist. Mrs. Minna Maculey will be hostess of the day.

It was Ebell which introduced an interesting resolution before the annual convention of the California Federation of Women's Clubs in Sacramento by whose adoption a federation policy was outlined. The resolution called for deliberate action in the consideration and endorsement of all resolutions to be made food for obligatory that with their submittal, arguments should also be included.

Prison Reform Subject of Legislators

"Problems" is the significant subject which Mrs. Anna Saylor, assemblywoman, will offer for consideration to the women of the Alta Mira Club tomorrow. Practically this same talk was presented before the club women of the state in Sacramento a fortnight ago, when the woman legislator gave the leaders of the club for thought along the lines of conservation of forests and streams, prison reform and a revised system for state finances. Delegates to the state convention, National Federation of Women's Clubs, will review the Sacramento session.

A program of music will be rendered by Mrs. Mildred L. S. Warrick, piano; Mrs. W. O. Davies, vocal; Mrs. T. Grant, accompanist. Mrs. C. E. Anderson will be chairman of the day with Mrs. O. F. Chichester, hostess.

Adelphians to Celebrate End Of 1920 Work

Clever Women to Furnish Mirth at Rock Ridge Jinks

The club jinks preceded by the May luncheon of the Rock Ridge Woman's Club on Tuesday will be for members only, but will be none the less brilliant or mirthful for all. ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN

Bables and livestock, cookery and lace, handicraft and flowers, song, dance, laughter and mirth, are some of the things which will make the Neighborhood Fair at the Lazzar School on June 4 one of the most remarkable events which the early summer will give. The faculty at the school, the home teacher and the foreign born women and girls are uniting their efforts to make the Community Festival the most elaborate and interesting ever held in the city. From out the small homes the treasures will be brought, heirlooms from another land, exquisite handicraft which combines the old country ideals with the new, mysterious foreign dishes of national fame, to please the public taste. Products of the land reaped from the small gardens, flowers made beautiful by much care, will crowd the gay booths. All day and evening the people will throng with their babel of tongues to make merry together.

The Community Festival which has been held at that thought that Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's wife are all the same under the skin and that whether eyes are black or eyes are blue, all are Americans together, is for everybody. The foreign born man and woman and the child who some day will cast the ballot will see much out of this curious time in which the homely things of life will be featured. But the American will not give all.

Mrs. Walter DuBois Brookings was elected president of the California branch of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae at the annual meeting held yesterday in the Claremont Hotel. Mrs. Brookings, who succeeds Miss Rosalind Keep, is a graduate of Wellesley. Those who will be associated with her on the board of directors are: Vice president, Miss Emma Noonan; recording secretary, Mrs. Walter Dodge; corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. A. Knebel; business secretary, Miss Elizabeth Kellum; treasurer, Mrs. T. J. Bagalupi; auditor, Mrs. Walter Burpee; directors, Mrs. T. C. Gregory, Mrs. E. W. Currier, Mrs. Willard Wayman, Miss Helen Pocham, Miss Anne Whitely; councilors, Mrs. H. L. Dungan, Miss Marion Leale, Miss Mabel Pierce, Mrs. Frederick Paulkner.

Reports of officers and standing committees, of the association program in the conference of the social agencies at Riverside, and the Council meeting in Cleveland, Ohio, were presented on the afternoon program.

A directory of officers and club members will be ready for distribution next month.

Albania is probably the only country in the world where a wife can be purchased on the installment plan just the same as a piano or an encyclopedia can be secured. In Albania a partial payment on the purchase of the girl desired is paid to the parents when the engagement takes place, after which she is no longer offered for sale, but is set aside like an article on which a deposit has been made. When the installment has been paid, when she is delivered to her husband.

Auxiliaries then retired to Corinthian Hall, Pacific building, to conduct their business sessions. Dept. President Lillian Archer presided. President General Lenhardt was present the first day. Department officers were presented to President General Lenhardt and Department President Lillian Archer.

Camps and auxiliaries of Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley working together, made this encampment a complete success. Julia A. Martin is preparing to take part in Memorial day services. Sisters Hutchinson and Law were reported on the sick list; Sister Rich removed with her family, to New York to reside.

PYTHIAN SISTERS.
Calanthe Temple, No. 6, Pythian Sisters held its regular meeting last Tuesday evening at Pythian Castle with E. S. Martha Nelson presiding. All sick members were reported improving. A cordial invitation was extended the members to attend a dance next Tuesday evening to be given by Dirigo Lodge, No. 224, K. of P.

The first Tuesday evening in June the past chiefs are to be special guests at a social evening. P. C. Brown is chairman of the affair. An enjoyable evening is expected.

GIRLS OF '61-'65.
The regular weekly meeting of the Girls of '61-'65 was called to order by Captain Mrs. McMath. It was arranged finally that the flag this organization is giving will be put up in the triangle near the Auditorium. An invitation was received from Rev. Van Horn to meet at the First Congregational Church Sunday, May 30, to join in appropriate services. The Girls are also invited to join with the ladies of the Col. J. B. Wyman Circle, G. A. R., in serving luncheon to Veterans on Monday, May 31, at Pacific building.

After the usual business and admission of new members, the following program was rendered: Piano solo, Mrs. Rowe; vocal solo, E. M. Oney; musical selections, Mrs. Crowhurst; songs, Mrs. Hartman, accompanied by Mrs. Burkes; reading, Mrs. Captain Daily; essay, Mrs. Wagner; patriotic talk, Mrs. Kales; old songs, Mrs. Cooper; recitation, Mrs. Young. Comrades and others gave timely and interesting remarks. At the meeting, May 28, the fifty-sixth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Bliss will be celebrated. The Girls will bring cake and the Comrades pennies to pay for ice cream. They say there will be a "blissful time."

COL. WYMAN CIRCLE.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 22.—The local Democracy pledged itself to raise $200,000 as a condition to securing the national convention. Of this, $125,000 is to be paid the national committee, with no questions asked, and the remainder is to defray the expenses of the sessions, which are expected to be considerable. San Francisco is expected to live up to its reputation, and not to be "right" in these matters. Up to 9 o'clock Saturday morning of last week the sum of $112,500 had been raised. And the big sources of revenue had all been exploited and considerable had been done in the by-paths. It is proverbially difficult to raise a Democratic fund. Rich Democrats are slow in coming through, and there doesn't seem to be a large bourgeoisie element that loosens up moderately, as there is in the Republican party. Indeed, a considerable part of the amount collected is said to have come from Republicans, with the philanthropic idea of helping out in an emergency. The city's reputation for hospitality is felt to be at stake, and party lines should not divide too definitely in such an emergency. The plan of assuring contributors a ticket of admission for every hundred dollars contributed is now being tried, but it has not proven invariably attractive. There have been proposals in which the hundred dollars were to be made up by several, they to pro rata on a single ticket, each to have it for one session. Other strange stories are told by some of the canvassers that have been sent out to gather up the necessary fund.

Where Is Heney?

Inquiry has been made as to Francis J. Heney. In the considerable turmoil of a presidential primary, and the very general discussion of the merits and claims of two California aspirants, he has not fluttered a signal or done ought to remind the populace that he is still extant. This when he has figured so large in the affairs of this State, and even the nation. In the last gubernatorial primary he aspired to be the Democratic nominee, and for a time appeared to be backed in that ambition by the national administration. It subsequently appeared that the national administration, which had taken him on as prosecutor in a certain line of litigation, had enjoyed his services in sufficiency, and took that skillful method of unloading him. The query recurs as to where he has been an outcast to which so much has been doing—and where he is now, and why he is not expressing his preferences in his usual emphatic way? Public curiosity on these points is natural as to a personage that at one time cut such a considerable figure politically and otherwise in the affairs of California.

Spurious Campaign Issue

Already an issue has been raised as to the Wallace campaign for senator. It is of course known that his slogan is prohibition, and it transpires that his is to be a church campaign. Nobody can make objection to that, but somebody, taking account of the organized effort to get action in his behalf through the churches, has cited the law which exempts church property from taxation except when it is used for other purposes than worship. Any meeting, therefore, on church premises at which any hint is dropped as to the desirability of anybody's election to civic office is open to a charge of having been used for other purposes than worship. This is one of the queer early outcroppings of the campaign, and by the thinking contingent is not expected to amount to much. It appears to have been considered that it will have some effect as a bluff, but it must be realized that any overt attempt to make point through such tactics is likely to prove a boom or bang.

"Bob" Ritchie Back

Those who know the "Bob" Ritchie who left Oakland some fifteen years ago to storm the battlements of journalism and literature in New York will not find in "Robert Welles Ritchie," just returned as the Pacific Coast editorial representative of the Curtis publications, much change. He is the son of the late Rev. Robert Ritchie, for many years pastor of St. Paul's, Oakland, and one of the most earnest and polished divines of his day. Young Ritchie went through the University of California shortly after Richard Walton Tully, and others who have attained literary fame. He engaged in journalism in Oakland and San Francisco for a while, and then invaded New York, landing at that much-desired Mecca, the New York Sun, under Chester Lord. He soon earned a place in that journalistic-literary family that made the Sun the best written and best edited daily of its time. He was the Sun correspondent through the revolutions that caused the downfall of Diaz, Madero and Huerta in succession. When the wires informed the world that Peary was on his way to Battle Harbor from the North Pole Chester Lord walked into the editorial room of the Sun one afternoon and looked his staff over. "Can you drop what you are doing?" he asked of Ritchie, Ritchie could. "There is a train leaving at 6:30 for Nova Scotia. Take it, and God will help you to get to Battle Harbor in some way." Two hours later Ritchie was on his way, and he got to Battle Harbor and got his story. When there was a sporadic revolution in Portugal, Ritchie, being then in the Hearst employ, was ordered to interview former King Manuel in London. Manuel refused to see press representatives, but Ritchie waited until the ex-king came down stairs and then proceeded to interview him. "But it isn't done this way," said the ex-king, who had acquired English speech and ways. "But it is done," replied Ritchie, who had got his interview, which he cabled to New York, and had the satisfaction of seeing the correspondents of the London papers cable it back a day later. Ritchie always liked California. He is at present living at Piedmont, and is moving his goods and chattels out from New York with the intent to re-establish his lares and penates here.

The Wets Comforted

The satisfaction which that division of the populace generally referred as "the wets" experienced from the intimations of Mr. Justice Holmes, in a case in which prohibition was not involved—that the founders of the nation and the framers of the constitution left no sign in their patriotic work which can be construed as antagonism to liquor—has been added to by a decision by Federal Judge Dooling of this jurisdiction, rendered last Monday. It was in the case of Peter Caswell, proprietor of a small hotel. It seems that a captured still was one of the exhibits which it was sought to introduce as evidence; but as soon as it was brought out that this and other evidence had been secured by breaking into private premises without a search warrant, the Judge instructed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty. The Judge then expressed himself to the effect that intrusion of private premises without search warrant, even to enforce the Volstead law, is unlawful. "If we are to enforce the law we must uphold the law," is the general way in which he stated it. "The stand thus taken, it is believed, will materially slow up the enforcement of prohibition, as many of the raids of government officers upon unlawful caches and hidden activities in connection with the unlawful traffic have been without search warrants.

Cabrera Defended

How imperfectly we are advised of the real conditions in the American republics, and of the character of their presidents and leading men, is well illustrated in the case of President Cabrera of Guatemala. His recent deposition has been characterized in some accounts as the overthrow of a tyrant. He had been in the ascendant for twenty-two years, and maintained himself much as Diaz did in Mexico—being what has been denominated a "benevolent despot." Some of the acts which he considered necessary for self-protection and the ultimate good of the country were high-handed—the shooting of cadets who had planned and attempted his assassination, for instance. He seems to have controlled his people in ways that he found necessary. Now are appearing letters and articles telling of his commendable qualities and traits, one of which was a consistent friendship for Americans. It was a saying in Guatemala that President Cabrera would not permit Americans to be molested. Indeed, the cabal against him is said to have been at least intensified by propaganda of German planters who had acquired holdings in the country, which were sequestered during the war. At any rate, a considerable chorus is going up in defense of Cabrera from Americans who have lived or are interested in Guatemala.

Removal of Statuary

The downtown congestion has become so considerable that the proposition has been mooted to remove the Donahue fountain from Battery and Market streets. This is still referred to as a "fountain," though the fountain feature was some time ago eliminated to increase the space at this intersection. In addition to the room taken up, the fountain proved a catch-all, and for most of the time was a debris stream pond. Indeed, such small favor was it in as a fountain that the water was latterly turned off. Filling in and paving the basin eliminated a nuisance and afforded more space; but the congestion has increased so that some who are interested would remove the group of naked forerunners altogether. But there is opposition, based it would seem on sentiment. The matter has been laid before the Board of Supervisors, who called City Attorney Lull in consultation, who advised that it be referred to the Park Commission, where the matter reposes. This action has directed attention to the Lick group at the Civic Center, which will be in the way more than it is now when all the streets are cut through, and the removal of which is expected to be urged. The natural place for such statuary is considered to be the parks, but the commissioners do not seem to encourage the idea of their finding anchorage there.

An Unique Scheme

I have been afforded an insight of a unique and original project that is all ripe for the overt effort. It is nothing less than a scheme to construct a monster garage under Union Square. As the plans have been formulated, the square is to be excavated to the required depth, a two-story garage built in the excavation, and the soil then returned to a sufficient depth to sustain grass and flowers, but not trees. Besides accommodation for automobiles there will be shops for repair of machines, arrangements for renovating them, barber shops, restaurants, and all those purveying shops that will naturally go in such company. That somebody has great faith in the project is attested by the fact that no less an engineer than Howard C. Holmes has been employed to figure out the plans. Every feature has received, the minutest attention, and a showing made as to the probable financial returns. The plans are said to have involved an outlay of $10,000. It doesn't appear who is standing this, but probably a syndicate. It is hinted that Chris Buckley could throw light on this preliminary phase. Two very important matters will have to be solved before the plan is realized. One is obtaining the concession from the city, and the other is interesting the capital to put the project through. Being without precedent the enterprise would be something of a gamble, and obtaining a lease from the Board of Supervisors is a matter that cannot be gauged at all.

News From An Unusual Quarter

It probably isn't a matter of general knowledge that the production of railroad ties is such an extensive industry that those engaged in it have formed a national organization which issues an official publication. The title of the organization is The National Association of Railroad Tie Producers, and that of its publication The Railroad Tie Producer, which is issued semi-monthly from St. Louis. The first annual convention of the association was held at Chicago April 22-23, and the next one has been set for San Francisco, January 27-28, 1921, to be held in conjunction with that of the American Wood Preservers' Association. As is the case with all special publications, this one contains matter of interest to others than those engaged in the particular business of getting out ties. "There is a brisk demand," it says, "for Oregon pine (Douglas fir) ties in the United Kingdom. The Ocean Lumber Company of San Francisco was the successful bidder for 38,000,000 feet, board measure; and Balfour, Guthrie & Co. have orders for 20,000,000 feet." Not strictly a trade item is this quotation from a speech by Vice-President Marshall: "I know all the other Indiana statesmen and politicians. I know that Fairbanks and Handshie died with broken hearts because they sought and did not achieve the presidency. Harrison, because his party would not give him a third nomination, died in the belief that republics are ungrateful."

Grand Jury to Be Dismissed

It is generally admitted that the disclosures in the police court graft cases indicate a rotten condition, but the invariable conclusion of those who are familiar with the way such things usually turn out is that the investigation and probing will "blow up," meaning that it will come to naught. There are already signs that it has been headed off. The grand jury has done all that is possible, as it is constituted. Its tenure is up, and its foreman was to apply on Monday for its dismissal, which brought into consideration a succeeding body. The question is asked about the city hall, in undertone, of course, how the blank such a grand jury came to be chosen. And it is fully understood that a number of persons will be interested in the drawing of the next one, that the unexpected does not happen again. Foreseeing this, Attorney-General Welch has requested the grand jury foreman to wait a little till he investigates the method of drawing grand juries. It is possible the method disclosed on a former occasion is still in vogue. It will be remembered by those whose memory in such matters reaches far enough back how the name slips of such talesmen as could be "depended on" had rubber bands snapped around them, and the deputy felt around in the box and by the sense of touch selected sufficient of these to assure safety to those in danger.

Troubles of Policemen

The outcome of the trial of Police Officer Pierce in Oakland—conviction of assault and battery—has been taken cognizance of in police circles here. It is not at all unusual for police officers to use their clubs in making arrests, and not infrequent that to onlookers they seem to use them with undue severity. But I do not recall a previous case in which one was convicted in a police court of battery, with a jail term in prospect. Sometimes they are haled before the Police Commission, but it is rare that anything happens then more serious than a few days' suspension and the coincident loss of pay. Laymen may consider that a policeman's tenure ends automatically after his conviction in a police court of too brutal exercise of his authority, but this by no means follows. It is harder to lose a policeman off the payroll than almost any other municipal official or employee. His conviction of an offense in the exercise of his duty, by regular trial in a court of law, does not necessarily impair his legal standing. He has to be tried by the Police Commission, and it is entirely conceivable that he can bring influence to bear to withstand adverse consequences there. But it is seldom that policemen get so deep in the kind of difficulty that the Oakland officer finds himself in.

Delegates Got Up Early

Members of the Foreign Trades Convention, which held very interesting sessions here last week, were much alive to the commercial possibilities of the city. I learned of a delegation which took time by the forelock and paid a visit to Islais Creek and Hunter's Point one morning before 7 o'clock. Members had read of the expression of Dr. Rastall, who made the industrial survey for the Chamber of Commerce several years ago, and revisited the city last month. It is his opinion that the shore region between Islais Creek and Hunter's Point, and to the south of that, offers a greater opportunity for industrial expansion than any other in the United States. He cites as sustaining facts that three transcontinental railways come in there, with adjacent water sixty feet deep. Of course, he refers to freight terminals, but it may be a matter of surprise that the three great overland railways have terminals or lines in this region. It struck me as notable that visitors were so much interested in the commercial possibilities of the city as to arise in the small hours and post off to a part of the city that requires a strong vision to realize its attractions.

Koster Wakes Up New York

Copies of the address of Frederick J. Koster, delivered before a session of the Railway Business Men's Association in New York, have been received here. Evidently, that one from the far confines of the continent who was unheralded and to the generality of other commercial centers unknown, at least as one with a vision and the oratorical ability to impress it upon an assemblage, should say the thing that all recognized it was useful to say, was a great and pleasant surprise. The title of the address was "American Destiny." Alva B. Johnson, president of the association, said the address, "by its lofty idealism, clarity of vision and unflinching courage, brought to their feet the audience of business men who heard it." There was such a demand for copies of it that an edition of 60,000 was at once printed, with a foreword from the president. Members of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce who saw that institution expand so magnificently under Koster as president are not surprised at the impression he made in the greater community.

The Airship Mail Line

We are now advised that the first aerial mail from New York is scheduled to arrive in October. As there are sufficient planes now ready for use, the delay presumably is on account of landing facilities. It was proposed to utilize the Marina, but the aerial race of April 21 disclosed that the ground there is rough and strewn with small rocks, as a consequence of which two machines were wrecked. Expert authority has been adduced to the effect that the field cannot be successfully used for landing unless put in condition. The Board of Supervisors has been petitioned to take the matter in hand, to the end that the field may be smoothed so that there will be no further delay in establishing this great service. The flight from New York will consume three days. There will be four stops—at Chicago, Omaha, Cheyenne and Reno—connecting by airlines with Pittsburg, Kansas City, Detroit, Washington, St. Louis, Cleveland, Toledo, St. Paul and Minneapolis. It is planned to use planes equal to a minimum of 1500 pounds of mail, and to a speed of eighty miles an hour. The first aeroplane to deliver mail in San Francisco has already arrived, by the way. It brought matter from San Jose and was twenty-nine minutes in passage.

City Buys Sutro Heights

What has long been feared is now no longer a danger. Some San Franciscans have realized for years the danger of private interests obtaining control through purchase of the Sutro acreage in the vicinity of the Cliff House, and thus making the commanding eminence and its seal rocks and other attractions a private soap instead of a public pleasure ground. The completion of negotiations by the city has settled the matter. Probably it has been helped by the liberality of the Sutro heirs, for undoubtedly they could have realized more from private sale, or by subdividing their holdings. The latter possibility was what was most feared, as San Francisco's great show place would have presented a sorry spectacle, all cut up into small holdings and covered with heterogeneous improvements, some of which at least would have been unsightly. Immediate and commensurate improvement of this new holding may not be realized, as the wrestle now is to get funds for the current expenses of the city government. But it is of great advantage to have title. Improvements may wait an era when there is less financial stress.

The Metric Conference

If anybody desires to raise a smile at the city hall all he has to do is to inquire how the proposition to introduce the metric system is coming on. The World Metric Standardization Conference held sessions during the week, and the proximity naturally suggested a change from the old standards in the city's scales and measures. The smile comes in when it is remembered that Andy Gallagher is the official Sealer of Weights and Measures, and how he would be likely to express himself on the subject. In the official account is a long list of names of eminent citizens—Franklin K. Lane, General Pershing, Luther Burbank, Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison, William G. McAdoo, Alexander Graham Bell and others—who endorse the movement. It is considered that it would afford entertainment if Andy could be worked up on the subject to express himself as he naturally would concerning these guys who are trying to put over something like the municipal survey outfit did. The sessions of the metric standardization conference, by the way, were quite interesting, though from the nature of the subject matter discussed and considered it could not be very exciting.

Obregon Has Friends Here

There is a considerable coterie in this city who are watching affairs in Mexico with keen interest. Obregon began to visit San Francisco some two years ago as the representative of Sonora farmers and producers. He was taken in hand, banqueted and shown the sights. On one of his visits he was entertained at a luncheon in Oakland. He came finally to have a regard for Americans which he did not seem to have at the outset. He found friendly advances on all sides, apparently different from what he had been led by native prejudices to expect. He is the only Mexican of national stature who has fared this way in just such a manner. He will undoubtedly be the man in power in the new order of things which it is expected will obtain when the country fully emerges from the present chaos. Already a friendliness has been manifest for the United States that is an encouraging augury. It is believed this may be the result of the hospitable treatment received here. It is understood that the Fleischackers have financed him in some of his undertakings. If this is so, it is not likely to be an unprofitable connection when affairs get straightened around and Obregon gets firmly seated in the saddle.

Under the Sidewalk Tax

The North Central Improvement Association, on the executive committee of which are such weighty citizens as Frank B. Anderson of the Bank of California, Charles E. Green of the Crocker Bank, George Tourny of the Savings and Loan Society, P. E. Bowles of the American National Bank, Joseph D. Grant, R. M. Hotelling, Ogden Mills, Leon Sloss and others, has taken the matter of taxing the under-sidewalk spaces up. The association recites in its argument that San Francisco was rebuilt on a plan which calls for the use of subsidewalk space by stores; that to impose a tax on such space would be double taxation, as the assessor has already included it in his assessment rolls. The association opposed this proposed tax on several occasions before Supervisor McLeran's time, and three times during his incumbency of the past seven years. It seems to be a fetish of the supervisors. It will be remembered that he was set on making it a part of the new license ordinance, and failing in that, succeeded in getting it before the voters in a referendum. Property owners are making a particular fight to defeat it, but there are so many voters who do not own structures with under-the-sidewalk space that the odds are considerably against them.

It Might Be Worse for Lemare

The friends of Organist Lemare cite the English offer for his services as being much more advantageous from a financial point of view than that now in force with the city. It may be that he could realize more money, but if he is temperamental, as we frequently hear, and the English are all alike, he might not be happier in a job over there than he is here, even with Supervisor Hayden nagging him. In a Canadian paper I came across an account of the experience of an organist at London, Ontario. He had been for years the organist of the Adelaide Baptist church, and probably to eke out he took on an additional job with the orchestra of a local theater. Members of the congregation objected to his playing in a theater. They could not reconcile his performance in a theatrical orchestra with his holding the position of organist in their church. It was admitted that he was of good character, and a good musician; but it was considered a sort of sacrilege for him to play the organ in the church after he had played it in the theater. If Mr. Lemare runs up against such a situation as that after his long experience of the California way, his temperamental would be more sorely taxed than it has ever been or is ever likely to be here.
